Hauptmann Dies Week of Jan. 13, N. J. Court Rules

Executions Usually Are at 8 P. M. Tuesdays in New Jersey.

Hoffman Defends His Interest in Case

Next Move by Lawyers to Save Carpenter Still in Doubt.

By the Associated Press

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 13.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the second time was today sentenced to die for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, as Justice Thomas W. Trenchard set the week of January 13, 1936, his execution.

The original date of death, the week of last March 18, was set aside by Hauptmann's application to the Court of Errors and Appeals for a new trial.

This court, the highest in New Jersey, denied the appeal October 9, and the Supreme Court of the United States rejected a request for a review of the trial last Monday.

The exact date for Hauptmann's execution—dates of executions are never made public in advance—will be selected by Col. Mark O. Kimberling, State prison warden. Generally, condemned men in New Jersey go to the chair at 8 p. m. on Tuesdays.

Will Get News Today.

Kimberling tonight said he would inform Hauptmann of the new sentence tomorrow after C. Lloyd Fisher, one of the convicted German's attorneys, declined the task.

Justice Trenchard, who presided at Hauptmann's trial, signed the new death warrant a few hours after Gov. Harold G. Hoffman told the Associated Press he knows he "stuck his chin out" when he interested himself publicly in the Hauptmann case. He said he had to do something "to keep myself square with my conscience."

Unless something unexpected intervenes, Hauptmann will die approximately 11 months after his conviction at Flemington.

The new death warrant will be taken to Flemington tomorrow where it will be signed by C. Lloyd Fell, county clerk. Later it will be signed by Attorney General David T. Wilentz and an assistant.

Fisher, informed of the new sentence as he left the death house at State prison after talking with Hauptmann, said defense attorneys will confer Monday night on the next step in the fight for Hauptmann's life.

Obstacle to Defense.

A State law, providing that the court may "open judgment" and grant a new trial within six months of the conviction, appeared an obstacle in the path of defense counsel should they seek a new trial. It has been ten months since Hauptmann was convicted.

An opinion on this law by Justice Dixon in 1906 ruled that the court cannot alter or disturb the judgment unless "it be shown that the judgment was rendered without full jurisdiction or was obtained by fraud."

Both Fisher and Egbert Rosecrans, another defense attorney, remained confident, however, after considering the law and the Dixon ruling that a new trial can be obtained if they secure new evidence.

Rosecrans said they could ask the new trial on the basis of legal fraud, as permitted by the Dixon ruling. Fisher described such a law as "clearly not good law" and said he was willing "to take a gamble" that a new trial will be granted if there is new evidence.

Hoffman Explanation.

The papers, signed by Justice Trenchard on his seventy-second birthday, were directed to Col. Kimberling. They recited the circumstances of Hauptmann's conviction February 13, and the fact that his original date of death was set

Only 9 Trades Seek Voluntary NRA Controls

By Felix Bruner.

Only nine industries have taken advantage of the new NRA law, pased at the last session of Congress, permitting voluntary codes, records of the Federal Trade Commission revealed yesterday. This compares with more than 500 codes made effective under the old NRA.

The question of providing for voluntary codes, with fair practice provisions approved by the commission and labor provision approved by the NRA organization, was a subject of a major congressional controversy last spring. Business organizations have virtually ignored the privilege provided by the law.

Only the wholesale tobacco code has been approved both as to fair practice provisions and labor provisions. Fair practice provisions have been approved for codes in these industries: Braided nonelastic industry, solid braided cord, asbestos manufacturing, candle manufacturing, fertilizer manufacturing, expanding and special paper products, rock and slag wool manufacturing, and asphalt shingle roofing. No other codes are pending before the commission.

President Roosevelt, when asked about possible new NRA legislation, said that he was awaiting reports on labor and business conditions from the skeleton NRA organization and from the Federal Trade Commission. So far as could be learned, the commission is not preparing a report.

The NRA organization, however, is engaged in preparing very detailed reports. One of them, on deviation by industry from code provisions following the death of

25,000 Left Homeless By Flood in Macedonia

Athens, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—Flood tonight left an estimated 25,000 homeless and famine stricken in Macedonia. Twelve hundred houses reportedly collapsed and 5,000 others were evacuated in face of the heaviest rainfall in years.

Seventy thousand cattle and sheep were reported drowned. Fog prevented relief planes from dropping food. Church bells in many flooded villages continued ringing late into the night to summon aid. King George dispatched the ministers of agriculture and relief to the district, planning a personal visit when communications improve.

Triangle Fire Laid to Laxity; 3 Probes Open

D. C. Inspection Urged; Roosevelt 'Shocked' at Its Absence.

Loss May Be $300,000; Report to Ickes Sets $50,000 Figure.

With three independent investigations under way and a preliminary estimate of damage in the hands of Interior Secretary Ickes, official Washington last night surveyed wreckage at the new "fireproof" Postoffice Building and denounced Federal laxity in observance of local fire regulations.

Comment on yesterday's early morning blaze, which prompted one of the most spectacular fire-fighting demonstrations in recent months, was led by President Roosevelt. At his press conference yesterday, the President expressed surprise that Government buildings did not come under local fire inspection regulations.

He appeared shocked while discussing the blaze with reporters and declared that the local fire department should have direct supervision over all buildings in the city—public, private and Federal.

Hardly had the smoke cleared away, and while firemen and laborers worked to clear debris from rooms and hallways on four floors of the building, three separate inquiries were launched.

Damage Guesses Vary.

Damage, in a preliminary estimate by officials of the buildings division, National Park Service, was set at $60,000. From other sources it was hinted that nothing under $300,000 would repay costs of repairs.

The damage estimate was given by W. G. Peters, jr., assistant director of the buildings division, park service. Wading ankle-deep in water and charred paper, Peters toured the damaged floors and sent his findings to the office of Secretary Ickes, under whom the park service functions.

Peters announced that repairs to concrete floors, walls and stairways would amount to $50,000. Damage to furnishings and fixtures, he estimated at $5,000. An additional $5,000, he said, would be needed for moving and temporary working quarters while repairs are being made.

Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber, in a report to Chief Charles Schrom, blamed the fire's origin on an electric drop light. He said a 100-watt bulb was suspended from an 18-inch cord in the file room where the blaze started. The lighted bulb, he added, rested on a stack of open papers piled from the floor to the ceiling.

Gardner Investigates.

Another investigation as to the fire's probable cause is being conducted by B. C. Gardner, chief of personnel, park service. He is assisted by H. R. Owen and R. D. Trussell.

Gardner established headquarters in the Postoffice Captain of Guards' office. It was learned that all employes in the building who were on duty when the blaze was discovered, were called before Gardner and his assistants for questioning.

Although refusing to comment on his findings, Gardner declared that he would turn in a complete report to Secretary Ickes.

A third inquiry is being conducted by Donald H. McNeal, division director of the HOLC. Considerable damage was done to HOLC offices on the sixth floor of the Postoffice Building.

When told of President Roosevelt's comments yesterday, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said he would "gladly" approve any measure which would bring Federal buildings under inspection of the local fire department. He added that there should be a fire station somewhere along the Government triange to afford better protection. It was estimated that at least 50 additional fire inspectors would be needed adequately to supervise Federal building inspection.

Fire Marshal Lauber declared that "no District fire inspector has ever been in the Postoffice Building for an official survey of conditions."

Another fire official bitterly attacked the apparent laxity of Government agencies toward fire regulations.

Underwood & Underwood.

JOSEPH E. DAVIES. MRS. MARJORIE POST HUTTON.

Noted Lawyer and Philanthropic Socialite to Be Married in Luxurious Hutton Home; Daughters of Bridegroom to Spend the Day With Mother.

The much-predicted wedding of Joseph E. Davies, nationally known lawyer, and Mrs. Marjorie Post Hutton, philanthropic social registerite, will take place tomorrow afternoon in New York, The Post learned yesterday.

The ceremony will be performed in the luxurious 70-room triplex apartment of the bride-elect at 2 East Ninety-second street, the Hutton home. Guests will include Actress Billie Burke and her daughter, Patricia Ziegfeld.

Davies, who was divorced last September in Nevada by Mrs. Emlen Knight Davies, left last night for New York after arranging for a private car to carry Washington guests to the wedding. The car will leave tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Davies' daughters will not attend the ceremony. One of them, Mrs. Aldace Walker, of New York, is coming here to spend the day with her mother. She is a sister-in-law of Lawrence ("Chip") Robert's recent bride.

In the afternoon Mrs. Davies will have a box at the symphony concert. The party will include another daughter, Mrs. Davies Cheeseborough, who is to marry Senator Millard Tydings next month; Mrs. William E. Borah and Mrs. Bernard B. Jones.

Mrs. Cheeseborough's engagement to the Maryland Senator was announced formally last week. She was granted a divorce from Thomas Patton Cheeseborough in Reno last September, a few days after her mother's marital ties were severed.

Mrs. Hutton also won a divorce last September in Nevada from her husband of 20 years, Edward F. Hutton, New York financier. Custody of their only child, Medenia 2d, was awarded to the mother. The

President Asks Naval Reserve Of 150,000 Men

Fivefold Enlarged Force Designed to Parallel Army's Militia.

Increase of the Naval Reserve strength five-fold, to a total of 150,000 men, has been proposed by the President to the Navy Department, it was revealed yesterday at the White House press conference.

While delegates from the principal naval powers are conferring at London on possible allocation of naval strength, officers of the American Navy are engaged in conferences to map details of the reserve proposal for inclusion in proposed legislation slated to go to Congress.

The plan, first considered by the President when he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson Administration, was made to Secretary Swanson and a group of admirals who conferred at the White House Thursday.

The enlarged Naval Reserve would parallel in the naval establishment the War Department's National Guard. It would be of material aid to the Navy at the beginning of an emergency. Trained reserves would be available for auxiliary ships and to complete the manning of warships which do not have a full complement in peace-time.

The President revealed that in 1915 the first paper plans were drawn for the enlarged reserve. The war prevented the plans being put into execution.

The objective was to obtain a strength of 150,000 over a period of years. These would include enlisted men who have spent 16 or

Britain, Japan Hold Surprise Parley on Ships

Sudden Move for 2-Power Talks Is 'Unpleasant News' to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

London, Dec. 13.—British officials, in what some observers said was a significant and unexpected recharting of Britain's course as host to the International Naval Conference, inaugurated separate two-nation discussions among the powers tonight, conferring with the Japanese delegation.

The surprise conference was held in the foreign office while members of the American delegation were in the country for a rest, and the French were week-ending in Paris.

Authoritative sources said the Americans were not informed of the development beforehand, and it was stated they were "unpleasantly surprised" when the news became known.

After the discussion between the British and Japanese officials, Japanese sources said the talk was "very frank, cordial and useful."

Previously, Japan, despite challenges from 10 delegations, doggedly maintained her demand for fleet equality, defending her thesis that only in this manner will security for all nations be guaranteed.

It was learned authoritatively in British circles tonight that the Japanese-British conference was meant to be the first of several between different delegations. No date, however, has been set for other similar talks.

The Japanese delegation, it was

Meningitis Outbreak Kills 12; 30,000 Oklahomans Isolated

By the United Press.

Hobart, Okla., Dec. 13.—Thirty thousand residents of Kiowa County were placed under a rigid quarantine tonight in an attempt to halt the spread of a spinal meningitis outbreak which has taken upward of a dozen lives.

State highway patrolmen and National Guard details will enforce the quarantine for at least five days. Only errands connected with care of the sick and delivery of food and drugs will be allowed. Every other business, school, church or entertainment activity was forbidden.

Highways will be kept open through the county, but motorists will be warned that, if they enter, they cannot leave unless they show a negative test for meningitis germs. Not a gallon of gasoline will be sold without a physician's prescription.

The quarantine was clamped down on the southern part of the county during the morning and its announcement brought an exodus of scores of Hobart residents late in the day.

Physicians headed by Dr. J. L. Adams, Kiowa County health officer, moved into the southern part of the county to fight the disease at Snyder, Mountain Park, Roosevelt and smaller communities.

Funeral services at Snyder for the latest victim, G. A. Studdard, 11, who died last night, were restricted to his immediate family, the minister and the undertaker.

The germ-caused malady which brings intense pain and sudden death had been suspected in a dozen mysterious deaths in this region during the last two months.

Information that several youths from this region were suffering from meningitis at a CCC camp near Purcell, leading to a 21-day quarantine there, hastened the declaring of a quarantine here.

Tompkins Sent to Jail to Wait Term in Fatal Auto Accident

District Supreme Court Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday ordered Francis M. ("Tommy") Tompkins, son of the socially prominent Charles M. Tompkins, sent to the District Jail pending determination of sentence the 27-year-old socialite will be given following a plea of guilty to a charge of manslaughter yesterday.

Tompkins admitted he was driving an automobile that crashed into a street car loading platform at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, on which Mrs. Ruth Storey, 30-year-old district Building charwoman, was waiting for a street car. The accident occurred March 2.

Shortly afterward Tompkins sustained serious injuries when he was thrown from a horse while participating in a nearby Virginia horse show. His back was broken and he remained in the Emergency Hospital for many weeks. Yesterday he showed no ill effects.

Witnesses at the coroner's inquest into Mrs. Storey's death testified Tompkins was driving at "a terrific rate of speed" when his machine mounted the platform and struck the woman.

Justice Letts directed that Tompkins be held in the District Jail for a week while the probation officer of the District Supreme Court studied the case and made a recommendation to him. On a manslaughter charge the code does not provide probation.

Townsendites Set Full Slate For '36 Race

5 Million Membership Claimed; Michigan Victory Cheered.

A full slate of Townsend pension-plan candidates for Congress and the Presidency will be entered in the 1936 campaign, it was announced yesterday.

In a surprise decision that caused evident concern among leaders of the two major parties, Dr. F. E. Townsend, head of the movement to pay $200 a month pensions to all persons 60 years of age or older, raised a distinct threat to old party lines, a threat that grew out of the West, but has spread rapidly Eastward.

Previously, leaders of the movement have insisted their campaign would be carried on within the established parties, with efforts concentrated on election of Congressmen favorable to their proposal.

"Party Inevitable."

"It is inevitable that we have a third party," Dr. Townsend said yesterday in announcing the decision, "as neither of the old parties appears favorable to our cause."

A national convention is projected, with delegates chosen by local Townsend Club gatherings throughout the country. Chicago, Cleveland and Los Angeles are attempting to get the convention, Dr. Townsend said.

Whether consideration has been given any particular individuals for the Presidential nomination was not revealed. Dr. Townsend, however, made it plain that neither he nor R. E. Clements, co-founder of the movement, would be the nominee.

Chief efforts of the party, if one is actually formed, aer still expected to be centered in Congressional campaigns, where the votes necessary to enact a Townsend plan law would have to be obtained.

"Dark Horse" Wins.

In this connection, leaders of the movement have received their greatest encouragement from the campaign now under way to select a Representative in Congress from the Third Michigan District. There, in the primary, Verner W. Main, a "dark horse" candidate for the Republican nomination, won a walk-away victory over four opponents after declaring his support for the Townsend plan.

The campaign is to be climaxed Tuesday in a special election and Main's victory by a large majority is anticipated by most observers. His Democratic opponent, Howard W. Cavanagh, has attacked the pension plan throughout the campaign, but national leaders of the movement have flocked to Main's support, and despite Cavanagh's denunciation of the "fairy-tale finance," the reported 3,000 members of the 60 Townsend clubs in the district are expected to roll up a commanding majority.

Within Main's own party, however, Representative Clare Hoffman, of the Fourth Michigan District, has denounced the pension plan as "merely a scheme to create discontent * * * and attempt to purchase votes, a promise of something which will never materialize."

Both candidates in Main's district, seeking the seat of the late Henry M. Kimball, Republican, have agreed that the pension proposal is the main issue. And Main's chances are held to be exceptionally good.

Must Elect Backers.

Further encouragement has been given the Townsendites in replies to a questionnaire sent to members of Congress recently by Townsend. He announced yesterday that 31 replies had been received to date, and all were favorable to the pension project. Nevertheless, there is little expectation of action on the plan at the coming session. Though members of the Townsend clubs in many sections of the country have flooded their present representatives and senators with appeals to enact the pension law, there is no indication of any considerable shift in sentiment in the two houses.

Any hope for enactment of the legislation, apparently rests in election of Congress members in 1936 pledged to the proposal.

Anger of Public Over Peace Bid Rises in Britain

Resignation of Hoare Seen Likely as Revolt Over Terms Mounts.

By the Associated Press.

London, Dec. 13.—A parliamentary and public revolt against Great Britain's part in the African peace plan appeared to be growing tonight instead of diminishing.

Publication of the official terms of the Anglo-French settlement disclosed they went far beyond the pre-war proposals advanced to Premier Mussolini by a League of Nations' committee of five.

"The ordinary man feels Prime Minister Baldwin and his government betrayed him, the League, Ethiopia and the cause of peace," said Clement Atlee, leader of the Labor Party, in a speech at Bassetlaw.

Speculation on the political fate of Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, who negotiated the plan with Premier Laval of France, dominated discussion in parliamentary circles.

In the face of the fierce criticism, it was seriously suggested in some quarters that he has no alternative except to resign. Lobby gossip emphasized this would be more imperative if the League should reject the peace proposal, which is now anticipated in many London quarters.

Anthony Eden, minister for League affairs, it was disclosed, will return from Geneva for week-end conferences with other cabinet ministers. Hoare, who is now on vacation in Switzerland, is expected to cut his stay short when foreign affairs are debated in the House of Commons.

King George is keeping actively informed on developments. An emergency meeting of the cabinet may be held Monday.

Eleanor Rathbone, member of Parliament, addressing a "women's peace crusade" luncheon, expressed belief that among the shafts which would help kill the peace plan were Smaller Nations Hostile to Plan as Ethiopia Denounces It.

Special Meeting Asked by Selassie

His Note Asserts Franco-British Terms Break Covenant Spirit.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Dec. 13.—A Franco-British plan to end the war in Africa by giving Benito Mussolini control of nearly two-thirds of Ethiopia appeared doomed tonight.

Ethiopia bitterly and sarcastically denounced the formula in rejecting it, warning that its fulfillment might destroy the League of Nations and collective security in Europe.

Both an Ethiopian note and the official text of the plan were made public today. Ethiopia demanded that the League call a special meeting of the Assembly on the ground that the Franco-British proposal violates the spirit of the Covenant.

Such a hostile reception was given details of the plan in many League circles that it appeared certain to meet an early death, unless it is modified.

League officials said the picture painted by Ethiopia's communication could only hasten the scheme's death.

Among expressions heard in League circles on the plan were: "Worse than the press forecasts. Simply terrible."

Meeting Wednesday.

The Council has been called into session Wednesday to consider the formula. It is expected to act upon Ethiopia's demand for a special session of the Assembly.

Meanwhile, the question of the addition of oil to the list of sanctions against Italy has been held up. Sanctions already declared continue in force.

Belief that, if the Council hesitated to reject the plan or modify it the Assembly would meet shortly to take action was expressed by officials.

By sending a note to Geneva, Emperor Haile Selassie avoided a direct reply to London or Paris, which sent him the peace plan only this week. The note said:

"The Ethiopian government, taught by cruel experience, declares itself opposed to all secret negotiations."

Some delegates from smaller powers were reported to be incensed over a statement in the plan that Britain and France would use their influence in Addis Ababa and Geneva so the establishment in southern Ethiopia of a zone of economic Italian expansion should be accepted by Haile Selassie and the League.

Discussion of the text renewed references in private conversations of delegates to the possible necessity of an oil sanction against Italy if peace negotiations fail and the war continues.

In a reply to Ethiopia's note, Dr. Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, president of the League Assembly, said the assembly deemed it advisable to await the result of the Council meeting Wednesday before deciding to call an Assembly session.

Officials predicted, however, that the Assembly meeting would be called if the Council hesitates to reject the plan.

Clever Move Seen.

Ethiopia, it was believed, made a clever diplomatic move in attempting to throw the conflict into the Assembly, where she hopes a majority of nations will express disapproval of the plan and create a new atmosphere for sanctions.

The peace plan, Addis Ababa said, contains these proposals:

"Ethiopia, the victim of an act of aggression which is formally recognized as such by the League's Council and Assembly, is invited:

To cede to its Italian aggressor, in a more or less disguised form, under the pretext of a fallacious exchange of territories, about half its national territory in order to enable the aggressor country to settle part of its population there.

To agree that the League of Nations should confer upon this aggressor, in a disguised form, control over the other half of

The "Friend" handed an envelope to a Post cashier who tore it open and found two new $50 bills inside.

This nearly doubled the size of The Post fund which is to bring Christmas cheer to those in need. The total is now $245.71.

Not only money but also toys and dolls show a great daily increase. Many hundreds and hundreds of toys are expected next Saturday morning, when "Treasure Island" will be shown at Loew's Fox Theater.

Two bright stars, Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper, will do their part in a great picture to swell the number of toys to be turned over to Santa Claus.

The ticket of admission to each child who wishes to attend will be a new toy or an article of child's clothing. For adults there will be a charge of 25 cents—this to go into the fund to purchase additional toys.

New toys and used ones which do not need repair will be welcomed at the fund headquarters at The Post Building. By calling Decatur 5130, the Terminal Taxicab Co., also co-operating in the enterprise, will call for them.

Also co-operating with The Post, the Loew's theaters and the Terminal Taxicab Co. is Gordon Hittenden.

Roosevelt Asks Wider Powers For Neutrality

Hostile Senate Bloc to Fight Grant of Discretionary Rule to President.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Determined opposition to giving the Administration discretionary authority to embargo arms and munitions of war to belligerents when that subject comes up in Congress appeared certain yesterday after President Roosevelt announced he would press for a definite neutrality law to take the place of the statute which expires February 29.

The President declined to reveal what proposals he would lay before Congress, but it is known that he and his State Department believe the law should be made more elastic than the existing legislation. Authority to restrict shipments to belligerents of what are termed essential war materials will be asked, it is understood.

Arms Exports Listed.

Meanwhile the State Department made public data covering armament exports between October 10 and November 30 for which licenses were issued under the neutrality act passed by Congress last August. Licenses were issued covering such shipments with value of $1,333,156.25. Airplanes, their motors and parts accounted for all but $158,689 of this total. Erance was the largest purchaser, buying $325,000 of airplanes.

The list does not cover all arms, ammunition and implements of war exported in that period but only those for which the shippers obtained export licenses as a precautionary measure. The law forbidding exports without a license did not become effective until November 29. Consequently it was optional with the shipper whether to get a license or report his exports.

The President declined to indicate whether he would reveal his neutrality proposals in his general message to Congress at the opening session or whether he would reserve this topic, after referring to it in that message as one of the problems of the session, for more detailed treatment in a subsequent special message. But it was believed he would follow the latter course.

How much discretionary authority for dealing with this country's course when other nations go to war the President will insist on has not been revealed. In some quarters it has been suggested that the Administration would not be seriously concerned if a mandatory embargo on arms shipments were written into permanent legislation.

Senate Bloc Determined.

Arms shipments, as defined in the President's proclamation of October 5, have not proved to be troublesome. More important and far more complicated has been the task of keeping away from belligerents raw materials such as oil, copper, cotton linters, scrap iron and steel, essential commodities to the manufacture of arms and implements of war.

The Administration on that point may seek authority for the President to forbid or limit such shipments to nations at war, or when the peace of the world is disturbed or when the relations of this country with other powers are threatened.

Such a proposal, provided that when made effective it would apply equally to all parties to the war or disturbance, might be approved by Congress. But in the Senate, at least, there is a determined bloc, led by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan; Homer T. Bone (Democrat), of Washington, and William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, opposed to any legislation which would permit the President to use powers designed to promote this country's neutrality for the purpose of aiding or penalizing any foreign nation.

Credit Ban Sought.

This Senate group likewise will demand when the subject comes up that restrictions should be placed on loans or advances of credit in this country to belligerents, if they should not be prohibited entirely. It is difficult to write this aim into law, and for that reason was passed over last August when Congress suddenly enacted a neutrality resolution, but a strenuous demand for it will be made in February.

In the consideration of these matters the Anglo-French "peace" plan for the Italo-Ethiopian conflict and the ultimate outcome of that proposal are destined, it appears, to play an important part. This incident, if consummated, will supply foes of the League of Nations with evidence of their contentions that America should stay out of European conflicts because we cannot hope to overcome the duplicity of those powers in foreign affairs.

Whether this is an accurate portrayal of the situation does not matter. It is a talking point which will be used to encourage resistance here to all proposals for cooperative and collective action. On the other hand, the Administration will face hostility from business and agricultural interests if it becomes strenuous in the desire to restrict exports of commodities not clearly implements of war.

Gov. George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania, accompanied by Senator Joseph Guffey, of that State, and David I. Stern, Philadelphia publisher, conferred at some length with Secretary Hull yesterday and later called on President Roosevelt. It was reported that neutrality proposals were discussed.

Secretary Hull declined to discuss the visit and Gov. Earle declined to say more than that "the subject of neutrality is of much interest to us since Pennsylvania produces a great deal of oil and coal." He said his call on the President had to do with a personal matter but that many subjects were touched on.

In addition to France, the largest purchasers of American arms, ammunition and implements of war, were Argentina, which bought $292,880 worth in the period specified; China, with purchases valued at $232,067, chiefly airplanes; the Netherlands, $204,170, all commercial airplanes, and Brazil, $105,527.

Between You and Me

By Raymond Clapper

NEWS from Michigan is more important than anything the Republican National Committee can do here Monday.

One of the most conservative Michigan Republican Representatives, Earl Michener, who has a long and useful record as a sound legislator, has announced for the Townsend plan, if press dispatches are correct.

The reason for that is explained by what is going on in the Congressional district adjoining his. There the Townsendites are electing a Republican Representative Tuesday. His name is Verner W. Main and he won the nomination in the recent primary by more votes than his four opponents combined—because he had the backing of the Townsendites.

His election Tuesday is a pushover, but just to intimidate other office seekers, the Townsendites are putting on a high pressure campaign to run up the highest possible plurality over the Democratic candidate. They are holding 60 meetings in the district this week in behalf of Candidate Main. R. E. Clements, secretary of the Townsend organization and the real brains behind the saintly Dr. Townsend, is stumping the district.

Representative Michener surrendered before the victory in the adjoining district was announced. There are plenty more candidates throughout the country quaking in their boots and trying to decide whether they can afford to put the welfare of the country above a job in Congress.

All of this is something that will not be mentioned above a whisper during the Republican National Committee meeting here Monday. But the terrifying specter of the Townsend campaign of intimidation hangs overhead. Where will the Republican Party be with its clamor for budget balancing and sound government if its Senatorial and Congressional candidates go chasing off to truckle to a demand that the Government distribute $1,500,000,000 or more a month to persons over 60 years of age? Or where will the Democratic Party be either, for that matter?

The real menace of the Townsend movement is that it has gone beyond the mere debating stage and has entered the field of direct political action.

That means that the movement can no longer be held back by arguing against it. It can be broken now only by one thing—political guts.

It can be busted only if enough prospective candidates for office have the courage to stand up and say what any man fit to aspire to national office must think—that the Townsend plan is a brazen, selfish raid on the whole Nation, a demand by citizens of one class that they be given $200 a month regardless of whether they need it or deserve it.

For two years the Townsend plan has been riddled with arguments. From every angle its astounding fallacies have been exposed. But it has gone right on growing. Despite all arguments against it, it will continue to gain strength if candidates for office are going to trim and sell out the interests of the country in order to get elected.

Every politician is quaking in his boots at the prospect. Plenty of them will stand up and cry about how the New Deal is breaking down fundamental American principles of government. But few have the nerve to stand up against the most fantastic proposal that has ever been seriously proposed in our time. Gov. Landon of Kansas listened recently to Dr. Townsend and broke his silence on national questions to say flatly that he could not support such a scheme. Col. Frank Knox has had the courage to denounce it as a "cruel hoax." Otherwise the big shots have cowered in silence.

The Townsend movement can be stopped only with a heavy cost in political casualties. Some who stand up against it will be struck down. That is why the fight will take real courage.

Instead of giving pensions to anyone who manages to live 60 years, the Government could better give pensions to the candidates who go down to defeat in this fight.

The possibility—it is more than that—of a Supreme Court decision against AAA opens up a new opportunity for the Republicans. Col. Frank Knox is the first to anticipate that. Whereas others have held back waiting to see what the Court would say, Knox has drafted his farm program and is sending copies of it to leading Republican Senators for study.

It provides for taking 50,000,000 acres out of production and the Government would pay farmers $6 an acre subsidy for planting such land in legumes and other soil improving crops. The $300,000,000 a year which this would cost would be taken from customs receipts.

This avoids the hated processing tax, although the money still comes out of the Treasury. It continues benefit payments to farmers but cuts the total to about one-third of what is now being paid out. Otherwise there isn't much difference between it and AAA. Except that Knox says the payments to farmers would be an investment instead of a subsidy—the $6 would be paid for growing of cover crops which would increase the fertility of the soil. That is, in order to cut down our surplus farm production, we would pay farmers to make their soil more fertile so that larger crops would be grown.

Already you can hear the Democrats rehearsing for use against the Knox plan the same arguments which the Republicans have been using against AAA.

Is it possible that all of these big White House conferences with the admirals over enlarging the enlisted naval reserve are designed to impress the London Naval Conference? Because of the Administration economy program it can't resort to the usual maneuver, which would be to begin talking mysteriously about a big naval building program. Instead we ostentatiously tip off the other powers that we may enlarge our naval reserve to six times its present strength.

If you don't think other powers are interested, you don't know what happened at a diplomatic party a few hours after this subject was up at a White House naval conference.

When one of the foreign naval attaches present heard about it, he suddenly ceased being the life of the party, put aside his highball, poured himself a glass of mineral water, and became the best listener there.

stated, expects to talk to the Americans early next week, possibly Monday or Tuesday.

The Tokyo delegation today extended the scope of its demands and admitted the right of all nations to have equal navies—including its rival in the Orient, Soviet Russia.

Bid to France, Italy.

This maneuver was accepted by delegates as a bid for the support of France and Italy and it obviously pleased those delegations.

The British and Americans, however, stood solidly, shoulder to shoulder, in challenging the Japanese position. Both contended it was wholly inconsistent with what they called Japan's lesser degree of responsibilities in the world.

This failed to impress Tokyo's representatives, who met every argument with the contention that elimination of what they called offensive navies would make every nation free from the menace of aggression, regardless of responsibilities, commitments, larger coast lines or vulnerability.

Davis in Debate.

The session today was reported to have been tense, with Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation, engaged in friendly but active debate with Admiral Osami Nagano on the naval requirements of nations. The Japanese always returned to their same position—equal fleets mean equal security to all.

Challenging Davis' assertion that the United States, fronting on two great oceans, had greater defense requirements, Admiral Nagano contended that it required only two days to move the American fleet through the Panama Canal and six days to transfer it from one ocean to the other.

He maintained that a drastic curtailment of what he termed offensive armament would eliminate all danger of an invasion.

Admiral Nagano advanced this same argument to a British statement that their empire required a bigger fleet. He said it was true the scattered empire is vulnerable, but that modern fleets could be moved swiftly to protect interests which would not be jeopardized anyway if offensive ships are abolished.

Plane Vigilante Corps Formed By Oklahomans

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 12.—Winged vigilantes, piloting radio-equipped pursuit planes, were being organized throughout Oklahoma tonight to check the march of lawlessness.

Formation of the man-hunters of the air—modern version of the hard riding vigilantes of the old West—was announced here by Sheriff Stanley Rogers. He called for volunteers from the ranks of sportsmen pilots.

The decision followed a recent flareup of violence, including three prison breaks and a State-wide hunt for a homicidal hitch hiker. In any of the cases, the sheriff said, air vigilantes would have been "invaluable."

The aerial armada, expected to include 15 planes, will be equipped with two-way radio sets enabling a close contact with ground crews in fast automobiles. In addition, the planes will work with police radio stations of the State.

"The day is gone," Sheriff Rogers said, "when it took a day for a criminal to ride out of a county. With modern methods of transportation, ground hunts for criminals are becoming less successful.

"The police radio stations, coupled with planes, will give Oklahoma police equipment as modern as that of the criminals they must fight."

Choir, Dagger Dance Feature Russian Fair

The St. Nicholas Club held its annual fair at 1010 Seventeenth street last night. The club choir, under the direction of Alexander Piankoff, sang folk songs with Miss Marisha Sava as the featured soloist. Prince Dimitri Wolkonsky performed in a Russian dagger dance to the accompaniment of a stringed orchestra.

Members of the club in charge of the entertainment and the bazzar were costumed in native Russian dress.

plans for a third party "surprised and astonished" Main, the Townsend candidate in Michigan, he told the Associated Press yesterday.

"The apparent intention of the Democratic administration to wage a war to the finish on the Townsend issue in this election evidently inspired the decision of Dr. Townsend," he declared.

Townsend candidates will go into the election next fall with a unique platform, the movement's founder said yesterday. It will contain only one plank, a pledge to work for the pension of $200 a month for all persons over 60 who agree not to work in competition with younger persons and who will spend each $200 payment in 30 days. The money would come from a tax on all transactions.

"We are not going to make any vague promises that cannot be fulfilled," Townsend said.

He asserted that State clubs now have 5,000,000 members, and that the number of persons in favor of the plan would total around 25,000,000.

Meanwhile, Gov. James M. Curley, of Massachusetts, asserted that interest in the Townsend project is spreading in his state. He told the Associated Press that in his opinion the next election would be a "showdown" on a "sane social security plan" or the Townsend idea.

He insisted he believed the State would stand behind "the sound Federal social security plan prepared by the President because it provides for protecting the aged, unemployed, women and children of the country."

At Springfield, Mass., Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher frequently mentioned as a Republican Presidential possibility, reiterated his denunciation of the Townsend pension proposal as "a cruel hoax" that can never solve the problem of security for the aged.

"Everyone wants to see the aged destitute cared for," he said, according to the Associated Press, "but to assume that we can absorb one-half the national income for such a purpose as that outlined in the Townsend plan is preposterous. Private industry would co-operate with the individual in a mutual contributory plan whereby the social security of the aged will be safeguarded, but it is certainly not a matter for the Federal Government to step into."

Steamer Rescues 4 From Schooner

Men Taken Off Disabled Boat in Heavy Sea.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 13.—Reports of a thrilling rescue at sea, in which four men were taken off a leaking motor schooner 30 degrees northeast of Jupiter, Fla., were received by Radiomarine today from the steamship Siboney.

The stricken vessel, the 20-ton Halliek, had been adrift for 24 hours, and was almost sinking, the report said.

In a moderately heavy sea, with a strong wind blowing, the Siboney launched a lifeboat and rescued the schooner's crew.

The schooner broke down while bound for Miami after a three-week lobster fishing trip off the West End Bahamas.

U. S. Discloses Defense Plans In TVA Action

Waste and Monopoly Are Targets of Arguments in Highest Court.

By Robert C. Albright.

"Widespread distribution of the benefits of Government - owned property and avoiding waste and monopoly," was advanced by the Government yesterday as its keystone defense of Tennessee Valley Authority's power "yardstick" operations, in a brief filed with the Supreme Court.

Girding for resumption next week of its high court battle to validate New Deal creations, Federal counsel declared the so-called "yardstick" to be "simply an accounting method, and a demonstration of the costs of electricity, which has no coercive force."

Shelling of New Deal laws in the lower courts continued. Mrs. Lois Echols, an employe of the Gate City Cotton Cotton Mills, of Eastport, Ga., obtained from Justice Oscar R. Luhring in the District Supreme Court an order restraining the National Labor Relations Board from conducting an election among the employes today to determine which of them shall negotiate with the company in labor matters.

Writ Hearing December 17.

At the same time Justice Luhring asked the National Labor Relations Board to show cause December 17 why a temporary injunction should not be granted. Mrs. Echols' suit brought to seven the number of injunction actions brought against the Wagner labor relations act. The National Labor Relations Board already has moved for its own constitutional test of the law, in a suit filed with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia.

Meanwhile, the attack on validity of AAA processing taxes will be resumed before the United States Supreme Court Monday, when hearings open on injunction proceedings brought by eight Southern rice millers. Assistant Attorney General Frank Wideman will represent the Government.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed, who collapsed in the Supreme Court Tuesday while defending legality of the Bankhead cotton control act, signed his name to the Government's TVA brief filed yesterday, and will be able to speak for the Government when hearings open Thursday, it was said.

Others who signed the Government's arguments were Attorney General Cummings, James Lawrence Fly, TVA general solicitor, and John Lord O'Brien, special TVA counsel.

Government's Brief.

The TVA suit was brought by 14 minority stockholders of the Alabama Power Co., challenging the Government's right to acquire transmission lines, and objecting to a contract under which their company sold some of its lines to the TVA. The Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans reversed a northern Alabama Federal court ruling holding the act invalid.

Read the Government brief:

"We maintain that under the commerce and war powers and the property clause of the Constitution, the Government may dispose of any surplus power created at Wilson Dam, and that the conversion of the water power into electric energy and the transmission of the energy to market for sale are lawful means of disposition."

Federal counsel maintained that the TVA "embodies the conclusion of Congress that monopoly of the power at Wilson Dam was to be avoided; that its benefits were to be broadly distributed; and for this purpose it was essential that authority to acquire transmission lines be given to a Government agency."

Spain's War Minister May Appoint Cabinet

Madrid, Dec. 13 (AP).—Many observers tonight expressed the conviction that President Alcala Zamora would be forced to call upon Minister of War Gil Robles to form a government as the only solution to Spain's present crisis.

Joaxquin Chapaprieta, whose cabinet resigned Monday, again failed to form a ministry today and one minority after another had declined to support former Minister of the Interior Portela, the newest choice.

Blind Slayer Guilty In Death of Girl, 24

By the United Press.

Boston, Dec. 13.—Forrest K. Wells, blind itinerant street singer, was convicted by a jury tonight of second-degree murder of his sweetheart and "eye," and was sentenced to life imprisonment. The sentence was mandatory.

Wells is believed to be the first blind man in Massachusetts' history to be sentenced to a life term.

A jury which deliberated two and a half hours decreed that the 29-year-old minstrel had tossed Helen Martin, 24, from a Back Bay hotel window to her death, July 15.

The blind singer took the verdict without any outward sign of emotion.

Prosecuting Attorney William J. Sullivan asked the court to impose sentence immediately, and Superior Judge Thomas J. Hammond sentenced the blind man to life imprisonment.

girl is not expected to attend the wedding Sunday. Davies' youngest daughter, Emlen, attends Vassar and is expected to remain there over the week-end.

Mrs. Hutton, known for her beauty and smart clothes, also is known for her charities. For several years she has been called "The Angel of Hell's Kitchen," formerly one of New York's slum districts.

She has been especially interested in the welfare of women and girls. Two years ago she started a national movement to abolish crime. Only a few days ago she took active part in a Salvation Army project.

The Davies-Hutton honeymoon will be spent aboard the yacht received by the bride from her former husband. Present plans call for a cruise to the West Indies on the palatial craft, the largest yacht afloat, which was tied up at Annapolis a couple of weeks ago for repairs.

Davies, 59, was Western manager for Woodrow Wilson in the Presidential campaign of 1912. Since his divorce he has lived at the Shoreham.

Only 9 Trades Seek Voluntary NRA Controls

NRA codes, is about ready for submission to the President. This investigation has been made under the direction of Capt. W. P. Robert, of the Navy.

Most of the field workers on the NRA pay roll have been engaged in this work, although some of them recently have assisted in compiling a history of NRA codes. Most of these field workers, about 500 in number, are expected to be removed from the pay roll within the next few days. Laurence R. Martin, NRA administrator, already has turned in his resignation and will go into private business December 31. About 2,000 employes will remain on the pay roll, most of whom may continue with the Government until the new law expires April 1.

1,000 Industries Studied.

Under direction of Dr. Leon C. Marshall a complete study of nearly 1,000 industries is being undertaken. Of these a total of 329 have been finished. The studies will cover details of code operation as well as operation of many industries not under codes. The most complete study is that of the lumber and timber products industry, which covers a 20-foot shelf. Some of the studies will be made public, but most of them will be filed in the Archives Building, where they will be available to anyone interested. It is expected that Marshall will make a report to the President in March.

Besides the organizations under Marshall and Robert, about 20 workers still are employed in the consumers' division under direction of Dr. Walton R. Hamilton. They are studying prices and marketing conditions.

Many NRA employes have been "loaned" to other organizations, among them those that failed to receive appropriations when the deficiency bill was killed in the Senate. A few others are on the staff of Maj. George L. Berry, who is organizing a council for industrial progress to determine what, if anything, business wishes to do in cooperation with the New Deal.

A successor to Martin as head of the NRA has not been named. The first meeting of Berry's council is expected to be held next week.

Sir Samuel Describes Nose Injury as Scratch

Zuoz, Switzerland, Dec. 13 (AP).—Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, described tonight an injury to his nose when he fell while skating as "unimportant."

Hoare said it was "only scratched, not broken," as had been reported in an official London communique. His physician recommended several days of rest.

Kellogg Assails Effort to Widen U. S. Arms Ban

Former State Secretary Against All Sanctions as Aid to Peace.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, co-author of the Kellogg-Briand pact and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, yesterday slashed at proposals to broaden the American neutrality policy to include embargoes on war materials, such as oil, iron and steel.

Speaking a short time after President Roosevelt had said new neutrality legislation would be sought in the approaching Congress, Kellogg said:

"I don't see any necessity for any further legislation on the neutrality question at all.

"The United States can maintain peace so far as its influence is concerned without any additional legislation. I don't believe in interfering with our legitimate commerce any more than is necessary. Such action is likely to increase the causes of war, rather than to decrease them."

"Of course," he added, "the legislation of August, 1935, (the existing neutrality act embargoing arms and munitions, which expires in February), must be and will be complied with by the United States."

Sitting in the home once occupied by Former President Hoover, Kellogg, who represented Minnesota in the Senate and served as a justice on the World Court at The Hague, condemned Italy's warfare with Ethiopia, criticized economic sanctions, and predicted there would not be another World War.

"The Far Eastern situation is not menacing at all," he said. "I don't see anything that would indicate war there. I don't see anything in Japan's movements in China that violates the nine-power treaty. I may be mistaken, and I may have overlooked some claims that she has done so."

Discussing the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, the gray-haired statesman who also once represented the United States at the Court of St. James, said:

"There is no excuse whatever for Italy making war on Ethiopia. There is no reason whatever why Italy should ignore her obligations under the pact of Paris and her making war is a violation of her obligations. She ought to receive the condemnation of all civilized countries.

"I don't believe in any kind of sanctions," he said. "The world is not going to maintain peace by imposing sanctions."

Three Are Seized In Liquor Raids

Police Find 66 Quarts of Illegal Goods.

Police invaded two alleged drinking establishments yesterday, arresting three persons and confiscating 66 quarts of illegal liquor.

Ernest Rogers, 42, colored, 500 block Second street northwest, was charged with selling liquor without a license, keeping liquor for sale and violation of the Liquor Tax Act.

The first block of G street northwest was the scene of the second raid. Andrew and Cora Chambers, both colored, were taken into custody and charged with selling liquor and keeping liquor for sale. They were released on $500 bond. No bail has been set for Rogers

Cuban Reported Freed After Paying $500,000

Havana, Dec. 13 (AP).—Reports tonight said Nicolas Castano, Cuban millionaire who was kidnaped Monday for $500,000 ransom, had been released in Havana this afternoon upon payment of the money.

It also was reported that two other persons have been kidnaped within the last 24 hours.

As Fire Burned Postoffice Files

Laxity Charge Leveled at U. S. In Fire's Wake

Roosevelt 'Shocked,' Calls for D. C. Inspections of All Buildings.

the Postoffice Building when we first arrived, had been found in any private structure, there would have been an immediate citation for violation of fire laws. We risk our lives to answer an alarm—of course, that's our business—but a lot of life risking can be stopped by proper co-operation and strict observance of regulations," he said.

Acting Chief Fire Deputy Thomas B. Stanton, who entered the blazing file room to battle beside his men, told of inspecting the Postoffice Building soon after it first opened. At that time he warned against fire hazards.

Like "Fire in Vault."

"We told them that if they had a big room like that, without any windows, it would be just like fighting a fire in a vault," Chief Stanton said. "You just can't get to the flames and there isn't any place for the smoke to go. And there are other Government buildings with the same kind of conditions."

Of the 41 firemen overcome by smoke or injured during the long fight, 27 remained in Emergency Hospital last night. The others were released after first aid treatment.

Tons of water were poured into the structure. The walnut-paneled walls of Postmaster General Farley's office, three floors below the fire scene, were wrecked. When Farly arrived for work shortly after 8 a. m., he found his office shin-deep in water. His waste basket was bobbing on the "waves."

The fire itself was confined to large file rooms opposite the Federal Communications headquarters. When firemen first arrived, only a faint spiral of smoke could be seen from an upper window. When they reached the sixth floor, however, it was found that the flames were raging behind locked and bolted doors.

Axes and crowbars soon forced an entrance. Heavy paneled doors were smashed to bits. Smoke and flames billowed into the hallways.

Paper Filled Shelves.

Once inside, the firefighters found row after row of flimsy wooden filing shelves. The shelves were piled high with papers, books and records bound with cardboard.

The room has no ventilation—neither windows nor vents. So dense was the smoke that firemen could remain in the room only a few minutes at a time. Great holes were chopped in hallway walls to allow acrid smoke to escape.

Directly above the file room is the office of Horace Russell, general counsel of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Through the concrete floor—carpet and all—in his office, another hole was drilled with a compressed air drill. A revolving hose nozzle was lowered into the blazing files.

Even though the file room housed tons of inflammable material, there were no automatic water sprinklers or other protection against fire, authorities reported.

Most Are G. A. O. Files.

Most of the destroyed files, officials said, belonged to the General Accounting Office. A survey showed that many were Navy Department vouchers. Reed Martin, chief clerk of the General Accounting Office, said that records were "very badly damaged."

"They are likely to be worth many thousands of dollars," he added.

They included records of payments to Navy men. Without them, the Government has no means of refuting claims which may be filed in the future.

The blaze was apparently discovered by a secretary to Horace Russell. She reported hearing a "crackling noise" below her office and summoned O. A. Catts, a guard.

Catts battled the fire single-handed for several minutes and finally summoned firemen.

As a rule, it was reported, file rooms are usually dark. The extension lights are used because many documents are yellow with age and hard to read. Someone apparently left the 100 watt bulb burning after quitting time Thursday, one official indicated.

Representative Virginia Jenckes (Republican), of Indiana, said she was "surprised and astounded" that the local fire department found it necessary to call for additional help from nearby Maryland and Virginia counties.

Schrom View Indorsed.

A resolution indorsing the recommendation of Fire Chief Charles E. Schrom for Government buildings to be inspected by the Washington Fire Department was adopted at the Brightwood Citizens meeting at the Paul Junior High School last night.

Richard M. Ham, of the American Automobile Association, spoke against diversion of the gasoline tax into a general fund, saying that such diversion would ultimately mean an increase in the tax rate. The association voted to sustain the existing tax appropriation method.

The association was informed by John Nolen, jr., of the National Park and Planning Commission, that sodding and planting in the Fort Stevens Park has been approved by the commission as well as the National Commission of Fine Arts.

The association agreed to apply to the Commissioners for proper lighting facilities for Rittenhouse and Sheridan streets between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets, holding that the darkness of these streets was making them popular as "Lovers' Lanes."

The association also indorsed the Commissioner's action in opposing additional taxation and favoring an increased Congressional appropriation for the District.

Toy, Doll Fund Swelled by $100 From 'A Friend'

Gifts Acknowledged.

All money gifts received for The Post Toy Fund will be acknowledged through the columns of The Washington Post.

Speaking of The Post Toy Fund, its director said last night:

"We feel sure that Washington will not fail its needy children. Never was the need for toys to insure a merry Christmas for these little ones more apparent than it is this year.

"'No needy child without a Christmas toy' is the slogan of The Post Fund. Every bit helps so much. A toy, a dime, a dollar or larger amounts mean that more children can be made happy this Yuletide."

Four youngsters and an older sister, 18, who works hard every day to earn a meager livelihood for the family, sat about a thin blaze, fed by pine cones and bits of scrap wood in a nearby Maryland home last night—and wished.

Blue-Eyed Doll.

"So do I," echoed her twin sister, Clara.

"Me, too! Me, too!" spoke up Louise, who at 16 suffers as the result of a stroke of lightning that crippled her when she was barely 2.

"He will bring me soldiers," exclaimed Jack, 6, most hopeful of all.

The oldest girl's eyes met her mother's. Sad eyes said: "Dolls! Soldiers! Santa Claus! Where will the money come from?"

"Big Sister" makes just $32 a month—no pennies for Santa Claus there.

But mother and sister thought of The Washington Post Fund. "We'll try it," said the mother. "I'll write a letter."

So she told The Post Fund director the story and concluded: "I have been helped by the Welfare Board in the matter of clothes, and my eldest girl is at work making $32 a month, which is all there is coming in for food. So you can see we will have nothing extra for Christmas.

"Please try to send my children something, even though the gifts be very small."

Santa will not pass this home by, for The Washington Post Toy Fund package, containing the three dolls with blue eyes and golden hair, Jack's soldiers and other toys, will arrive there Christmas eve.

Several donors helped out yesterday. Mary Beth Sheppard, 3211 Oliver street, Chevy Chase, D. C., treasurer of a Savings Club, composed of seven girls, handed in $1.46 in pennies, nickels and dimes.

"We saved this money and want to contribute it to your Christmas fund," said Mary Beth. She also spoke for Betty Jane Nelsmann, Betty Lou Butt, Mary Fulton, Claire Little, Jane Stine, and Blair Jordan.

Two Army Fliers Killed in Crashes

Maj. Ladd Dies in Georgia; Cadet Crowell Victim.

By the Associated Press.

Parris Island, S. C., Dec. 13.—An army flier identified as Maj. Arthur K. Ladd, of Langley Field, Va., was killed in the wreck of his single-seater fighting plane near Dale, hamlet of this (Beaufort) County today.

The body, badly mangled, was brought to the Marine Corps base here in an ambulance. It was held pending an investigation ordered by Fourth Corps headquarters in Atlanta. Maj. Ladd was flying to Miami, where many Army and civilian planes are participating in an air racing and exhibition event.

Aviators Brave Perilous Winds At Miami Meet

Douglas Fonda Is Winner of Glenn H. Curtiss Trophy Race.

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13.—Master pilots braved perilous cross winds to bring thrills to thousands today at Miami's eighth annual All-American air maneuvers.

The birdmen battled gusts of 30 miles an hour or more that shook planes and made takeoffs and landings dangerous as they swept over an unfamiliar course in two events at speed as high as 161.923 miles an hour.

Douglas Fonda, of New York, averaged that pace in the day's outstanding event, the Glenn H. Curtiss trophy race, for licensed planes of 550-cubic-inch engine displacement.

Bunched closely at the start of the 15-mile, three-lap dash about improvised markers—the wind toppled two of three pylons—five cabin ships started in the Curtiss event.

Fonda captured the lead at the first turn. On the back stretch R. C. Barker, of Wichita, Kans., like Fonda flying a Beechcraft, swept to second place, but could not nose out the New Yorker.

The pilots' unfamiliarity with the new course—hastily designated when the brisk wind prevented use of the regulation runway—resulted in considerable confusion aloft in the other competitive event, for licensed planes of 550 cubic inches or less.

One plane, owned by E. C. Sundorph, of Cleveland, and piloted by Lee Miles, of the same city, nosed over at the start when caught by gusts. Miles was uninjured, however, and the plane practically undamaged, though it could not start in the event.

Lift Inspection Work Assailed; Inquiry Sought

Charging laxity in the enforcement of elevator regulations here, the Elevator Constructors Union yesterday transmitted to the District Commissioners a request for an immediate investigation.

In its brief, Local No. 10 of the international union alleged hundreds of passenger and freight elevators are being operated on expired certificates of inspection, and that "regular inspection is made of only part of the elevators now being operated in buildings owned by the Federal Government."

Drafted by Harry S. Wender, attorney for the union, the letter blames both the elevator inspector's office and building owners for the situation which places the public "in constant jeopardy and possibility of injury or death as the direct result of allowing these conveyances to continue in operation without competent inspection."

Claiming that the regulation providing for testing at least once each year of car safeties is not being enforced, the union suggests that the commission determine whether any of the elevator accidents which have occurred in the last three years were traceable to inspection deficiencies.

25,000 Pieces Sliced From Lenin's Brain

Moscow, Dec. 13 (AP).—Twenty-five thousand microscopic slices were made today of the brain of Nikolai Lenin, father of communism, for study by the Soviet Brain Institute.

The institute, founded in 1927, has 180 adult, 300 child and 470 animal brains under study. Results will be used for making a "brain atlas" to serve educational and scientific purposes.

Lenin died in January, 1924. His embalmed body is still preserved in a mausoleum in Red Square, where it is on view. The brain has been in the keeping of the institute since its founding.

President Asks Naval Reserve Of 150,000 Men

20 years in the Navy, another group comprising men who have served eight or ten years, and still another grade made up of Naval Militia members who have served on merchant ships.

The President pointed out that one advantage of a well-organized reserve force would be the making use of well-qualified technicians. He pointed out that the Army has enrolled many of the best qualified doctors in the country, placing them in the reserves with titles of major, lieutenant colonel and colonel. It is almost impossible to get that class of doctors in the Naval Reserve, it was pointed out, because the Navy can offer them only the rank of senior lieutenant.

Bottle of Cherries Thwarts Robbery

Drug Store Man Hurls Improvised Weapon.

Harry Yadowsky, proprietor of a drug store at Fourth and L streets southwest, was held up last night. He didn't like it.

There were two colored men with pistols in their hands in his store. Yadowsky picked up a bottle of cherries. He threw it at the gunmen.

The hold-up men retaliated with three shots and then fled. The shots missed Yadowsky and his wife, Anna, but took effect on the liquor shelves, smashing three bottles—two beer and one whisky.

The gunmen got no money.

Boston Gunmen Seize Express Truck Safes

Boston, Dec. 13 (AP).—Five gunmen in an automobile held up an American Railway Express truck tonight and took two safes containing an undetermined amount of cash and other valuables. The gunmen escaped.

Detectives said the gunmen's car cut in front of the truck at the Boston Chamber of Commerce Building, where traffic is ordinarily light at night, and its occupants pointed pistols at the truck driver and the guard. The holdup occurred a short distance from the brightly lighted section around the South Station.

G. O. P. to Face Delegate Quota Battle Monday

National Convention Scene Will Be Selected at Committee Session.

By the Associated Press.

Predictions of a contest over State delegate apportionment at the next Republican national convention were heard here yesterday. A city and date for that gathering will be selected Monday by the party's national committee, meeting here.

If the plan adopted at the last convention is followed—and some leaders said it must be—each State will have four delegates at large, plus three more if they went Republican in the previous Presidential election, plus one delegate for each Congressional district, and another for each district which cast 10,000 Republican votes in either of the two previous Presidential and Congressional elections.

Because of the Hoover landslide in 1928, 40 States had a bonus of three extra votes in the 1932 convention. Only six States—Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Pennsylvania—are entitled to the extra delegates next year, since Hoover carried only these in 1932.

R. B. Creager, national committeeman for Texas, is understood to be planning a fight for continuation of the 1932 apportionment. If he loses, there will be at least 102 fewer delegates at the next convention than in 1932. There were 1,154 then.

Chicago, Kansas City and Cleveland are ready to bid for the convention, Chairman Henry P. Fletcher said, with some others likely to compete.

The committee will elect a vice-chairman to succeed Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky, resigned, and fill committee vacancies in eight States.

Fletcher hopes to conclude the slate of business in one day, although a night session may be necessary.

Corn-Fed Fish

Carp Steals Ducks' Food; Well, Anyway . . .

This might well be taken as just another fish story, except that C. Marshall Finnan, its sponsor, has documentary proof.

Finnan, who is superintendent of National Capital parks, yesterday told reporters of a good-sized carp that eats corn set out on the bank for wild ducks at Roaches Run, the Government's bird refuge on the Mount Vernon Memorial highway shortly below Washington Airport.

"You don't believe?" he came back, as eyebrows went up. "Well, look at this."

View at Geneva Seems to Doom Plan for Peace

The British delegation authorized the Associated Press to say that it does not consider the plan "an ideal solution," but that it is merely an attempt at conciliation.

A protest was received by the League from Premier Mussolini that Ethiopians are abusing use of the Red Cross emblem.

"If the Ethiopian medical formations wish to avoid any risk," said the note, "they must place themselves at a sufficient distance from the military objectives and remain completely isolated."

Rome Hopes Fading.

Rome, Nov. 13 (AP).—Terms of an Anglo-French peace plan offering Benito Mussolini sovereignty or control over nearly two-thirds of Ethiopia formally were disclosed tonight, but hopes for peace in Africa shrank somewhat as Italians realized the concessions fell short of many unofficial porecasts.

Il Duce's official spokesman, giving out the text of the Franco-British scheme, betrayed no enthusiasm for it. He said merely it was being "examined with care."

Many Fascists looked at the map and recalled their dictator's warning against "excessive optimism."

Although the proposals would give Italy absolute sovereignty or predominant control over some 150,000 square miles, many territorial lines seemed vague and Italians were in doubt about others.

The oil concession obtained from Emperor Haile Selassie by Francis J. Rickett, British promoter, appeared to cut the props from what seemed the biggest prize in the vast zone of Italian influence proffered by the plan.

In this zone, running across Ethiopia south of Addis Ababa, Italy would be accorded all economic rights, "except" what already have been granted to others.

Covers Wide Area.

Rickett's franchise, some commented, would seem to cover much of the prospective zone of influence.

(Although the Rickett oil concession was relinquished by American oil interests at the urging of the American State Department, Emperor Haile Selassie recently said he was confident the original concessionnaires eventually would fulfill all its terms. The concession embraces the whole eastern half of Ethiopia and includes the oil fields of Jijiga, in the south, and Aussa, to the east.)

Under the proposals, Italy would get the eastern part of Tigre Province, which she now holds, including the northern cities of Aduwa and Makale.

Through boundary "rectification," she also would gain the Ogaden region in the south.

Rights of colonization and development would be granted in one of the most fertile sections of the Dark Kingdom, which would remain under Ethiopian sovereignty, but would have an adviser who might or might not be an Italian.

The active administration in this zone of influence would be through an Italian-privileged company with exclusive economic rights, but the company would be obliged to recognize existing property rights.

Ethiopia would get restoration of the Holy City of Aksum and adjacent territory in western Tigre province to link the sacred city with her empire proper; a seaport, possibly Assab, in Eritrea, with a road to it and a League of Nations commission to help the Emperor run his empire.

No member of this commission could be a citizen of any other interested power.

These things Italy would not get:

1. Western Tigre, which she already has annexed.
2. A strip connecting Eritrea with Italian Somaliland.
3. The Danakil or Aussa regions.
4. Any economic or political influence in Ethiopia outside the conceded areas.

Some unofficial sources gave much credit to Pope Pius for the Anglo-French proposals. The Vatican's skill and the power and prestige of its world-wide diplomatic network largely influenced decisions that might end the Ethiopian conflict, these persons said.

The peace proposals were offered to Il Duce with the expressed hope of a speedy reply. He was urged to accept them as a basis for discussion without prejudice to a final settlement.

It also was suggested that the League of Nations Committee of Five handle the settlement.

Il Duce, showing no outward jubilation over what many had regarded as a tremendous political victory, whipped up his Fascists to sterner efforts to resist the League's economic siege and sent more troops to the front.

25-Year Search Ends in Morgue

Daughters Claim Body of Wealthy Recluse.

By the Associated Press.

Christman leaves an estate of $40,000, all bequeathed to his four children. He was 74.

An automobile hit him Sunday and left him lying in the street. His body lay three days in the morgue, unclaimed.

Mystery still beclouds the reason for his disappearance. His friends never knew he had a family, and his wealth came as a surprise to them after his safety deposit box had been opened.

The daughters, Miss Susan Christman and Miss Edith Christman, said their mother died in 1931.

5 Admit $35,000 Gem Holdup; Charge Frameup by Ex-Convict

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney today announced five men had confessed complicity in a $35,000 jewel robbery planned by a former convict to win distinction as a trapper of thieves.

The prosecutor said all facts relating to the Loop holdup last Sunday would be brought out when the prisoners were arraigned tomorrow.

Those held are Meyer Bogue, former convict whose name has been linked officially with that of John Dillinger and who is accused of inspiring the crime; James (Lefty) Brezak, paroled last year from the Indiana State Penitentiary; Harry Malin, Patrick Sullivan and Frank Pishaw, jewelry firm employe named as the "finger man."

Questioning by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty brought out that Bogue, an investigator for a jewelers' association, planned the robbery and engineered the arrests of his confederates.

Milton Jackson, New York jewel salesman, was the victim. The State pointed to Brezak, Malin and Sullivan as perpetrators of the actual robbery.

In his statement to Dougherty, Bogue said he took the loot to the office of Postal Inspector J. R. McWhorter Sunday night after communicating with him and William Schlossman, head of the Jewelers Association.

Authorities described Bogue as the witness who was to testify Dillinger was in Florida at the time he allegedly slew a policeman in East Chicago, Ind.

opinions of the American press, extracts of which were printed in London.

Kate Courtney, who was presiding, described the situation as "disastrous, alarming, amazing and dismaying. It is a tragic episode of British history, one making us all uncomfortable and ashamed," she said.

Defending Baldwin, the Evening News declared a battle of realists versus idealists is raging. "It must be clear to everybody," the News said, "that Mr. Baldwin is aware of the terrible gravity of the situation."

In his speech Atlee declared "the people are indignant at the stain placed upon the reputation of the country.

"The suggestion that the terms embody merely an exchange of territory is ludicrous. The shock extends to people in different political parties of widely separated viewpoints.

"A parallel case would be if England suffered an aggression from France and terms were suggested whereby France would receive the non-Anglo-Saxon parts of the island, that is to say Wales and Scotland, in exchange for building a channel tunnel."

Knox Predicts 34-Billion Debt By End of Year

60% Rise in U. S. Loan Laid to Roosevelt Solvency Speech Assailed.

By the Associated Press.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 13.—Col. Frank Knox hit President Roosevelt's recent solvency speech at Atlanta by predicting tonight that the end of this fiscal year would see the nation saddled with an unprecedented public debt of $34,000,000,000.

Such a rise, the Chicago publisher, frequently mentioned as a Republican presidential possibility in 1936, told Worcester County Republican women, would approximate a 60 per cent increase during the incompleted first term of the President.

He assailed Rooseveltian "spending" and quoted freely from the President's Atlanta speech in support of his thesis.

Quotes Solvency Claim.

There Roosevelt said, quoted Knox, "'We are once more in the black. In 1933 we were insolvent. Today we are solvent.'

"Then," Knox added, "in the same speech he went on to say that in 1933 we had a debt of $21,000,000,000 (and, by the way, the correct figure was several hundred million dollars less than that) and he further admitted that on the day of his speech the debt had increased to more than $29,000,000,000.

"But he avoided the additional fact that by the end of the present fiscal year the debt will be $35,000,000,000."

"Debt Not Solvency."

Knox charged the President "in other words assured the American people that by getting further into debt they were getting further out of it.

Improvement can come, he declared, only "through work and through lower cost in government, not by merely 'lowering deficits' as President Roosevelt promised to do in Atlanta," but "by 'stopping the deficits' as Candidate Roosevelt promised to do if elected."

Ways of improving American life, Knox said, ought to include: Return to a balanced budget, removal of all doubt of the future integrity of the dollar, a return to the gold standard, restoration to American citizens of their right to engage in private enterprise and stoppage of the Government's entrance into competition with its own taxpayers.

Plans for Mining In Ethiopia Told

Promoter With 'Concession' Predicts Work Soon.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 13.—Leo Chertok, American promoter who lays claim to a concession in Ethiopia, returned from London today and announced his company, financed by British capital, will begin mining for gold, silver and platinum in Walega Province within 60 days.

"There may be oil as well," Chertok said.

He explained he had no direct word from the American State Department on his plans to develop the territory.

Chertok accompanied Lij Zaphiro, secretary to the Etihopian Legation in London, who said he came here to raise a Christmas fund for his countrymen.

The promoter said he did not expect any trouble in developing his mining concessions on the border of the British Sudan despite the Italian invasion.

Anna Ware Will Gain Custody Of 'Gift of God' Baby by Xmas

Court of Appeals Approves Findings in Disputed Parentage Case.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Dec. 13.—St. Louis' controversial "gift of God" baby probably will be Anna Ware's most cherished Christmas present.

Unless legal snarls cause delay, the boy, ruled the child of the 19-year-old unwed Pennsylvania servant girl by court order, will be delivered to Miss Ware before the holiday.

The St. Louis Court of Appeals today approved the findings of a special commissioner, Rush H. Limbaugh, that the child claimed both by the domestic and Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, 44-year-old former St. Louis society matron, was that of Miss Ware.

Limbaugh made his report after conducting a habeas corpus hearing in which Miss Ware sought return of the child she alleged was being held in the home of Mrs. Muench and her physician husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, who sought to "palm it off" as their own.

The commissioner declared, in his report, Mrs. Muench, childless for more than 20 years before she announced the birth of a son as a "gift from God" last August 18, never bore a child. He asserted she announced the birth to gain sympathy from a jury which later tried and acquitted her of kidnap conspiracy charges.

The Muenches, Wilfred Jones, attorney, and Mrs. Helen Berroyer, respondents in the suit, all filed exceptions to Limbaugh's report. All were overruled by the three-judge court, which granted the four until 5 p. m. next Wednesday to move for a rehearing.

Indicted for perjury in connection with his testimony at the hearing, Jones today pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for February.

Judge Studies Appeal To Bar Employe Vote

Chief Justice A. A. Wheat in the District Supreme Court last night took under advisement a request of the Shopmen's Association of the Atlantic Coast Line to prevent the National Mediation Board from enforcing its ruling that another election of the employes should be held so that alleged company influence could be abolished.

The board ordered a second election after charges were made that the first election had been unduly influenced by the company and that its results were not truly representative of the employes' wishes.

G. W. Constantine Rites Will Be Held Today

Funeral services for George W. Constantine, 80, former plant superintendent for the Swift Packing Co., in Chicago, and a resident of Washington since 1918, will be held at Gawler's undertaking establishment today at 2:30 p. m., followed by burial in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Constantine died Thursday at his home, 2615 Wisconsin avenue, after a long illness. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Harriet Bairstow, and a grand-daughter, Josephine Bairstow.

U. S. Refuses Part In Flogging Probe

Thomas' Request in Tampa Case Is Denied.

By the Associated Press.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 13.—The United States Department of Justice refused today to enter into the investigation of the flogging death of Joseph Shoemaker, organizer of unemployed workers in Tampa.

Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney General, announced in Washington the department had declined a request from Norman Thomas, Socialist party leader, for a Federal inquiry. Keenan said there was no Federal question involved.

In Tampa, President Wendell C. Heath, of the Florida Federation of Labor, said he was convinced organized labor had no part in the occurrence.

Heaton said he would inform President Green there was no occasion to withdraw the 1936 convention of the American Federation of Labor from Tampa, which Green had threatened unless the floggers were brought to justice.

AAA Is Aiming To Save Setup If Law Is Voided

Court Defeat May Prompt Call to Farmers to Stand by Pending Change.

By the Associated Press

An AAA strategy board yesterday pondered moves intended to stave off a collapse of the adjustment machinery should a Supreme Court decision wipe out its constitutional foundation.

Contemplated steps in the event of an adverse ruling, one official said, might include a call to farmers to stand by for prompt drafting of a new form of AAA, drawn to the lines of the high tribunal's decision. It was explained that farmers might be urged to continue compliance or at least not to abandon their contract immediately.

Estimates have been made that approximately $500,000,000 remains unpaid on the 1935 contracts.

New long-term wheat, tobacco, corn-hog, rye and cotton programs will be under way by mid-January, when officials said they believe the Supreme Court decision might be made. By that date, farmers already will have complied in part with the adjustment requirements of at least the wheat and corn-hog contracts.

Concern has been expressed in high quarters that if the AAA were held invalid, farmers who have signed 1936 contracts might consider them nullified. There would be, one official said privately, little incentive for a farmer to reduce his cotton, corn or wheat acreage if no source was in sight for benefit payments.

This condition, it was said, might result in a complete breakdown of several major programs, particularly cotton. Cotton planting would begin within a few weeks of the expected time of the court ruling.

If the AAA were smashed, an official said, cotton farmers might plant their full acreage instead of taking a reduction of from 30 to 45 per cent as provided in the 1936 contracts unless something were done.

20,000,000-Volt Gun Ready to 'Shoot' Atom

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—A submerged concrete bed in the basement of the Columbia University physics laboratory was prepared today for installation of one of the world's most powerful atom-smashing guns, created from discarded U. S. Navy apparatus.

With energies of 15,000,000 volts, and power to build up voltages as high as 20,000,000 it will be fired against the citadel of the atom—its inner core, or nucleus.

The atom-cannon will consist of a gigantic electro-magnet weighing 130,000 pounds which was used until last year in the Navy's high-power radio transmitting station at Annapolis.

Dr. Salvemini Next Speaker At Town Hall

'Dictatorship' Is Tomorrow's Topic for Italian Intellectual.

An Italian intellectual, whose support of democratic government resulted in his being imprisoned shortly after Mussolini came into power, will be the Town Hall speaker at the Shoreham tomorrow night. He is Dr. Gaetano Salvemini, a member of the Italian Parliament from 1919 to 1921.

"The Ways of Dictatorship" will be the subject of Dr. Salvemini, recently visiting professor at Harvard, Yale and Columbia universities. Before leaving his homeland in 1925, he taught history in the universities of Pisa, Messina and Florence.

Members of the panel, as announced yesterday by Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan, Town Hall director, will be Lothrop Stoddard, Frederic Howe, Frank N. Trager and John Tillema. The last two are college professors. Stoddard is a writer and lecturer, and Howe is special economic adviser to the Secretary of Agriculture.

The speaker December 22 will be Andre Siegfried, French economist. His topic is "The French Conception of Democracy Facing a Dictatorship Wave."

4 Bank Suits For Philippine Cash Dropped

O'Connor Action Seen as Aid to Creditors, Depositors in Closed Firms.

Creditors and depositors of two closed Washington banks, the District National and the Commercial National, yesterday were unofficially informed their chances of securing additional dividends from the banks had materially increased with the action of the Comptroller of the Currency in withdrawing four suits connected with the Philippine Island funds.

The funds, it was shown, were on deposit in the banks and were covered by collateral guarantees. When the banks failed, the deposits were paid in full while other creditors obtained only fractional payments.

The depositors claimed the banks were not authorized by their charters to guarantee any deposits and a recent ruling by the United States Supreme Court tended to sustain the contention. The action yesterday was, in effect, that the War Department, trustee of the funds, would hold the fully paid deposits intact pending a final settlement of the question of whether the department should refund a certain amount of money so all depositors would be on equal footing.

Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor announced all suits seeking an injunction to prevent disbursement of the funds would be agreed to until such time as the court has determined which parties were entitled to the money. The suits were filed just before the islands were given their sovereignty, the theory being that no such suits could be enforced against the islands unless they were filed prior to independence.

Business Profits Best Since 1930

Last Quarter Little Affected by Usual Fall Slack.

By the United Press.

Reports to the Department of Commerce last night indicated that business profits in October, November and December will exceed those of any similar period since 1930.

The usual business slack at the close of the year, it was reported, has not greatly affected industrial activity this year. Retail sales forecast the heaviest Christmas trade in five years.

Railroads and public utilities will report increased earnings for the year, it was said. Meantime, the American Association of Railroads announced carloadings for the week ended December 7 reached 637,133 cars, an increase of 66,706 over last week, and 85,648 over the same week in 1934.

Lunacy Board FreedKoussow, Slayer of Two

LaGuardia Headed Agency Which Adjudged Him Sane 8 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Victor Koussow, the quarrelsome laboratory worker, who shot to death two dental school professors, wounded another, and then killed himself, was released eight years ago after examination by a lunacy commission, records disclosed tonight.

The examination was occasioned by Koussow's arrest on charges of distributing libelous diatribes against several Russian individuals and groups.

Serving as chairman of the commission which adjudged Koussow sane was Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, then a practicing lawyer.

Was Called Unstable.

Dr. Perry Lichtenstein, member of the commission and now medical expert in the district attorney's office, declared at the time that Koussow was psychopathic, erratic and entirely unstable.

Tonight the district attorney's office made public the letter found on Koussow's body Wednesday in the Columbia Presbyterian medical center shortly after the double murder and suicide.

Koussow wrote it Wednesday, addressing it to the district attorney's office.

Announced Intent.

It read in part:

"Tomorrow I am going to speak with Dr. Arthur T. Rowe, associate dean of dental school of Columbia University. If results of my conversations will not be satisfactory I am going to kill him.

"I will try my best to kill 3 or 4 persons more and then, to my sorrow, I must pay my own life—to commit suicide."

Bullets fired by Koussow killed Dr. Rowe and Prof. Paul B. Wilberg, associate professor of dentistry, and wounded Dr. William H. Crawford, another associate professor. Then he ended his own life in a corridor of the medical center building.

"Four years I am working in the school and all that time these persons made from my work a real torture," the letter continued. "My health is destroid by ten bad conditions mostly through Dr. Rowe. I cannot tolerate longer."

$1,000 Diamond Lost by Attorney

Rutherford B. H. Lyon Reports Unique Ring Gone.

A $1,000 diamond ring, the only piece of jewelry he ever wore, was believed lost last night by Rutherford B. H. Lyon, local lawyer, resident of the Shoreham.

Twenty-five years ago his wife gave him the ring, which was designed by his brother-in-law, Charles A. Goldsmith.

Riding in his car, Lyon suddenly noticed the ring was gone. It may have been lost on the way from the Shoreham to the Elks Club, or back. Unique in design, it is made of platinum, set with three diamonds, onyx between the stones.

There will be a tree and gifts of clothing, toys, fruit and candy. An orchestra will furnish music for the Christmas carol singing and a lunch will be served.

Cuban Military Chiefs To Quiz American Pilot

Matanzas, Cuba, Dec. 13 (AP).—Orders were received by military authorities here tonight to send Charles J. Wellstead, American, whose plane fell in Matanzas Bay today, to Military City, army headquarters at Havana.

The pilot said he was blown off his course en route from Miami to Key West. He was injured when the plane fell into the bay.

United States Consul Milton Patterson held a long talk with Wellstead, who was detained by military authorities. Consul Patterson would make no statement. Wellstead was detained tentatively because he had no entry papers.

As Lawyer Pleaded for New Trial for Edith

Here is the crowded courtroom as Defense Attorney A. A. Skeen argued the appeal of Edith Maxwell for a new trial. On the bench is his distant kinsman, Judge A. A. Skeen, of the Wise County court.

Family Money Exhausted, Edith Must Depend on Campaign.

Attorneys of the mountain girl, sentenced to 25 years in prison for the death of her father, will carry their fight to this court.

But the funds of Edith's family are exhausted. There is no money to pay for her chance for real justice and freedom.

While her brother, Earl, is employed, he is on leave of absence and is staying with her helping to direct the fight.

But The Washington Post will carry on its fund for her defense. With the money sent in it will undertake to pay for legal advice and other expenses of her appeal.

It will be this fund that will play the major part in making her appeal from the conviction with its 25-year sentence.

Big Offers Claimed By Jafsie in Case

$250,000 Offered to Save Hauptmann, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

Newton, Mass., Dec. 13.—Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder investigation, today declared he had declined offers of from $10,000 to $250,000 to intercede for Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

"I have been approached several times with offers of sums—really great sums—if I would go to the authorities to have Hauptmann taken off that death sentence," the elderly former English teacher declared. "One man, in fact, approached me, and afterward the offers ranged from $10,000 to $250,000."

Condon added he believed the German guilty of the crime and that he would not favor commutation of his sentence.

Regional Basis Urged For Planning Agencies

The national resources committee, engaged in planning a permament program of natural resources development, recommended yesterday that planning agencies be decentralized and set up on a regional basis.

A sub-committee, consisting of Dr. John M. Gaus, University of Wisconsin; Dr. Marshall E. Dimock, University of Chicago; Jacob L. Crane, planning consultant of the State governments of Wisconsin and Michigan, and Dr. George T. Renner, of the national resources committee staff, made the suggestion.

Evidence of Prejudiced Jury Claimed by Edith's Defenders

By Virginia Lee Warren,
A Staff Correspondent.

Wise, Va., Dec. 13.—Evidence designed to show prejudice in the jury which convicted Edith Maxwell, 21-year-old school teacher, of the murder of her father, has been unearthed for presentation to the Virginia Court of Appeals.

In a desperate attempt to save his sister from 25 years in the State penitentiary, Earl Maxwell has been combing the mountainside for the evidence which, he hopes, will bring ultimate freedom for his sister.

His efforts were finally crowned with success, he believes, by locating two Wise, Va., residents who are willing to tell their stories. These tales, which are bruited about the countryside faster than the radio could transmit them, may bring freedom to the girl now languishing in the county jail.

Before the trial the juror is reputed to have told the Wise County men that he was convinced of the guilt of the girl in murdering her father, when she struck him with a slipper while resisting an attack with a butcher knife. The attack was caused by her father's Trigg Maxwell's resentment against her return home one midnight last July.

"If you got an opinion you ain't supposed to serve on the jury," the men told him.

Statement Quoted.

"That don't make no difference," the prospective juror said. "This is a goin' to be the biggest trial's ever happened in the County and I'm goin' to have the honor of settin' on the jury what tries her."

The man did have the "honor" of "a settin" on the jury and brought in the verdict that shocked the outside world, which does not believe that parental tyranny should be the accepted order of things nor that there is anything morally wrong in a girl staying out until "nigh on midnight."

The stories of the two witnesses will be incorporated in the petition which defense attorneys, Robert P. Bruce and A. A. Skeen, will present to the higher court in January in an effort to reverse the conviction.

The brother, Earl, who is the closest confident of the girl who violated the mountain code by "astrikin'" her pappy, has also felt the mountaineers' resentment against new-fangled ideas.

Receives Hints.

Veiled threats are cast to him in conversation with persons with whom he was reared in the hills. Suggestions are made that he shouldn't be doing so much for the sister he is trying to free.

Earl also has absorbed the customs of the outside world, having been away from home for 15 years, working as a salesman in New York and Chicago.

"People are sayin'," Earl was told, "that you oughter be ridden out a town on a board."

The mountaineers resent his speech, because he doesn't have their dialect, and they resent his fight to free his sister.

Because he attended the trial wearing a new suit, they said, "He's agetting rich off'n his pappy's death."

Firm in Resolve.

In spite of the dislike of his former friends and boyhood playmates, he remains firm in his resolve that he will stake his all to break the locks that hold his sister in jail.

In the hope that a new trial will be granted, Earl has laid the basis for the introduction of new evidence. He wants to have a chemical analysis made of the slipper, which the defense contended the girl had used in defending herself against the attack of her father.

This, he believes, will show the truth of the girl's story and will disprove the innuendoes bandied about the countryside and before the jury that she had struck him with a smoothing iron.

Although the iron was never admitted in evidence, it was paraded before the jury, and was in conformity with the rumors that filled the mountains that Edith had "done in her dad" with an iron that busted his skull in 11 places." Only lacerations were found on the skull by the doctors, who performed the autopsy.

Rumors spread through this region like forest fires and are accepted with the same reality. That is why attorneys believe that the presence of the iron in front of the jury had a prejudicial effect upon the girl's case.

Also, rumors against the girl's character were glibly passed from lip to lip, and yet, nothing specifically against her character has been found.

Anyone asked for a fact to bolster their defamation of her reputation say, "she jes had that about her."

So far no one has been able to define the meaning of "that," and bolster their arguments with, "Anyway, that's the way people are a talkin'."

Week of Jan. 13 Fixed for Death Of Hauptmann

aside by the application to the Court of Errors and Appeals for a new trial.

Previously the Hauptmann attorneys had said they would appeal to the Court of Pardons as soon as a new death date was set.

Gov. Hoffman, in his statement, explained his interest in the case and replied to criticism directed at him because of his action.

Eight weeks ago, on the night of October 17, the Governor secretly visited Hauptmann in the death house of State Prison. That was eight days after the Court of Errors and Appeals had affirmed the verdict of the eight men and four women of Hunterdon County who convicted Hauptmann.

Why, he asked today, is "it reprehensible for the Governor" to do what he did? To which he gave his own answer:

"It's a matter of duty as well as right to examine into every phase to convince the public that full justice has been done—whether it is for or against Hauptmann."

He said he did not question the verdict or the death sentence, but indicated there was some evidence presented by Ellis H. Parker, Burlington County detective chief, to raise doubt in his mind as to whether the verdict at Flemington "wrote finis."

Moreover, the Governor said, he does not think it inconsistent with his duty as a member of the Court of Pardons to take an active interest in the case. He denied he was motivated by a desire for publicity or that he had stirred Parker to act.

Silver Declines One Cent More; Price Now 60¾

Confusion Continues; U.S. Held Hurting Taxpayer, Other Nations.

Silver prices dropped another cent at New York yesterday as quotations were fixed at 60¾ cents an ounce, the lowest since last March 29. Silver prices declined 4⅝ cents this week.

Whether the Treasury made any purchases yesterday was not revealed, but London brokers were able to fix a price, about one cent lower than the previous day. Confusion over the Treasury's silver policy, created early in the week when it ceased its daily purchases in the London market, has not been cleared up.

Meanwhile, the Administration's silver program was subjected to a sharp attack in an article in The Annalist, one of the country's leading financial journals, published yesterday.

This article, which is a review of the American silver program and was written by Percy Barbour, contended that instead of this country's silver policy aiding China, it wrecked her equilibrium; instead of increasing silver coinage throughout the world, it drove China off the silver standard, compelled Mexico to withdraw silver coinage because the melting value of the coin exceeded its face value, compelled Peru to prohibit exportation of silver bars and coins and compelled Italy to withdraw silver from circulation.

Barbour estimated that the cost of this program, designed "to do something for the silver bloc" in Congress, to the American taxpayer in the 10 months which ended May 31, last, was $122,234,130 but that of this sum only $7,440,530 was "presented to domestic silver miners, leaving $114,793,600 which was presented to foreign miners and foreign speculators and some Washington speculators."

He did not identify the "Washington speculators" he had in mind.

Barbour estimated that the Treasury, to achieve the three-to-one ratio with gold established by Congress as the objective of the silver purchasing program, would have to acquire 1,300,000,000 ounces more of silver metal. He held that "there is not that much silver visible in the world markets."

State to Probe Liggett's Death Minus U. S. Aid

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Dec. 13.—Minnesota investigators pushed on alone along the cold trail of Walter Liggett's killer today after the Federal Government declined to supervise the inquiry.

Word from Attorney General Cummings that Government officers could not assume "investigative jurisdiction," but would tender full use of its crime laboratories prompted a conference of State officials.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson, who promised the publisher's widow every effort would be made to "apprehend his murderers" and Minnesota's attorney general, H. H. Peterson, considered next steps in the search for the assassins. Peterson announced later he would delay until tomorrow a reply to Cummings' rejection of State and local requests that Federal officials take over the task.

As bereaved family and friends paid final respects to the slain newspaperman, the Legislature was called on, in a resolution emanating from opposition to Gov. Olson, to vote a $50,000 appropriation for "a sweeping inquiry of vice and corruption in government" in Minnesota.

The city council spurred the hunt for the slayers by authorizing a $2,500 reward. The county board contributed another $500.

Two developments were announced by authorities. Police said Mrs. H. A. Van Wold, a neighbor, told them she saw the salyer's car dash out of the darkened alley where the militant publisher was ambushed Monday night.

The finding of an unexplained .45-caliber cartridge in an apartment near Liggett's home was also reported.

After private investigators asserted the Federal crime laboratories had confirmed that Liggett was slain with a .45-caliber submachine gun, police retracted previous denials they had received such information from Washington.

Man Unable to Write Accused of Forgery

Richmond, Va., Dec. 13 (AP).—Police Court Justice Elben C. Folkes had a puzzle to handle today.

Can a man who cannot write his own name be accused of forging someone else's?

Arthur Lightfoot, Negro, was arraigned before the justice accused of "forgery" by placing "his mark" to the name of another Negro on a bail bond. Defense attorneys declared the charge impossible.

K.R. Kingsbury, California Company's Head, Got $136,418.

By the Associated Press.

The Securities Commission yesterday made public reports showing that Standard Oil Co. of California paid ten officers and directors a total of more than $500,000 in salaries last fiscal year.

About 200 companies, including Standard of California, have filed certain information under the securities law, arguing that it should be held "confidential." Overruling this plea, the commission is now making it public.

K. R. Kingsbury, of San Francisco, president of Standard, with a $136,418 salary, topped the list of those whose annual compensation was disclosed in 20 reports yesterday.

Reynolds' $101,609.

Closely approaching his mark was the $101,609.35 listed by the Reynolds Metals Co., New York City, for R. S. Reynolds as its president and director and as director in two subsidiary companies. This included a $57,230.57 bonus, charged to 1934 earnings but not paid until 1935.

Salaries reported by Standard included: Oscar Sutro, vice president, $90,987; W. H. Berg, vice president, $54,596; H. D. Collier, vice president, $54,546; R. W. Hanna, vice president, $54,546; M. E. Lombardi, director, $45,556; J. H. Tuttle, director and secretary, $31,924; G. E. Kennedy, director, $36,366; A. S. Russell, director, $31,824, and R. K. Davies, director, $36,366. All are of San Francisco.

Laclede Steel Sales.

Standard also reported paying $127,507 last fiscal year to Pillsbury, Madison and Sutro as legal counsel.

The largest business done in the year ended December 31, 1934, by companies who included such data in reports published yesterday, was shown for the Laclede Steel Co., St. Louis. Its net sales were set at $3,567,584.89. After figuring cost of sales at $2,936,485.76, depreciation and other items at $357,884.68 income deductions of $145,582.06, and taxes the company reported net income of $115,309.18.

The Savage Arms Corporation, New York City, reported for 1934 total sales, less returns, of $2,336,662.48, and net sales of $2,240,564.10. The cost of goods sold was put at $1,848,447.72.

McNeil Is Given From 8 Months To Four Years

Letts Ignores Impassioned Appeal in Sentencing Park Bank Officer.

Turning a deaf ear to one of the most stirring pleas for leniency ever heard in the District Supreme Court, Justice F. Dickerson Letts yesterday sentenced Benedict M. McNeil, one-time assistant cashier of the ill-fated Park Savings Bank, to serve not less than eight months nor more than four years on charges of conspiring to embezzle $50,000 and to steal a like amount from the bank.

McNeil was indicted with his father, Alexander McNeil, a real estate operator, and Robert Stunz, former executive officer of the bank. Shortly after the indictment the elder McNeil died, and Stunz killed himself in the basement of his home after national bank examiners had denied the bank permission to reopen.

In his own behalf, McNeil denied any wrongdoing in connection with the bank. He did testify, however, that on one occasion he wagered a large sum of money on a horse race with money he borrowed from the bank.

Pocketed Winnings.

He pocketed the winnings, he said, but overlooked paying back what he had borrowed. On another occasion, he admitted, he had played the stock market with funds from the bank, had won handsomely, and had again neglected to repay the bank funds he used.

Describing McNeil's father as a most "holy" man, Robert H. McNeil, who acted as attorney for Bishop James Cannon, jr., when he was tried in the local court on a charge of conspiring to violate the corrupt practices act, told Justice Letts that McNeil had seven members of his family serving as nuns, and one was the Archbishop of the Dominion of Canada.

McNeil, the attorney, became acquainted with the other McNeils through a similarity of names. There is no relationship.

No Relationship.

Drawing a picture of the then youthful McNeil entering the service of the once highly thought of Park Savings Bank, McNeil said that the former assistant cashier had become "the supporting arm of four sisters and one brother."

He intimated the younger McNeil's association with Stunz had led to his downfall. Stunz, it was shown, was believed to have embezzled over $1,500,000 from the bank and had made "bad loans" aggregating $1,000,000 more. The bank was closed with little prospect that the depositors and creditors would realize more than a small percentage on their claims.

Nazi Cabinet Tightens Regulation of Doctors

Berlin, Dec. 13 (AP).—The German cabinet today passed laws tightening state regulation of doctors, outlining their professional obligations and establishing a federal doctors' chamber.

Details of the laws were not announced.

Steps also were taken to regulate electricity, apparently in line with the announcement last September by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics, of state supervision of all German electric power plants for "protective" purposes.

Children's Colds Should Have This Safe Treatment
IT AVOIDS CONSTANT "DOSING"

There's nothing like a child's cold to upset a young mother. And mothers of two generations, anxious to help end colds, have depended on Vicks VapoRub. It is effective—external—and safe. It avoids the risks of constant "dosing," so often upsetting to children's delicate digestions.
Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once:
1. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster—
2. By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, released by body heat and breathed in direct to inflamed air-passages.
Continuing through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—eases difficult breathing—helps break congestion.
A Practical Guide for Mothers
Each year, more and more families are being helped to fewer colds and shorter colds by Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan has been clinically tested by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of the Plan in each package of Vicks VapoRub.

Japanese Hold Gate to Chahar, Veil Intention

Arrival of 20 Bus Loads of Soldiers at Kalgan Stirs Speculation.

By the Associated Press.

Kalgan, Chahar Province (Saturday) Dec. 14.—The populace and Chinese soldiery of this gateway to China's northwest gaped in silent wonderment today as a small detachment of Japanese troops peacefully "invaded" the city.

Their starting point and their destination was a mystery, but arrival of twenty Japanese buses from Peiping caused some to think they may be making an expedition into the interior.

(Dispatches from Tientsin yesterday said high Japanese officers formulated a new policy toward the semi-autonomous regime in Chahar and Hopei provinces of north China, involving a sharp increase in Japanese army forces in the area and close collaboration with the new set-up.)

Peiping 116 Miles Away.

(Kalgan, ancient capital of Chahar Province, is just south of the Great Wall on the Hopei-Chahar border and only 116 miles northwest of Peiping.)

It was the first appearance of Japanese armed forces here, but not a shot was fired and not a voice was lifted in protest.

The "invasion" generally was viewed here as a manifestation of Japan's military determination to control strategic centers and thus clinch its hold on north China.

Settlement Reached.

Fighting which raged earlier in the week near Kuyuan in southeastern Chahar Province between a Manchukuoan army and special police had lulled. It was reported a settlement, involving installation of Mongol police in the disputed frontier territory, had been reached.

(In Shanghai, the Japanese press charged Saturday that the Peiping American-supported universities, Yenching and Tsinghau, were responsible for recent student demonstrations against northern autonomy. Additional manifestations were carried out by Shanghai intellectuals and students, who urged suppression of the autonomy movement and armed resistance to aggression.)

Man Kills Officer, Wounds 3 in Fight

Coast Shooting Is Laid to Girl's Departure.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburg, Calif., Dec. 13.—One policeman was shot to death and three other officers were wounded in a gun fight today with a man they declared became enraged after losing the affections of his girl. The man, Luciano Garcia Sanchez, was shot nine times by the officers and was reported dying.

Policeman John Buckley, 38, was shot through the heart.

Capt. Dan Moneil said Sanchez was embittered because Mary Quesada had returned to Watsonville, Calif. Moneil said the man went to a poolroom on the main street here last night.

He fired a shot into the floor and then went into the street with the gun in his hand.

Officers Buckley and Chris Maze started in pursuit. The shooting began when they called to Sanchez to surrender.

The wounded are:

Deputy Sheriff Sal Jimno, shot in the left arm; Maze, wounded in the right arm, and Moneil, shot through the right arm.

Farley Is Grateful For Early Gift Mailing

By the Associated Press.

Postmaster General Farley congratulated the public last night on its early-mailing-for Christmas.

"I am most grateful to the mailing public for their united response to my recent appeal that they do their Christmas shopping and mailing early in order to avoid last-minute delays," he said in a statement.

"This co-operation has enabled the movement of the mails to remain at a normal pace and I want to again enlist your support and co-operation."

Roosevelt Odds For Re-election Slump to 7 to 5

Digest Ballot, Indicating His Policies Unpopular, Is Held Reason.

By the United Press.

New York, Dec. 13.—Betting odds favoring re-election of President Roosevelt in 1936 dropped another point on Wall Street tonight as the latest tabulation of the Literary Digest's national straw vote indicated a further decline in New Deal support.

Ryan and Co., betting commissioners, quoted 7 to 5 that the President would be re-elected, as compared with odds of 8 to 5 a week ago. The firm said reports from their representatives over the country convinced them the increasingly adverse straw vote was responsible for the shortening odds.

Today's Digest tabulation of 642,711 ballots, covering partial returns from 26 states, was divided 42.76 in favor of New Deal acts and policies to date, against 57.24 opposed to the administration.

States Favorable.

Seven Southern states voted for the New Deal, the others showing a majority of "no" votes. The magazine reported that the farm belt states of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan were three to two anti-New Deal.

Anti-New Deal sentiment climbed steadily the past three weeks, according to the Digest poll. The first poll report showed 53.28 against the New Deal, a week later the figure was announced at 55.89 opposed to the Administration, nearly 2 points lower than today's percentage.

"Unfair," Farley Says.

Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley has called the Digest poll unfair, charging the question asked, "Do you now approve of the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" implies a negative answer, and in any event is not a poll of whom the electorate will vote for next year.

Little change was announced by Ryan & Co. today in betting odds on Republican Presidential possibilities. Retaining the same order of a week ago, with one exception, the odds leaders were:

Gov. Alfrd Landon of Kansas, even money he would not be nominated; Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, 7 to 5 against nomination; Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, newcomer to the betting list, 2½ to 1 against nomination, and Herbert Hoover, 3 to 1 against.

Tobacco Magnate Dies.

By the Associated Press.

Henderson, Ky., Dec. 1.—John W. Hodge, who emigrated from Glasgow, Scotland, 62 years ago to build a tobacco fortune here, died of pneumonia today at 83. At one time he was the country's largest exporter of dark tobacco to the English market.

Famous Dancer's Husband Drowns

Leonora Hughes' Mate Dies as Speedboat Upsets.

By the Associated Press.

Buenos Aires, Dec. 13.—Carlos Ortiz Basualdo, 37, wealthy Argentine who broke up the great dancing team of Maurice and Hughes when he wed Leonora Hughes in 1925, drowned last night. His speedboat overturned in Lake Nahuel Huapi, in the southern Argentine Andes. The mechanic also drowned.

The team of Maurice and Hughes was internationally celebrated. Basualdo fell in love with Leonora Hughes in Paris, followed her to her native America when the team made a triumphant tour and won her.

They were married in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York. Maurice, a Belgian, wept openly in a pew at the wedding which was to break up the team. When she left the altar, the bride bent over and kissed him. Maurice died several years later of tuberculosis. Meanwhile he had married a subsequent dancing partner.

Whipping Post Urged For Penniless Speeders

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 13 (AP).—City Judge R. I. Moore today suggested a whipping post for speeders unable to pay fines.

He told a youth charged with driving at the rate of 55 miles an hour "it would be well if we had a whipping post in city court to punish those who cannot pay fines on speeding charges." When told the boy made $7 a week, the judge reduced his fine to $5.

Millions in Jewels Threatened by Fire

Dealers Held to Save Lives in Exchange Blaze.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 13.—Millions of dollars in diamonds were threatened today by a fire in the cramped, unostentatious building in the Bowery under the Third avenue "L" housing New York's famous diamond exchange.

Several battalions of firemen poured tons of water on the building, limiting damage to around $15,000 and saving the jewels.

Two score diamond dealers, some wringing their hands, were herded by police into a nearby building and placed under guard to prevent them from dashing into the exchange to save their jewelry.

Calles Flies to Mexico, His Plans 'Indefinite'

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (AP).—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, retired "strong man of Mexico," took off in a General Airways of Mexico transport plane early today to return to his native land. He was accompanied by Luis Morones, Mexican labor federation chief; his son, Gustave Calles, and Morones' secretary, Samuel McKelligan.

The former president of Mexico, a question mark in his country's politics since his announced retirement, said his plans were "indefinite," but that he was going either to Mexico City or his ranch properties at Sinaloa.

Stavisky Jurors Win Large Increase in Pay

Paris, Dec. 13 (AP).—Jurors trying the long-drawn-out Stavisky scandal case who threatened yesterday to strike for more pay got it today—a 400 per cent increase.

A decree by the minister of Justice granted the weary jurors 50 francs (about $3.30) a day, instead of the 12½ francs, or 82½ cents, they had been receiving. The trial, in which there are 20 defendants, has been under way a month.

The Postoffice Fire.

As an aftermath of the Postoffice Building fire, official Washington faces some shocking hazards to life and property that have been previously ignored. Congratulations to the Fire Department for its heroic struggle against deadly flames and fumes, without loss of life, must be supplemented by a vigorous condemnation of officials whose negligence has permitted the existence of conditions so dangerous to life and property.

Major factors which contributed to the Postoffice fire may be listed as follows.

No inspection of fire hazards seems to have been made, since the local Fire Department has no authority to inspect Federal buildings.

The fire-trap filing room had no automatic sprinkling system, and the blaze was placed under control only after firemen cut through a stone and cement floor above the raging flames.

Firemen were handicapped because many of them lacked heavy gas masks which alone would have given them protection in the fume-saturated chamber.

Under these conditions it is surprising that greater damage was not done, and that injuries to firemen were not more serious. Conditions responsible for this fire are said to exist in many Federal buildings, new and old. When negligence of this sort is combined with an absence of inspection, only good fortune can save governmental departments from disastrous conflagrations.

By all means Federal establishments should be brought within the orbit of the District fire inspection service. As Commissioner Hazen points out, however, that will necessitate the hiring of new inspectors and consequently an increase in the Federal contribution to the local budget. When emergency precautions have been taken, architectural fire hazards and the maintenance of sufficient fire-fighting equipment in the Mall area may well be considered.

In The Lap Of The Gods.

Everyone who has been following the establishment of the new Philippine Commonwealth is inclined to speculate upon its future. Will the new government lead to complete independence, as contemplated by the present law, or will the Filipinos, after sampling the responsibilities of separate nationhood, seek the continued protection of the United States? That question inevitably arises out of the dramatic birth of a nation into a world so afflicted with unrest and instability. Development of the answer will be followed with keen interest in many countries beside the United States.

The conditions under which the Philippine ship of state is being launched have been admirably summarized in the series of articles by Vicente Albano Pacis appearing on the opposite page this week. In his concluding discussion, today, our Manila correspondent analyzes the Filipino reactions to numerous suggestions that full independence will never be realized. Some Filipinos, including Pedro Guevara, former resident commissioner at Washington, are actively campaigning for something akin to permanent dominion status for the islands. Obviously there is a good deal of skepticism about complete independence on the part of many who once paid ardent lip service to that cause.

Interesting as is the discussion of this issue, it rests on a rather academic plane. The ultimate status of the Philippines will be determined by events and world trends much more than wishful thinking at Manila or elsewhere. As Mr. Pacis points out, the islanders will be seriously influenced by material considerations and by the instinct of self-preservation. Their sentiments may be greatly modified by the trade arrangements still to be worked out with the United States. Certainly their judgment will be affected by the development of Japan's empire-building policy in the next ten years. The efficiency and popularity of the new Commonwealth government will likewise be a powerful factor.

No intelligence can project itself far enough into the future to see what situation this multiplicity of forces will bring forth during the transitional period. President Quezon is eminently right, therefore, in directing attention upon current problems of the new government. In this way the best possible bid for complete independence will be made. If circumstances either within or beyond the control of the Commonwealth then make a final separation from the United States undesirable, that situation should be candidly faced. But neither Manila nor Washington should be expected to cross that bridge until they come to it.

Progress At London.

Effective demolition of Japan's proposal to fix a "common upper limit" for the navies of the world should bring about a clearing of the atmosphere at the London conference. Every other power represented found the scheme impractical and repugnant to the elementary principles of naval disarmament. Such emphatic disposal of the universal parity idea at the very beginning of the conference is a favorable sign. But of course it offers no assurance that an alternative agreement can be reached.

At first Tokyo's proposal included only the British, American and Japanese navies. Naturally France and Italy objected to having their fleets brought into the picture as secondary considerations. So the Japanese delegates extended their plan to include the five largest navies. Immediately the question of Russia arose. Japan was forced to concede parity to her chief rival in the Far East to avoid a complete breakdown in her thesis. About the right of Australia and perhaps the Philippines to build fleets equal to their own, the Japanese spokesmen were uncertain.

The effect of these modifications in the Japanese position is to demonstrate conclusively the weakness of the plan. For if the principle of a "common upper limit" is once recognized there is no logical point at which its application can be halted. The right of every nation to build a fleet as large as those of the United States and Great Britain must then be recognized. That would encourage naval building the world over, without offering any check to races between various rival powers. If the Japanese had deliberately planned to make an ironic joke of naval disarmament, they could scarcely have offered a more effective formula.

The most constructive aspect of these initial discussions at London is that they lead directly back to the ratio system of limiting navies. When the "common upper limit" idea is shown to be impossible, ratios of some kind become the only alternative. If Japan is willing to accept that principle, some progress toward a new apportionment of naval strength may be made. If not, she must clearly take upon herself the onus of breaking up the conference.

Existing naval treaties are based on the principle of equality of security. All the delegations at London, with the possible exception of the Japanese, adhere to this objective. If each delegation is sincere in its efforts to curtail staggering naval expenditures, the only issues to be considered are the defense requirements of the participating countries and the adjustment of fleets to those minimum needs. By their very nature adjustments of this sort are extremely complicated, but the two previous naval conferences have proved that they are not impossible, if the will to disarm is present.

Underlying the controversy at London is suspicion that Japan is demanding a navy that will guarantee her security while she completes the conquest of China. No doubt that suspicion is one reason for the overwhelming rejection of her bid for parity. Apprehension of the other guarantors of Chinese independence is certain to be injected into every aspect of the conference. For no government can afford to grant concessions that will strengthen the position of a treaty violator. If that can be made entirely clear at London, the conference will not in any circumstances be barren of achievement.

West Point Admissions.

It is not to be concluded from the conviction of Representative Hoeppel and his son that West Pointers as a rule win entry for any reasons other than individual merit. On the contrary, the charges brought against the California Congressman, if not unique, are certainly one of a very few instances of venality in this connection.

The unhappy incident suggests that certain revisions of the admission system at West Point, as well as at its sister institution at Annapolis, might well be considered. The fact that several Congressmen and Senators regularly prescribe examinations of their own writing to cull out their appointees indicates that the task is far from being simple. Nor can a conscientious man, particularly when in politics, find much pleasure in disappointing all but a handful of the many candidates who seek his indorsement.

There is a further argument for improvement of the political appointment system in the recent passage of the Sheppard bill. Signed by the President in June, it provides for the expansion of West Point to its full capacity. Each Senator, Congressman and Delegate in Congress may now appoint three cadets instead of two; five instead of four may be named from the District of Columbia and an added ten from the country at large.

Lest the Academy's high standards be undermined by this sudden increase, strictest scrutiny must be applied to each applicant. Now, more than ever before, is there a need to discount political considerations in favor of qualities of leadership. Some form of competitive examination, supplemented by interviews, is generally regarded as the most satisfactory means of determining the most promising among any group of men. The political appointment system has too little of real value to recommend it to warrant its perpetuation in the selection of the Nation's potential military leaders.

The Attorney General's Plea.

The Government is undoubtedly anxious to secure a decision from the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of the holding company act.

With that purpose in mind, the SEC decided to bring suit against the Electric Bond & Share Co. for failure to register, in the belief that it would be an excellent test case, involving many provisions of the law. Both the SEC and the Department of Justice have lately manifested a desire to cooperate with the companies in pressing for a speedy settlement of constitutional issues in an atmosphere free from animosity. However, instead of registering under the act, with reservation of their constitutional rights, as they were urged to do, a majority of the large companies elected not to comply with registration requirements and to appeal to the courts for protection.

In the District of Columbia alone seven companies are now seeking permanent injunctions against enforcement of the law, and Attorney General Cummings has taken the unprecedented step of asking a stay of proceedings until a decision has been reached in the Government's test case. Regardless of the legal arguments for and against this request, it is not to be lightly dismissed as unreasonable. The Government lawyers are patently "swamped" by a flood of litigation which, the Attorney General says, has taxed his assistants "almost to a point of cruelty." No doubt the Department of Justice ought to have been better staffed to meet the situation created by this legislation. But its unpreparedness is scarcely a justification for demanding the impossible from an overworked force of Government lawyers.

If the utilities are as eager as they profess to be to have the constitutionality of the holding company act fairly tested, they ought to be willing to co-operate with the Government in speeding a final decision of a major test case. That would be more than a sportsmanlike proceeding. It would testify to the sincerity of assertions that the holding companies are not trying to escape reasonable regulation but are merely protecting themselves against an unconstitutional deprivation of their rights under the present destructive act.

The Government has announced its willingness to acquiesce in temporary injunctions to prevent enforcement of the act, pending a final decision of the issues raised in Electric Bond & Share Co. suit. If the act should be upheld in this case the Attorney General promises to press for a decision of undetermined questions affecting other holding companies. These are fair proposals and it is hard to see how the companies can gain any long-range benefit by opposing them. Obstructive legal tactics are more likely to delay than to expedite a decision of the constitutional issues upon which the Supreme Court must eventually pass.

Uncertainty as to the validity of the holding company act is undeniably damaging to the utilities, which will be unable to dispose of new issues or plan for the future until their fate has been decided. However, the companies will be compelled to "mark time" in any event while they await a final determination of their legal status. Under these circumstances, it would seem wiser for them to set a good example in co-operation, instead of harrassing and embarrassing enforcement and prosecuting agencies in the discharge of mandatory official duties.

"Then everything went black, and I don't remember what happened," has got to be rather a common plea by women who see fit to bump somebody off, but one wonders how they manage to aim so accurately in the dark.

It is always dangerous for a fool to acquire power—especially if it's horsepower mounted on wheels.

'Finlandia.'

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Character seems born into some nations, as it is into some individuals. Consider Finland. Until 1917, Finland represented, to America, just a place from which sturdy immigrants came, or where, from time to time, Russian grand dukes stirred up a row with the populace. Then it declared its independence and, in some sharp fighting, made the declaration hold. Since then it has become conspicuous in American eyes through its belief that national integrity is like personal integrity, and that an honest nation pays its debts. Also it has made outstanding contributions to athletics. Furthermore, it boasts Jean Christian Sibelius, rated by many the world's foremost living composer of music. Thus Finland asserts her claim to moral, physical and mental endowment.

Business That Should Stay 'Unfinished.'

From The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Post officers of the Illinois department of the American Legion closed their two-day convention at Bloomington with a pledge to complete what is described as the organization's "remaining unfinished business" in that State. Specifically, the pledge is to work for a State law compelling teachers to take oaths to support the flag.

Where have the Illinois post officers been during all the recent furor in Massachusetts and other States which have made the mistake of enacting oath laws? Don't they know that these measures are defeating their very purpose; that the most loyal of Americans resent the inference that the test of fealty to fundamental principles is in an oath which the faithless can utter along with the faithful?

Our guess is that Illinoisans generally are doubly thankful that their legislators had the common sense to reject a teachers' oath bill at the last session, now that such legislation is making other States ridiculous.

More Trouble For The SEC.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the little village of Chevy Chase, the National Council for the Prevention of War has been attempting to sell the citizens "Peace Bonds" in denominations of from $1 to $100.

It is my understanding that bonds are supposed to conform to the securities act of the Federal Government, but an examination of the prospectus shows that this issuing agency was incorporated only in the District of Columbia some time ago, and no showing is made as to other lawful qualifications. It would seem that the same should be duly registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission of the Federal Government as well as the State Tax Commission at Baltimore, Md., if the alleged bonds are to be sold in the State of Maryland.

This bond offering may be unique as a way of raising money for the council, but before they are allowed to violate the blue sky laws of the several States they should be forced to conform to the laws of this country. If one purchases gold mining stock or bonds one is usually given a report on the property and just what the said money is being used for. But so far none of the officers of the National Council for the Prevention of War has made any showing that entitles him to go before the citizens of this country and ask for money under the guise of selling a "Peace Bond."

This council seems to be a pacifist organization, but people who want peace should not be hoodwinked by a "slick salesman," of whom there are over 420 now soliciting the general public, and if they are now near the point of buying one of these alleged "Peace Bonds," not worth the paper it is printed upon, it would be well to take it down to either the District attorney or State's attorney or consult your broker, banker or the Better Business Bureau before investing. Better still, see your doctor and have your head examined. H. G.

Chevy Chase, Md., Dec. 10.

Election Prediction.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Only the other day I read where Big Business raps the social security act and declares war upon the New Deal.

Now that the National Association of Manufacturers, the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Hutton, of General Foods; the utility holding companies and other special interests have openly declared war on the New Deal, we are constrained to follow more devotedly than ever the pathway outlined for us by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Fletcher, of the Republican National Committee, has taken advantage of this situation by lining up a formidable committee of multimillionaires, all of whom are interested in the utilities, the manufacturers, the bankers, or some other particular interest, and he has instructed them to go forth and gather together from the money makers and the money changers the greatest war chest ever assembled by a political organization for a national campaign.

The unanimity by which the forces of greed are declaring hostilities against our President and the advance notice which they are giving to the people will only result in the reelection of the President and his supporters. A COMMONER.

Washington, Dec. 12.

The Franco-British Peace Proposals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post on page one this morning prints two news paragraphs of international value. Quoting the usually well-informed, but cryptic authority, which speaks for the State Department, word is given out as to the complete satisfaction of our Government as it measures its restraint and abstention from sanctions against Italy in view of pending peace deals.

At the same space Senator Borah with all his latent power condemns Baldwin and Laval in their efforts to obtain peace, because such a peace would leave Mussolini "the most powerful figure in Europe" and curses the League of Nations as "subservient to imperialism."

Assuming without deciding, that the offers in behalf of peace are advantageous to Italy and damaging to Ethiopia, the query is presented, will war inevitably follow a refusal to agree on these peace terms.

Do we want another world war, with all its tragedy, ranging from death by violence, gruesome horrors of physical wrecks, to the sickly economic sphere of unpaid debts, pensions, etc.? The proposition submitted by Laval and Baldwin is founded on well-established law in England approved and rigidly followed in America. The principle involved is that where a party as an intending litigant forbears to pursue a claim, which he believes to be valid, such forbearance is a good consideration for a contract, although subsequent study will show the claim to be neither valid nor enforceable.

A few years ago the environs of Wall Street were startled by the report that a leading financial house, backer of railroads, had agreed to pay a large sum of money to a threatening plaintiff for his forbearance to bring suit. It was considered of sufficient value to the peace of mind and good will of the railroad and its financial backers that they should be freed from the worry, annoyance and expense of such a suit, even though by the state of law and facts as ultimately discovered to be, the alleged claim was neither valid nor enforceable.

Every thoughtful American, reflecting upon the matter, must conclude we have been receiving only a one-sided story of the African situation. If we are to accept all that is printed, Italy is without a friend in Europe, a tribute to the fancy of propaganda, rather than to the facts of the case. I cannot believe that Sir Stanley Baldwin and Pierre Laval are about to join as partners in any improper adventure. Perhaps these gentlemen know more about Italy's equities in the case and incidentally possess a more potent knowledge of Italian military power than the general public.

Our lack of knowledge of the subject may be recalled when it is remembered that an Italian who wanted to address America on the radio was denied the use of British radio stations. If the voice of America is for peace, let us encourage all efforts in that direction. If we insist upon the terms of the treaty being submitted to us for aproval, we know what that demands. JOSEPH A. CONRY.

Washington, Dec. 12.

Another Daniel Boone.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post, December 5, on page 1, under headlines reading "Boone Escaped Arrest by Going to Kentucky," is published an article dated Christianburg, Va., December 4, credited to the Associated Press, that does a cruel injury to the memory of America's great pioneer, Col. Daniel Boone, of Kentucky.

Who this Daniel Boone was I do not know. I do know of three other Daniel Boones of the Revolutionary period who are not related to Daniel Boone of Kentucky fame, and there were probably more.

By no possibility can the Daniel Boone of Kentucky be involved, for the simple reason that he had no connection with either Cowan or Bain, he never lived in the locality mentioned, nor did he have any estate there, and furthermore, he was very busy elsewhere on the dates given.

In Pennsylvania, the Daniel Boone Memorial, Inc., has taken title to the birthplace of Boone, near Reading. Headed by Daniel Carter Beard, of Boy Scout fame, as honorary president, and sponsored by a board of trustees consisting of former Gov. Pinchot, John Findley, editor of the New York Times; Col. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., Irvin Cobb, Will Rogers (at the time of his death) and other men or note, the corporation has great plans for an institution for the conservation of American youth.

This and other undertakings of great benefit to our Nation stand to be injured should this unjust and unwarranted attack on Boone's good name remain uncorrected.

WILLIAM BOONE DOUGLAS.

The C. Of C. Poll.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some weeks ago the local press advised that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was making a referendum on policies of the New Deal. The date has already passed for votes to be in, and inasmuch as no release has been made of the chamber's membership opinion of New Deal policies, it is assumed that the vote was largely in favor of such policies. This statement is made in view of the fact that immediately preceding forwarding of the referendum chamber members were "mildly" advised how to vote. Why doesn't the chamber release its findings? C. B. R.

Job Wanted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to be appointed to a job in which all I would have to do would be to walk around town carrying a nice, stout, fat club and bang over the head all those fools in automobiles who needlessly and asininely blow horns.

I would work earnestly and tirelessly and am sure that in time I would become known as a great public benefactor.

"To Insure Promptness"

Post Office, Saturday.

THE Washington-bound train from Boston had pulled out of Baltimore. The gloomy man beside us in the Pullman smoking-compartment said:

"I'll tell you what business recovery's the slowest in."

When the average man says that, you know what he's going to say next. He's going to say: "Recovery's slowest in my business." However, this man, continuing on his own momentum, said:

"Recovery's slowest in the tipping business. In fact, to all intents and purposes, the tipping business is dead. . . .

"Did you notice," he went on, "the tips given the porter by our neighbors who got off at Baltimore—those of 'em who tipped him when he brushed 'em down? . . .

"I did. And I asked the porter, too. Most of those passengers had been riding with him all the way from Boston — but most of their tips were 10-cent ones.

"I once heard that the total of Pullman tips averaged over $1,000,000 per annum. But I heard it seven years ago.

"For a day's ride, you never gave the porter less than 25 cents; you generally gave him 50. No matter what you ate in the diner, you tipped your waiter a quarter—well, perhaps 15 cents after a light breakfast.

"But now! They call this the Machine Age. I call it the Dime Age.

"And that goes for all tips everywhere.

"Take the red-cap at the station. You can remember the time when you never gave him less'n 15 cents per bag. And what now? Why, now you know well enough if you think you can get away with 10 cents for a couple of bags, you'll try it.

"Nor you aren't the exception, either. You're the rule.

"The other day I picked up an old copy of the Reader's Digest in a dentist's waiting-room. It had an article in it about tipping that made me feel as if I was reading a history of ancient Babylon.

"It said—the writer was a fellow named Charles W. Ferguson—that hotel-guests generally tipped the chambermaid at the rate of a quarter a day. It said the right tip for the bellhop who took your suitcase to your room was 25 cents. It as much as said the only hotel-transaction where a dime wa legal tender was fetching icewat

"How does that stuff sound 1935?

"No matter if the bellhop brings up a suitcase in each hand, with grips under both arms, he gets the sum of 10 cents or one dime. You can bet your life the guest doesn't ring for the chambermaid before he checks out. And the ice-water racket died along with prohibition: everybody patronizes the spigot in the washstand.

"I knew the day—guess you did, too—when there was real money in a hat-and-coat check-room concession. That was the day of prohibition and prosperity.

"No wonder Texas Guinan could get five grand for the checking rights in any one of her speakeasies! That figure left a good profit for the renter, even after he'd deducted the fat salaries of his employes. Today the hat-check game is a ten-cent limit game—and three coats on one check!

"This man Ferguson said if you were eating alone in a restaurant and the bill came to a dollar, you were expected to tip 25 cents. Not nowadays! The cost of wholesale food has put up the cost of retail meals; the customer's trying to save the difference by cutting a bit under the Emily Post 10 per cent theory.

"Manicurists get ten-cent tips on the average job and are grateful—where they used to shake down 50 and hardly crack a smile. Barbers are on a nickel-or-nothing basis. And the doorman: he's lucky if he gets 'Thanks—lots.'

"Tipping," mused the gloomy man: "It wasn't so long ago that seven States—South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Arkansas, Washington, Tennessee and Iowa—all had to enact anti-tipping laws to 'protect the public.' Every one of the seven's repealed those laws: They're not needed. Every one of the seven except Iowa—and just watch Iowa if the AAA blows up!

"Tipping: They said the word was made out of the initials of 'To Insure Promptness.' Looks now as if it stood for 'To Identify Parsimony.'

"No, no," mourned the gloomy man; "you can teach people to be stingy, but, once they've learned that, you can't teach 'em to be open-handed again. The depression has just plain ruined the tipping business . . ."

Our train neared the Union Station.

"You seem," we hazarded, "to know a good deal about the tipping business."

"I ought to," grunted the gloomy man. "It's my business. I buy check-room concessions and find jobs for bellhops on a tip-commission basis."

The Capuchin Cemetery.

Rome, Dec. 13.

YOUR correspondent has visited the famous cemetery of the Capuchin Fathers in the cellar of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of which Mark Twain wrote with considerable feeling in "Innocents Abroad." The picture which he drew of the scene in the cavern beneath the pillars of the church is pretty accurate still, except that in one of the chandeliers the skull of some long-forgotten reverend father has been wired for electric light and some of the intricate scrolls and floral designs worked out in the human ribs, fingers, vertebrae and jawbones have begun to reveal gaps which cannot be repaired.

At least in the day when he saw the cemetery and commented on the problem they were all there in one rather cozy little cave and were confronted by nothing more than the mere problem of identification. It is possible the bones were catalogued somewhere and each member knew precisely which vertebrae and toes and shank bones were his in the jumble which had to a casual observer an appearance of hopeless confusion.

• • • •

BUT if a man's skull is serving as a tobacco jar on the library desk of a souvenir hunter in a New York suburb and his left shoulder blade is doing duty as a paperweight in Buenos Aires or Moscow, there might be serious difficulty. But maybe, after all, because the great wide world is no bigger than an apple, the power which could reconstruct the bodies in the cellar might not be embarrassed by having to assemble their members no matter how widely scattered.

Yet Mark Twain himself certainly lived as long as he had any desire to, and nowadays, notwithstanding the war, which killed six millions, and the famines and plagues which have killed even more, the world is so crowded that Mr. H. G. Wells insists that 200,000,000 people have got to get off the earth.

It is useless to look for the name of Mark Twain in the tourist register on the window sill, for hundreds of thousands of sightseers have shuffled along the marble tombs on the floor since his day, almost obliterating some of the data, and the present register, which is almost full, goes back no more than a year. The Bradley girls of New York registered the day before yesterday.

• • • •

YOUR correspondent, on seeing the cemetery with its neat racks of bones piled like stove wood back on the farm, its graceful designs and curious little inventions of art, did not share the sense of being shocked which Mark Twain felt. For if ever human futility was made clear and death robbed of its solemnity it has been done in the hilarious arrangement of human ivory some 300 years ago in the murky crypt by some pious priest in hair shirt and sandals and with a grisly sense of humor.

The mummies, too, a dozen or so of them, which had dried out during their ten years in the ground beneath the cavern, by their scarecrow postures and their withered leather hands awkwardly clasping their wooden crucifixes, moved the pride of mortal man and ridiculed the struggle of science to conquer death and give to each another long term on earth.

Some of the skulls have developed a rich yellow ivory tint and a shiny gleam, but others seem not to have aged well in the grave and are rough in texture, dull in color and from an artistic standpoint distinctly inferior.

When looking at the skull of a man so long dead and trying to decipher the name of the tourist written across his brow it is impossible not to wonder which head entertained greater thoughts, that of the Capuchin or the skull of the tourist scurrying around the world on a 30-day cruise.

• • • •

AN old Capuchin with gray beard sits at the head of the cellar stairs with a little green pouch, accepting contributions in appreciation of the experience of looking at death as an amusing answer to it all. Your correspondent dropped a 40-cent coin into the pouch, reflecting that the old father of John Dillinger got a raw deal from the law which made him bury his boy.

Young John Dillinger, stuffed and preserved like the embalmed whales which used to tour the United States in carnival shows, would have been a very profitable exhibit and probably a fine moral lesson to the young.

Instead, however, the old gentleman, when he set out to preach that the wages of sin is death, was forced to do it alone, with nothing to use for stage props except young John's straw hat with a bullet hole through it and the clothes he had on as he went for his summer night's stroll with the woman in red. But, of course, young John as a public exhibition would be only a dead man, whereas there are odds and ends of 4,000 in the remarkable bone yard of the Capuchins.

The New Philippines

Islanders Question Value Of Complete Independence.

By Vicente Albano Pacis.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Manila.

RESPONSIBILITY, some one has said, is an educative process. It develops and brings to the front the individual's highest qualities and capacities. At the same time it enables one to view matters more wisely and dispassionately. Under the pressure of responsibility, the Filipinos are bound to enlarge upon their already demonstrated political capacity. But even now, they are beginning to realize that independence has many disadvantages as well.

What will be the temper of the Filipinos after the ten-year period of the Commonwealth is terminated? Will they unhesitatingly accept independence as provided by the independence law? Will they ask Congress to modify the liberty act? Will they prefer to continue enjoying what President Coolidge called the advantages of Philippine association with America? If they will express such a preference, will Congress reconsider the Philippine question in this light?

"Congress is through," a ranking member of the Congressional delegation to the Commonwealth inauguration drawled in a thick Southern accent to the writer on the good ship President Grant just off the Amoy coast on its historic voyage to Manila. "You have asked for independence and we have given it to you. If you are united, you will succeed; if you are not, good-by, boy! Learn your lesson from the Chinese—and Japan."

His view is probably representative of the American temper south of the Mason and Dixon line and, in general, of American labor. It is based on racial considerations and, in the case of labor, upon considerations of the pocketbook. But Americans north of the line seem to have quite a different slant on the Philippine question.

• • • •

"FILIPINOS have come to me," declared Representative Ellenbogen' of Pennsylvania, upon leaving Manila with the Congressional delegation, "asking me to use my good offices to modify the independence law in order to make possible the indefinite continuation of the Commonwealth. I am in sympathy with this view."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, expressed the same sentiment in quite another way. "I voted for Philippine independence," he declared, "because the Filipinos have insistently demanded it. But if I were a Filipino I would not want to separate from America."

There is therefore no certainty as to the ultimate Congressional attitude on the possible proposition to continue the Commonwealth status indefinitely, but there seems to be a consensus of opinion that the Filipinos themselves must initiate any movement tending to modify the present independence law. This being the case, and there being a discernible Filipino sentiment to capitalize, a New York editor, who is reputed to be close to President Quezon, upon arriving in Manila, issued a press statement. He urged the Filipinos, now that they have won their idealistic goal of independence, to take the practical attitude and, as free men and of their own free will, ask for a permanent shelter under the American flag.

• • • •

WHAT do the Filipinos think about it all?

President Quezon, in his first formal statement as President, declared that there is no honorable course for the Filipinos other than complete independence. His declaration, observers believed, was calculated to nip in the bud talks of abandoning the independence ideal, which might prove unpsychological to the Commonwealth just starting and for whose success he is most responsible.

Its greater significance, however, lies in the fact that he was constrained to issue the statement: the sentiment developing toward the direction he fears must have been such as to warrant presidential attention.

I fear that it was—and it is—at least potentially strong. Although former President Commissioner Pedro Guevara seems to be the only Filipino of consequence who has come out unequivocally for continued American control of the Philippines, there are strong Filipino groups ready to align themselves behind his ideal if and when a showdown becomes inescapable.

Guevara's change of heart—he spent 13 years in Congress clamoring for "immediate, complete, and absolute independence"—is all due to Japan. He sincerely believes that no nation in this part of the Orient, as defenseless yet as potentially rich as the Philippines, could be safe as long as Japan is run by her military crowd. For this reason, he has, since his return to Manila, been advocating an American protectorate over the Philippines, and by protectorate he means indefinite continuation of the Commonwealth status.

• • • •

GUEVARA'S intentions are entirely honorable but his method may be questionable. Congress, it seems evident, would never have given to the Filipinos the degree of self-government now in effect under the Commonwealth if it had had to consider the matter as a political consession by itself and not as the next logical step to final independence. Guevara's viewpoints, however, may eventually become a mere ingredient in the final flavor.

The fear of Japanese aggression or penetration is not the only cause for serious Filipino thought in the direction of continued American control. The economic reason is even more powerful. Filipino interests like sugar, cordage, and coconut oil cannot bear the thought of losing the American market. They are quite aware that loss of this market means their ultimate and untimely demise. American investors in the Philippines likewise naturally prefer continued American control and protection. They would demand such an arrangement even as mere residents in the islands; they demand it all the more urgently as residents with risks amounting to millions of dollars.

Some responsible Filipino political and business leaders, realizing the possible economic catastrophe, are not entirely unsympathetic. The former realize that the success of government depends upon a solvent treasury, and that a solvent treasury in turn depends on a solvent business. The latter know too well that the crippling of the country's major industries will bring about loss of employment, collapse of the local market, and a general economic degeneration.

• • • •

BUT most significant of all is the openly anti-independence attitude evident among a substantial portion of the younger generation—Filipinos educated in American universities or in Philippine schools under American guidance. There is, for instance, a fortnightly magazine, the Commonwealth, edited jointly by two young Filipino men, one a graduate of Columbia University in New York and the other of the University of the Philippines in Manila, which vigorously urges the perpetuation of the Commonwealth.

Analyzing all these scattered sentiments, however, one discovers as the main motives the instinct of self-preservation and the newly inculcated American ideal of materialism. Although they are powerful motives capable of ushering in national changes, they are not entirely insurmountable. Before the ten-year period of the Commonwealth is over, Japan may cease to be a menace, and the Philippines, then possessed of an efficient defense machine built under the guidance of Gen. MacArthur, may feel more self-confident and self-reliant. A happy outcome of the economic conference, which President Roosevelt is about to call for the purpose of adjusting Philippine-American economic relations, may entirely dissipate the fear of separation inspired by visions of an economic debacle.

But while all this is mere conjecture, there is one thing that is absolutely certain: that if the Filipinos ever come to believe that complete independence is impractical, they will choose American control in preference to all others. President Quezon's statement in support of his military program—may it not be converted into a new platform of the new Philippines?

"Why seek a new master," the President asked the Philippine Assembly and, through the Assembly, the Filipino people, "when the Stars and Stripes has given us not only justice and fair treatment, welfare and prosperity, but also ever-increasing political liberties, including independence?"

The Santa Whisker Trade Booms.

Business is booming in the Santa Claus whisker industry. John T. Benson, a whisker specialist, reports that after six years of terrible whisker years prosperity has returned.

• • • •

The announcement is significant and highly pleasing. It indicates that the Santa Claus actors of America are at last discarding those well-worn beards and wearing something convincing.

• • • •

Nothing suffered more during the slump than Santa Claus whiskers. Up to this winter there hadn't been any replacement demand since 1928. Most of those beards you saw on the department store Kris Kringles looked like rocking-horse tails that had been dragged through a gutter.

• • • •

And the street-corner Santas went around wearing whiskers that resembled something a few undiscriminating moths had pulled out of a dog-hair rug.

• • • •

• • • •

Times were so hard that some department stores were splitting their whiskers two for one and making two Santas divide them. And a Santa with half a beard is tough on a legend.

• • • •

Even when the whisker manufacturers offered liberal allowances when taking an old pair of whiskers in on a new set, the department stores refused to bite.

• • • •

But Mr. Benson, the big Boston beard man, says whiskers have turned the corner and that the whisker manufacturers are at last enjoying "the bearder life" that President Roosevelt promises to all.

Hillside Homes

By Karl Schriftgiesser.

To End Slums.

HOUSING, if you recall, was going to be one of the major reforms of the New Deal. A clean, sweet wind was going to blow through the more rotten areas of our cities, sweeping down the lousy, rat-infested slums like houses of cards. In their places were to arise dream-mansions of the poor which would put to shame the charcoal imaginings with which Hugh Ferris used to thrill us in the days when the song of the riveter was loud in the land. Probably no other aspect of the four-year program, now drawing to a close, so cheered the believers in the more abundant life and the talk that was heard was both loud and long as the intellectuals chattered on a high plane about "low-cost housing" and "redeeming the blighted areas." Billions were to be poured forth and the slums and shacks and alleys were to disappear. All God's children were to breathe fresh air at night and soak in sunshine during the day.

Only the romantic, of course, believed in this. The cynical cut into these too decent hopes with growls about the real estate trust, and the indecent suggested that as soon as the dwellers of Henry street were to be given clean homes they would mess them all up again, on the theory that the dog will do just as the Bible says he will. A few more socially-minded people, realizing that the United States lagged far behind many European countries in this respect, those to ignore the cynical and the indecent, and did their best under adverse conditions to remedy a very evil situation. Here in the National Capital they decided to clear away the slums. They haven't done it yet by any means, any more than anyone has managed to reform a most intolerable housing and rental condition which has nothing whatever to do with slum clearance.

• • • •

NEW YORK recently cleared away some very nasty old houses down near Avenue A, which originally had been owned by Mr. Vincent Astor. The territory was as filthy and ugly as some of our own worst alleys of the kind which, a year ago, made a visiting British housing expert sick to his stomach when he looked at them. The New York Housing Authority rebuilt these condemned rookeries with some new houses of which it is very proud. An unbiased friend of mine, who has studied the housing problem for many years, went down to look at them. He reported that all that had been accomplished was the replacing of an old slum with a new slum. The rooms manage to be rented at the low cost of $6.05 per month, less than any private jerry-builder would be able to offer them for—profitably.

But I can't see that this is a Great Housing Achievement, or one that the New Deal can be wholly proud of. It merely proves what has long been known. Houses can be built, with or without government aid, so that the cost of rental can be brought down within the reach of workers. Elsewhere it has been demonstrated that honest houses can be built in decent, kindly, sunny surroundings, and rented quite reasonably. In New York's Bronx, for example, recently were constructed some housing units known as Hillside Homes. These cost about $1,000 for each room and there are 4,948 rooms, making it quite a costly venture. But when looked at this way it stands to reason that it should soon pay for itself, even with the rents cut way down. But just as important as the low rents is the fact that with the $1,000 rooms go green landscape, pleasant views and sunlight. Those who have seen it say it is a pretty swell place.

THERE are not many Hillside Homes in America, not nearly enough, but those few that do exist show that it is not economically impossible for there to be many more. Publicly financed and designed by competent draughtsmen, they are monuments to the romantics who believed that when the Government said it could improve the living conditions of the people it knew whereof it spoke. Hillside Homes is a place to be watched with envy by those who live in Washington, not alone by the alley-dwellers, but by those who are cooped up in swank apartments or jerry-built row houses—what Lewis Mumford calls "the elegant pigsties, rabbit hutches, dungeons, and penal colonies," which many of us so expensively call home.

As a matter of fact, in order to avoid the tragedy of rebuilt Astorville, the financing of slum-clearance in the alleys will call for vast governmental funds if slums are not to be replaced by slums. But thousands who shudder at the very word slum live in hardly better places, as far as decent conditions are concerned, and pay exorbitantly for the privilege. It is these people, forced now to spend from $12 to $30 a room per month, who should investigate most closely the place called Hillside Homes, with its grass and flowers and nurseries, wading pools, shops and studios, sunshine, laughter and health. For it's only when people realize they don't have to live forever in rabbit warrens that they will find the courage to demand and get Hillside Homes for themselves.

52 Ohio Votes Attract Forces Back of Landon

Harry Daugherty Rumored as Asking Filing Details Be Forwarded.

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, O., Dec. 13.—The Alf M. Landon-for-President forces cast a friendly glance today at the 52 delegates Ohio will send to the Republican national convention next year.

Friends of the Kansas Governor requested Secretary of State George S. Myers to forward to Landon information regarding the requirements for entering Ohio's Presidential preference primary next May.

They did not indicate whether Landon would seek the election of a convention delegation friendly to him.

Landon apparently had no direct connection with the movement, the first overture by supporters of one of the frequently mentioned possibilities for the Republican nomination to win Ohio's convention delegation.

Spoke in Cleveland.

A few weeks ago, when Landon addressed an Ohio Chamber of Commerce convention at Cleveland, he said he came East to "sell Kansas to Ohio."

Landon is a former Ohioan.

The State's Republican leaders have taken a stand for the election of a favorite son—uninstructed—delegation. They wish to keep the 52 convention votes free for bargaining purposes until convention time.

Myers said the request for the primary election information came through Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney General in the Harding Administration.

Asked to Be Forwarded.

From other sources, it was learned that Daugherty's office had asked Myers to forward the information to Topeka on behalf of a mutual friend of Daugherty and Landon.

Daugherty was in Sarasota, Fla.

At Topeka, close friends of Landon said the Governor had not personally made any request of any State for information on how to file in presidential primaries.

A prospective presidential candidate may file in Ohio either personally or by having a friend file as a candidate for him. The latter method, however, would not bind delegates to pledge for him.

Professes Ignorance.

Newton, Kas., Dec. 13 (AP).—Gov. Alf M. Landon said here today he hadn't "asked any State for any information about any presidential primary."

The Kansas budget-balancer, prominently mentioned in talk about Republican presidential possibilities, said he didn't know a thing about a request made in Columbus, Ohio, that information on the Ohio preferential primary be sent him.

BarnetTakes Office As Cuban President

Echarte Named Temporary Secretary of State.

By the Associated Press.

Havana, ec. 13.—Jose A. Barnet, former secretary of state, formally assumed office as provisional President to day in a ceremony witnessed by the full diplomatic corps.

He was chosen by the cabinet and council of state last night to serve as successor to former President Carlos Mendieta, who resigned early Wednesday. His term will expire May 20, when a President, to be elected next month, is inaugurated.

Shortly after the ceremony he announced that Jorge E. Echarte, secretary of public works, will serve temporarily as secretary of state.

No Time Extension For 1936 Auto Tags

Arrests to Begin Midnight, New Year's Eve.

No extension of time will be granted District motorists who have not obtained 1936 license tags at midnight New Year's Eve, District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen announced last night.

Police will begin arresting motorists with 1935 tags at that hour, it was indicated by the Commissioner.

Hazen said the traffic department is issuing only between 3,000 and 4,000 plates a day, although it can handle a demand for 7,500 daily.

The Commissioner indicated that failure to secure tags would be due only to the delay of applicants, and that for this reason there would be no time extension.

Diamond Emblem Awarded Worker

A diamond emblem, honoring his completion of 35 years of service, yesterday was presented Andrew D. Soverhill, of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Mr. Soverhill was employed by the New York Telephone Co., in 1900, and served at Rochester, Buffalo and other cities of upper New York State.

In 1904 he came to the Chesapeake & Potomac Co., as an inspector, and later became foreman of inspectors. At present he is plant inspector here.

Flying Boat Hops Off On Sea Flight to Brazil

Dakar, Senegal (Saturday), Dec. 14 (AP).—The French flying boat, Lieutenant-de-Vaisseau Paris, took off at 12:45 a. m. today (8:45 P. E. S. Friday) for a transatlantic hop to Natal, Brazil. It is en route to a celebration of 300 years of French rule in Guiana and the islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique in the West Indies.

Editor of Nazi Paper Urges Fat Folks Tax

Berlin, Dec. 13 (U.P.).—The radical anti-Semitic Weekly Judenkenter today suggested introduction of a special obesity tax on grounds "pot-bellies are superfluous and superannuated in new Germany."

The tax would depend on a person's girth, the paper said, with steeper amounts for every centimeter over a certain limit fixed by authorities.

Exemptions would be permissible only if obesity was result of a malady or if the person could prove reducing seriously would impair his health.

Jews would pay under all circumstances, the paper said, "because statistics proved the standard of living of German Jews was 17 times higher than that of the Aryans."

The "belly tax" on Jews would be 17 times higher.

Widow of Nelson Put on Probation

Mrs. Gillis Pleads Guilty to Aiding Gangster.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Dec. 13.—Petite Helen Gillis, 22-year-old widow of the slain gangster, "Baby Face" Nelson, pleaded guilty in Federal court today to harboring Nelson. She was granted release on a year's probation.

The girl who was constant companion to one of gangland's most feared desperadoes spoke with a timid, hesitating manner to white-haired Judge A. F. St. Sure.

"All I want is to have a chance," she said. "I know I can make good, and I want to go to work right away."

The judge questioned her about how much of the time she has had her two children with her, a son, 6, and a girl, 5. The boy has been with her about 4 years and the girl 2, she said.

"You see I couldn't take them with me when I was with my husband," she explained.

Mrs. Gillis, her slain husband's true name was Lester Gillis, was given into custody of her sister, Mrs. Lee McMahon of Long Beach.

J. C. Grayson Trial Is Set for Jan. 13

John Cooke Grayson, one-time official of the national bank examiner's office of the Treasury Department, will be tried on two consolidated indictments in the District Supreme Court January 13, Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue decided yesterday.

Grayson, now ill at his Charlottesville, Va., home, asked for separate trials on two indictments. Government attorneys objected to that procedure and Justice O'Donoghue directed that both charges be presented at the same time.

Grayson is charged with conspiring to defraud the Government in connection with allegations he tipped off Robert S. Stunz, former executive officer of the closed Park Savings Bank, as to the time examiners would be in the bank to go over its books. The other charge is that he conspired to steal or embezzle $4,000 from the bank.

Many postponements have been granted. Justice O'Donoghue recently held that unless the Government was willing to drop the case, Grayson should be brought to trial. Upon a showing that the charges would not be dropped, he fixed a date for trial, although physicians said the former Treasury officer was suffering from an incurable heart ailment.

Marine Board Designates Two As Brigadiers

Cols. Meade and Beaumont Elevated; 28 Others Are Promoted.

Col. James J. Mead and Col. John C. Beaumont were designated yesterday to become bridadier generals of the United States Marine Corps. Selected for advancement by a senior selection board headed by Maj. Gen. James C. Breckinridge, the promotions were approved by President Roosevelt.

Col. Meade is the commanding officer of the First Marine Brigade at Quantico. Col. Beaumont heads the Fourth Regiment of Marines at Shanghai, China.

At the same time Col. Russell Benjamin Putnam was designated for promotion as brigadier general in the paymaster's department.

Nine lieutenant colonels were raised to colonels and 19 majors were promoted to become lieutenant colonels at the same time the new brigadier generals were selected.

The lieutenant colonels selected for promotion to colonels are:

Albert Edward Randall, David Monroe Randall, Alley David Rorex, Leander Alston Clapp, Thomas Stanley Clarke, Joseph Charles Fegan, Alexander Archer Vandegrift, Roy Stanley Geiger, Charles Dodson Barrett.

Immigration Law Hit by MacCormack

Commissioner Postpones Alien Deportations.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Dec. 13.—Col. Daniel V. MacCormack, U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, today said he had postponed deportation of 2,600 aliens in hope that Congress at its next session will revise the immigration law to do away with "medieval injustices which now prevail."

"If we have to send these 2,600 persons out of the country," he said, "they will leave about 7,000 dependents, many of whom will necessarily become public charges.

"All of these persons whose deportation have thus been stayed are of good character, responsible men in their communities, yet under the law they must be torn from their families and sent to some foreign country for some non-criminal violation of the immigration law."

Culbertson on Bridge

[Mr. Culbertson continues his description of a "friendly game" he recently watched. The first hand in this series appeared Tuesday of this week].

With a doubled small slam to his credit, West decided to do some gloating on his own hook, in return for the "riding" South had given him.

"I don't hear any criticism of our contract on the last hand," he remarked sweetly.

"What do you want us to do—cheer?" growled South. "Come on, deal the cards!"

This was the next hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH

♥ X 10 8 6

WEST

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 spade	Pass	2 dimds.
Pass	3 spades [final bid]

North, with his scattering of honor cards, felt that his best defense lay in not jeopardizing one of them on his opening lead, therefore led the nine of diamonds. Dummy won the trick and now declarer made the worst play imaginable—he took a trump finesse! A moment's thought should have shown him the folly of this play. North's return lead, after winning the queen, actually did show it to him. It was a diamond, removing West's only entry to the dummy's solid suit. Declarer tried to wriggle out of his blunder by leading another diamond and discarding his losing heart, but of course North ruffed and West later had to concede two club tricks for a penalty of 100 points. Obviously the proper play of the ace, king, and jack of trumps would have brought home the contract with two overtricks.

For the first time East had something to say.

"If you'd stiffen your will power, partner," he remarked icily, "you might be able to resist a finesse now and then!"

And South, hypocritically soothing, added: "Well, at least you reached the proper contract!"

Metropolitan Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Freeley Rohrer, D. D., pastor. A candle light service will be conducted at 7:45 p. m. Christmas carols will be sung by a young people's chorus and the church quartet. The pastor preaches in the morning on "What the Christmas Story Means."

Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church. The Rev. J. Hillman Hollister, D. D., pastor. "Let's See God," is Dr. Hollister's sermon for tomorrow morning.

President May Attend Rites in Honor of T. R.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt is considering attending the dedication of the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial in the Museum of Natural History in New York City next month.

He explained to questioners yesterday, however, that no specific date has been fixed for this dedication and he was simply hopeful of attending.

Asked about reports that he would speak before the Ohio Bar Association next month, Mr. Roosevelt told newsmen he had found it impossible so far to make this engagement.

Examinations Are Set For Special Teachers

Examinations will be held next week for persons wishing to teach special subjects in the junior and senior high schools. These subjects include art work, home economics, music and physical education.

For the white schools, examinations will be held Tuesday and Wednesday in the Franklin Building, and applications must be in by Monday night. For colored schools, the application deadline is tonight, while the examinations will be held in the Franklin Building on Monday and Tuesday.

Lithuania Announces Its War Debt Default

By the Associated Press.

Lithuania became the second nation to default on its December 15 war debt payment to the United States when it notified Secretary Hull yesterday of its refusal to meet that installment.

Great Britain previously had sent her refusal, while Finland, the only non-defaulter, has announced payment will be made as usual.

Including payments in arrears, Lithuania owes $776,319.97 December 5.

Churches of Christ Texts Announced

'God the Preserver of Man' to Be Topic.

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Psalms 121:8, "The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The name of the Lord is a strong tower: the righteous runneth into it, and is safe" (Proverbs 18:10).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Truth is God's remedy for error of every kind, and Truth destroys only what is untrue. Hence the fact that, today, as yesterday, Christ casts out evils and heals the sick" (page 142).

Church Plans State Service

First Baptist to Observe Mississippi Day Tomorrow.

L. R. Ginn Dies; Served as Aid To Comptroller

Was Active in Masonic Work; Lived in Washington Since 1884.

Lurtin R. Ginn, 75, former Assistant Comptroller General of the United States and one of the city's leading Masons, died yesterday after a long illness at Emergency Hospital.

Ginn, after nearly a half-century of Government service, retired two years ago as a special assistant in Comptroller General McCarl's office. In December, 1930, age requirements forced him to resign his position as Assistant Comptroller General on reaching his seventieth birthday.

A resident here since 1884, he was active in Masonic activities. He was a Past Grand Master of Grand Lodge of Masons in the District, a thirty-third degree member of Scottish Rite, a past commander of Harmony Lodge, No. 17, F. A. A. M., a member of Mount Vernon Chapter, No. 2, R. A. M., and of Almas Temple of the Shrine, chairman of the committee on jurisprudence of Grand Lodge for many years, and for two years president of the National Board of Masonic Relief of the United States and Canada.

Born near Mechanicsburg, Ind., in 1860, he was educated in public schools there and graduated from Central Normal School, Danville, Ind., in 1882. He taught school there for two years before receiving his appointment as a clerk in the Treasury Department here.

While working in the Treasury, Ginn attended the National University Law School at night, receiving his degree in 1888. In 1901 he was appointed as a law clerk in the Treasury Department and was later transferred to the auditor's office.

With the coming of the World War and the need of Treasury representatives abroad, Ginn was selected assistant comptroller of the Treasury to serve with the expeditionary forces. That led to his appointment as one of the officials representing the department in dealing with foreign powers. His services in this capacity won him the Legion of Honor.

When these duties were over in July, 1920, he was made attorney to the Comptroller of the Treasury, which position he held at the time of his appointment as McCarl's assistant, June 29, 1921.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen M. Ginn, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah D. Cravill, of Indianapolis. His body is being shipped to Indianapolis this afternoon, where funeral services and burial will be held Monday.

M. A. Dolan Rites Are Set for Monday

Services Will Be Held at Sacred Heart Church.

Funeral services for Michael A. Dolan, 66, former construction engineer in the supervising architect's office, Treasury, will be conducted at 10 a. m. Monday at Sacred Heart Church.

Mr. Dolan died late Thursday at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Edwin P. Hinkel, 1604 Varnum street northwest, after a long illness. Before his retirement six years ago, he had been a Treasury Department employe for more than thirty years.

Mr. Dolan is survived by another sister, Miss Gertrude Dolan, Washington, and two brothers, Henry F. Dolan, of Washington, and Edward J. Dolan, of Chicago.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Charles Veirs, 77, Dies at Farm Home

Funeral Services to Be Held Monday at 10:30.

Charles Veirs, 77-year-old farmer, died yesterday after a long illness at his home near Rockville. Born in Florida, he came to Montgomery County as a young boy and had farmed there ever since.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Rose Lyddane Veirs; a brother, James P. Beard, leader in the Fusion Party; a sister, Mrs. Jane B. Bradley, of Washington; two sons, C. Clifton and T. Magruder Veirs, and three daughters, Mrs. Florence Abert, Mrs. Frances Pate, and Mrs. Gertrude Peter.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 10:30 a. m. at his home. Burial will be in Rockville Union Cemetery.

Mrs. Margaret Connors Rites to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Connors, 67, who died Thursday after a long illness, will be held at her home, 943 K street northwest, today at 9 a. m., preceding mass at St. Patrick's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Connors, who was educated at old St. Patrick's Academy here, was the widow of James J. Connors, employe of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. She was the mother of Myles C. Connors, New York investment counsel. Another son, John Joseph Connors, was killed in the World War. Survivors include two sisters, Miss Clara H. Cunningham and Mrs. Mary E. Hortan.

Long Illness Is Fatal To Mrs. Hazel Terrett

Mrs. Hazel Terrett, 29, wife of Henry M. Terrett, Government employe, died yesterday after a long illness at her home, 1789 Lanier place northwest. Mrs. Terrett was born in Winchester, Va., and came here to live 19 years ago.

She is survived also by her parents, Elmer E. and Rebecca Painter, of Winchester. Funeral services will be held at the Lee funeral home Monday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

'13' Jinx Rises Again To Plague Hauptmann

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 13 (AP).—The number "13" continued today to plague Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Johnston Firm Against Calling Off His Militia

Action by Legislature and Supreme Court Leaves Governor Unmoved.

By the Associated Press.

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 13.—With the South Carolina Legislature and Supreme Court both on record against military control of the State highway department, Gov. Olin Johnston gave no indication today of yielding to either and a deadlock over the road bureau grew more rigid.

The 39-year-old State executive himself ordered an audit of the department by the State auditor for the period since his troops and a since-enjoined road board took it over October 28—one of the things he said would have to be done before the troops were removed—but the militia remained on duty meanwhile and the check was expected to require a week to a month.

The House of Representatives voted 108 to 3 today for a resolution urging the Governor to withdraw the troops and "restore the supremacy of civil authority," aligning itself with the Senate, which last night passed a similar resolution, 39 to 3.

The Governor was described as "determined" not to permit Chief Commissioner Ben M. Sawyer and the commissioners he suspended to regain control.

He received silently a certified copy of a Senate resolution by Senators Nance and Purdy which put that chamber on record against considering any highway matters while the troops remained on duty.

Ellsworth Hunters Buy Polar Clothes

Plane Completes Texas Hop From Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 13.—Fleece-lined clothing to ward off the Antarctic cold was taken abroad a speedy monoplane here today as it moved southward on a 9,000-mile journey to search for Lincoln Ellsworth, who disappeared in the icy wastes while exploring.

Pilot Dick Merrill and Mechanic William Henry Klenke, jr., began the long flight from Kansas City. They flew to Brownsville, Tex., after taking aboard 700 pounds of supplies here.

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 13 (AP). The Royal Research Society ship Discovery II arrived today in preparation for a search for Lincoln Ellsworth, missing since November 23 on an Antarctic flight with Herbert Hollick-Kenyon. The Discovery started outfitting for the voyage, on which it is to be dispatched next week. The ship will carry two airplanes, two pilots and four mechanics.

Lewis Tosses Hat In Senatorial Ring

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis tossed his hat into the 1936 ring tonight. The senior Democratic Senator from Illinois told interviewers that if Illinois Democrats wish he will campaign for re-election, seeking a third term.

Senator Lewis, back in Chicago after a trip to Russia, disclosed his plans for a campaign to reduce Federal expenses by drastic consolidation of governmental agencies.

"I have prepared a bill," he said, "to abolish the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, and to merge the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture.

"It would also abolish the Federal Reserve Board. The Secretary of the Treasury would conduct the Government's finance under laws specially defining his powers."

On The Air Today

HILLBILLY BILL BIVENS presents the second mettin' of the clan tonight from WJSV, at 11, when the Rolling Stones, Slim Hardy, Ernest Stoneman and others of the mounting folk git together fer an hour of singin' and fun.

"None of this hotcha, hi-de-ho, whoopie stuff on our new 'Cordwood Capers,'" says William. "It's goin' ter be a very friendly gatherin' jest like you have in the parlor on Saturday nights."

Bivens says he believes the time is ripe for a "homey" setting for a hillbilly hour. He 'lows as how the air is filled with cheap imitations of the real thing—with all the participants actin' as though they wax filled up to the adam's apple with hard cider.

So—an innovation in this type of entertainment. Emphasis on real harmonies, a few hymns and the atmosphere of the home.

Among others to be heard tonight are the Barnyard Revelers, hillbilly band; Virginians Quartet, singers of old-time songs and hymns; Originality Boys, novelty band, and Efriam and Fuzzy, black-face comedians.

Shannon Allen, production manager of N. B. C., in Washington, has risen to the defense of "Lights Out," which I took occasion to give space to yesterday. Mr. Allen has nothing whatever to do with the production of "Lights Out" as the midnight hour drama originates in the Chicago studios.

But Mr. Allen is first and foremost a production man and instinctively puts up his mitts in behalf of any show which, as he calmly and smilingly maintains, attracts the large audience as does "Lights Out." It seems, among other things, that in missing the opening announcement last Wednesday night, I missed the subtle tongue-in-the-cheek foreword explaining that the half-hour is slightly on the burlesque side, somewhat inclined to be sly hokum. Further, it is spotted at 12:30 a. m. for the express purpose of providing a "lights out" shocker for those who wish to be "shocked."

No one ever has even faintly suggested I lack imagination or am intolerant of any entertainment simply because I do not like it personally. As an example of showmanship, "Lights Out" is tops. I still maintain, however, that it is at fault in dealing with plot situations and climaxes that are stomach-turning. Mr. Allen contends that a "thriller" is not intended to be successful on finely drawn finesses.

After all, you, as the composite radio listener, are the judge. And I guess the mass audience likes "Lights Out."

"Pops" McCormick had his troubles trying to spell down the Central and Eastern High School teams in The Post Spelling Bee Thursday night (WMAL, at 8.) Finally one-half hour after the Bee had been forced off the air because of expiration of its time, Jacob Seidenberg, of Eastern, won from Virginia Lee Pettey, of McKinley. The match was hard fought. "Pops" McCormick was so impressed with the half-hour duel waged by the finalists that he gave Virginia Lee a $5 prize as well as Jacob—and out of his own pocket. "Those kids can take their places with the adult spellers anytime," "Pops" said after the Bee.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

SMARTING eyes and headaches were widespread throughout the Post Office Building yesterday as a result of the fire. Employes in all sections were affected by the alarms and confusion that attended the blaze.

BAKER.

The air-conditioning plant was functioning at full capacity and all fans in the building were going all day.

Among those who discovered the fire were Horace Russell, general counsel, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and two stenographers, Miss Ada Jackie (C) and Miss Jane Rouse (C). Shortly before midnight (ushering in Friday the Thirteenth!) the three heard a strange crackling noise under the floor of the general counsel's office in Room 7134.

They notified a passing guard, who immediately investigated and directed them to leave the building.

About 25 employes of the FHLBB legal division were forced to double up in other offices, but were working without confusion by yesterday noon.

Col. Harvey Jones, administrative assistant to Mr. Russell, and his staff, established temporary headquarters in the office of Associate General Counsel Wright Clark, in room 7110. Capt. Burton Smith, chief of the Division of Briefs, moved into 7011. The valuable law library is reported to have escaped damage.

Joseph B. Heil (F), head of the HOLC stockroom, hurriedly directed the movement of supplies yesterday, in an effort to salvage as much as possible before the water rose in the basement.

Employes recalling the excitement of July, when the building was struck by lightning, wondered what the next event would be.

Chemists Elect.

K. S. Markley, Food Research Division, Chemistry and Soils, and H. L. Haller, Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, have recently been elected secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Chemical Society of Washington. Dr. James F. Couch, Bureau of Animal Industry, retiring president of the society, was elected a member of the council.

H. A. Allard and Helen F. Smart, both of the Bureau of Plant Industry, have articles in a recent number of Science: "Synchronous Flashing of Fireflies" and "Growth and Survival of Microorganisms at Sub-freezing Temperatures," respectively.

Biological Talks.

Three bureaus of the Government will be represented on the program of the Biological Society of Washington when it meets tonight at the Cosmos Club.

E. R. Kalmbach, of the Biological Survey, will speak on "The Crow-Duck Relationship on Canadian Breeding Grounds." Donald Libby, National Park Service, will describe "Caroonized Wood Deposits of Crater Lake National Park." Charles E. Chambliss, Plant Industry, president of the society, will have for his subject "Wild Rice of the District of Columbia."

Both Mr. Kalmbach's and Mr. Chambliss' talks will be illustrated with slides. Visitors are welcome at 8 o'clock.

Tax Expert Retires.

Col. L. G. Nutt, after 39 years in the Government service, has been retired at the age of 70. For the past year Col. Nutt has been chief of the Federal alcohol tax unit for central and northern New York State, with headquarters at Syracuse. He and Mrs. Nutt have now returned to Washington to live.

Col. Nutt's first job with the Government was postmaster at Buckingham, Ill., his native city. In 1901 he resigned to become Internal Revenue field agent in the Philadelphia area.

During his career he has held many important posts, including that of chief of revenue agents, head of the Bureau of Narcotics, acting chief prohibition agents, and secretary of the Federal Narcotics Control Board.

Col. Nutt is father of Rolland Lee Nutt, Washington attorney.

Labor Department Host.

The spotlight of the pre-holiday social season of the various Federal departments will be focused on the dance and entertainment to be given by the Labor Department Athletic Association at the Washington Hotel.

Feature guests of the evening will be nearly all of the presidents of athletic associations and clubs in Government service, including Col. Horatio B. Hackett, PWA; John B. Holden, FHA; George T. Heckert, (F), State Department; J. Thomas Ford, (P), Government Printing Office; S. J. Tracy, Federal Bureau of Investigation; R. R. Stratton, Civil Service Commission; William G. Schutz, Internal Revenue; E. S. Klingle, Patent Office; A. S. Curran, Agriculture; John Fox, Farm Credit Administration; George Towberman, General Accounting Office (POD); Mack Myers, Interstate Commerce Commission; Paul Best, Young Democrats; First Lieut. O. L. Rogers, Marine Reserves; John Dunnegan, (C), Resettlement Administration; and Henry D. Edgerton, Labor.

Each association has announced a sponsor as its representative for the ball, being selected for popularity and personality.

The sponsors include:

Oscar Crosby To Visit Italy And Ethiopia

Will Be Second Trip to Africa; Tanganyika Jaunt Planned.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Mr. Oscar T. Crosby, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who, with his youngest daughter, Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller, has been wintering at the family's country home near Warrenton, is contemplating a trip to Italy and then to Africa. He and Mrs. Miller have made reservations on the Rex, sailing from New York January 18.

Mr. Crosby and his daughter will leave Friday by plane for Chicago to pass Christmas with Mrs. Arthur Hornblow, jr., the former Miss Juliette Crosby, who has been playing the leading role in "Dodsworth" for several weeks. On their return, plans for the African trip will be started in earnest.

Trip in 1900.

In 1900 Mr. Crosby, possessed of an "intellectual curiosity," as he calls it, to explore the Dark Continent, landed on the east coast of Africa and crossed Ethiopia to the headwaters of the Blue Nile. There, he descended the gorge of the river, which is almost a mile deep, crossed it and made the difficult ascent on the other side. After considerable travel he started the homeward trip, which took him through Khartoum. During his journey Mr. Crosby met the then monarch of Ethiopia—Menelik II, uncle of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Mr. Crosby and his daughter will first go to Italy to visit the former's grandson, Ludovico, son of Count and Countess Mario Caracciola di Melito, who is at school in Naples. Afterward they will sail down the east coast of Africa to Dar-Es-Salaam, in Tanganyika. Count Caracciola is Italian consul in that city.

Countess Visited Here.

Countess Caracciola, who was Miss Myriam Crosby, eldest of the three sisters, joined her husband a few months ago after spending a year in Italy with her son. Prior to that she visited this country with her father.

Mr. Crosby and Mrs. Miller will spend some time in Dar-Es-Salaam with the Caracciolas, and then plan a trip into the interior of Tanganyika. The Crosby home, Viewtree, in Virginia, already boasts a collection of weapons from Africa and the Philippines.

W. L. Snowdon And Wilmington Girl Married

Parents of Mary Jeffris Announce Wedding There on November 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Clayton Jeffris, of Wilmington, Del., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Adair Jeffris, to Mr. W. Latimer Snowdon, of Washington. Mr. Snowdon is the son of Mrs. Richard Ward Snowdon and has long been associated with residential Washington society.

The wedding took place on November 23 at 12 o'clock at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Wilmington, the Rev. R. Ridgeley Lythe officiating.

The bride wore a becoming gown of ivory satin modeled on medieval lines with a braided collar and braided girdle. Her veil was tulle with a medieval cap of old Rose Point lace belonging to her maternal great-grandmother. She carried white orchids and lillies of the valley.

Her only attendant was Miss Brenda Hazzard, who, since the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Snowdon, has become Mrs. Samuel Leland Crosthwaite. She wore a tailored gown of dull silver lame, with an off-the-face hat and slippers of fuchsia velvet. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers shaded from lavender of fuchsia.

Following the ceremony, there was a small reception at the bride's home for the immediate families and a few friends.

Mrs. Jeffris, the bride's mother, wore a black velvet suit with a blouse of ivory and gold lame, and black accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. Snowdon wore plum colored velvet with hat to match, with a corsage of gardenias and lillies of the valley.

The bride and bridegroom will be at home in Wilmington, where Mr. Snowdon is in business.

Concert Will Precede North Carolina Dance

A special concert will precede the Christmas dance of the North Carolina Society tonight at the Shoreham Hotel. Dr. Ovid C. Foote, president of the society, is in charge of arrangements.

The next event sponsored by the society will be "Congressional Night" on Saturday, January 11.

Mr. Lewis M. Haines Is Married To Miss Story in Utah Ceremony

Bishop Performs Rites; Couple Plan to Live in Long Beach.

Miss Florence MacArthur Story, daughter of Mrs. William Story, jr., of Salt Lake, and Mr. Lewis Marshall Haines, of Long Beach, Calif., son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Jackson Haines, 2322 Ashmead place, were married December 6 at the home of the bride's mother.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Arthur W. Moulton, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Utah, with only members of the immediate families and close friends as witnesses.

The bride is a popular member of Salt Lake society, where she is a member of the Junior League. She is a graduate of Smith College and is a former student of the University of Utah, where she was a member of the Chi Omega Sorority.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William MacArthur Story, wore her mother's wedding gown, a princess model of ivory silk with a deep bertha of rose-point lace. With it she wore a veil of tulle and a small coronet of the same lace. Her bouquet was of orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The bride's only attendants were her sisters, Mrs. Frank Boydell Goeltz, who wore a frock of rust velvet and carried a bouquet of talisman roses, and Miss Eleanor Story, who was frocked in olive-green velvet and carried yellow roses. Mrs. Glotz and Miss Story both wore chaplets of roses in their hair. Mr. Frank B. Goeltz acted as best man for the bridegroom.

At a reception later, Mrs. Story, mother of the bride, wore a model of taupe velvet with a corsage of gardenias, and Mrs. Haines, mother of the bridegroom, who went to Salt Lake for the wedding, was gowned in black velvet, with which she wore a corsage of gardenias. Miss Margaret Deebel, of Long Beach, attended the marriage.

Daughters of 1812 Plan Yule Party

D. C. Society Will Give Christmas Affair.

The officers of the District of Columbia Society of the United States Daughters of 1812 will be hostesses at a Christmas party to be held at national headquarters, 1461 Rhode Island avenue, Wednesday evening. Husbands of the members will be guests. The officers of the Men's Society of the War of 1812, with their wives, will also be present. Gifts for the children of mountain schools will be received.

The program under the direction of Mrs. S. McDowell Meek, will include readings by Isobel Gregory, radio artist; a mandolin, guitar and piano trio presented by Sophocles Pappas; character impersonations by Miss Katherine Kammerer, and a group of songs by Mr. Philip Baxter, tenor.

Sisters Plan Dual Nuptials

Elizabeth Denlon to Wed Capt. Cole; Katherine Also to Be Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Fenlon, of Pelham Manor, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Fenlon, to Capt. Hubert Merrill Cole, son of Brig. Gen. William E. Cole and Mrs. Cole, of Fort Totten, Long Island.

Miss Fenlon attended Ursuline Convent at New Rochelle, N. Y., and Pelham High School and was graduated from Georgetown Visitation Convent, at Washington. Later she studied at Grand Central School of Art. Capt. Cole was graduated from West Point in 1925.

Miss Fenlon and her sister, Miss Katherine Fenlon, will be brides at a double wedding in St. Catherine's Church at Pelham December 26. Miss Katherine Fenlon will wed Mr. Robert H. Christie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Christie, of New Rochelle.

Capt. Cole and his bride will sail aboard the Republic December 28 for California, where the former will be stationed at the Presidio, Monterey.

Costume Aided By Scarf, Hat And Glove Sets

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THIS is the season when you weary of your winter suit, and your winter coat begins to pall. If you have reached this stage, there's one remedy, and a simple one at that. Pep up your coat and suit with gay accessories. Turn to the bright and winsome scarf, hat and glove sets to bring variety and color to your wardrobe.

Such sets as these fill a variety of needs and many purposes. For the college girl they provide just that dash so necessary for campus chic. For the young sports woman they are warm, serviceable and appropriate. And you who bundle up on wintry mornings to do your marketing will find them indispensable.

What's more, they make ideal Christmas gifts.

Gift Suggestion for Dad.

THOSE of you who want to put something on the Christmas tree for Dad, something that will bowl him over with surprise—shshsh, here's the very thing! It's a ball of soap, as big around as a canteloupe, attached to a long loop of soft rope. When he takes his shower in the mornings, he can sling the rope over his shoulders and have a jolly time soaping away.

Novelty String Holder.

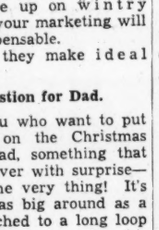
AND THOSE of you who want to surprise mother with a clever little novelty must see the funny cord or string holder shown in the notions department of a downtown store. It's the head of a chef, made from some kind of stiffened fabric. The cord comes from a pair of thick lips, painted bright red by the ingenious designer. Mr. Chef is made for hanging on the kitchen wall where he can supply string at a moment's notice.

Electric Heating Pad.

ABOUT the nicest little bundle of heat we've seen in many a day is the electric heating pad made of rubber. You simply plug in the cord and presto, the cozy little thing begins to run a temperature. You can depend on it, however, not to become too hot. Furthermore, it's guaranteed not to play shocking tricks. The price—$1.

Bargain in Perfumes.

THE YOUNG BUYER for the toilet goods department in a certain downtown store springs a sprprise on us every so often. This time he vanquishes our shopping resistance with a bargain in drams of perfume.



Says he, "About the nicest little gift a person can give is a bottle of perfume. But by the time you add the price of the perfume to the price of an ornamental bottle, then what ho, the little gift takes on large dimensions!" He gets around this by giving you the bottles free, and gems they are! Made of a clear cut-glass and sure to prove an ornament to a dressing table.

But wait—there's more yet. Along with the bottles come lovely silver boxes that fit them to a T. If you like, he'll even label the bottle with the name of the perfume you buy.

Gold and Silver Kid Bandeaux.

BANDEAUX for the hair are becoming more popular every day. Women are finding how flattering they are to face and costume alike. Especially smart are those of gold and silver kid. You may buy these plain, with simple, flat kid bows, or sprinkled lavishly with colorful brilliants.

These kid head pieces appeared first in Paris, where it became a vogue to match your bandeaux to your slippers.

How to Seek Men's Company in Disarming Way Is Problem of 40-Year-Old.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am 40 years old and in my childhood had plenty of friends, both girls and boys. In those days it was the boys, who extended the invitations to go places. Therefore, I have never learned the modern technique of soliciting the company of a man as escort. What I should like to know is this: What method may I use to put such a request to a gentleman, and yet make it quite clear to him that I am not matrimonially interested in him. For at my age, no doubt any man so approached would probably think he was the object of serious cap-setting.

* * * *

Don't misunderstand me. I am not after a professional gigolo. But what I would like to know is, does a woman in taking the initiative in making an engagement with a man offer to pay her own way and his, too? Perhaps this is a question of etiquette, but if you see fit to answer it in your column, don't use either my name or initials.

JANE DOE.

No Royal Road.

DEAR JANE DOE: If there exists a standard modern technique used by women in soliciting the paired-off social companionship of individual men, I do not know of it. If such a practice exists in any form, it probably registers in the insouciant camaraderie of the younger generation; or, if among older persons, only in a group where everyone knew everyone else so well that such address on the part of a woman to a man could not possibly be misconstrued.

* * * *

In risking the humiliation a woman of gentle sensibilities would naturally feel in having her direct solicitation of a man's company declined, it seems to me that woman would first need to fortify her position by conveying her invitation as a favor, not as an appeal. For instance, in your case, if you drive your own car and had come into possession of a pair of tickets for theater, opera or concert, say, you might, if sufficiently adroit in managing conversation, weave an indirect invitation into your chat with the man you had in mind as your companion. Or if you had received an invitation to some social function which gave you the privilege of fetching an interesting man, again you would be in a position to seem to extend a favor.

* * * *

Are you a member of any club which has headquarters here where you might take friends to dine? Do you follow the lectures, forums and concerts which characterize Washington's winter season? Have you a well-informed, tolerant mind? An objective mental attitude toward men and emotions? A talent for making interesting or amusing conversation? Are you pleasantly self-possessed and do you know at least one personable, congenial married couple near your own age? If "yes" is the correct answer to all the above questions, you might seize quite candidly on some eligible man who has given you reason to believe he enjoys your company and ask him for dinner some evening preceding a lecture, forum or concert you think he would enjoy. Tell him the So-and-So's are coming and you want him for a fourth. It would be best if you could give the dinner at home; but if it must be done in hotel or club, keep the financial transaction entirely out of sight. This can be done by paying for table-d'hote service in advance; or by arranging to sign a check at the meal's conclusion. Naturally, you would have tickets for the remainder of the evening's entertainment already in your purse. Don't agonize over who pays cab fare, if a taxicab is used for transportation. Have silver change ready in the proper denominations, but don't be aggressive even though it is your party in denying this gesture to a man, if he insists on claiming it.

M. H.

By Malvina Lindsay.

THE OPEN SEASON for Lady Bountifuls has arrived. Within the next few days these well-meaning benefactresses will do much good. But they will also do much harm. And the methods by which they will work again will remind us that Christmas charity is still largely practiced on a medieval basis.

It is a fine and beautiful thing that at Christmas nearly everyone wants to do something for those less fortunate. But we do not seem to have reached the stage where we can practice our charity in a selfless and democratic manner. We still want to experience the self-satisfied glow of manor lords and ladies graciously dispensing Christmas cheer to grateful retainers.

* * * *

The Christmas basket and the Christmas "adoption" of families are cases in point. These worthy devices for aiding the needy too often become vehicles for the self-glorification of the donor and the pauperization of the recipient. How often, for example, will the individuals or organizations giving a basket, or volunteering to be Santa Claus to a family, consent to remain in the background?

* * * *

Usually, instead of letting trained social workers familiar with the family's background handle the matter, they will insist on doing their own investigating "to see if the people are deserving"—or sufficiently spectacular in their poverty. Often by their tactlessness, their snoopiness, their sentimentality, they will undo all the intangible good, such as the building up of the spirit of self-reliance and ambition, that social agencies have accomplished.

THE AVERAGE PERSON bent on a Christmas mission thinks it only natural that he—or more often she—should dump the handout in person at the door of the needy family. Individuals, Sunday school classes, clubs, all with the best of intent, like to come breezing into squalid homes with arms filled with Christmas cheer. It gives them a warming, expanding feeling to see distress alleviated, to witness the gratitude of those served.

* * * *

Seldom do they stop to think that such a visitation not only has a pauperizing effect upon the needy children who witness it, but that it holds the parents up as futile and inept, destroys their self-respect, and robs them of the inalienable privilege of being Santa Clauses to their own families.

* * * *

Surely some more subtle and democratic ways of dispensing Christmas charity could be worked out! Would it not be possible to establish a before-Christmas employment exchange, whereby a part of the self-respecting needy at least could earn funs to provide Christmas for their families? Would it not be possible for women to use the funds they expend for Christmas charity in providing special household cleaning and repair work, sewing, mending, cooking (at decent wages) to persons in need of a holiday lift? Or, failing at this, would it not be possible for deserving families to be provided with Christmas funds, or supplies, through social agencies in an unobtrusive manner with the donors remaining in the background?

CHRISTMAS charity is not the proper field for rugged or sentimental individualism. It is a field for intelligent collective action. Much has already been done by social agencies to eliminate the waste, duplication and injustices that formerly characterized Christmas giving.

* * * *

However, further steps are needed. Those who give must be educated to a deeper understanding of the intangible needs of those whom they would help. They must learn that Christmas charity does not merely mean donning the long, white beard of Santa Claus and passing out material gifts, but that it means a genuine attempt to help the needy help themselves.

* * * *

Social workers have long struggled with the Christmas charity problem. They have been handicapped in doing anything constructive by the vanity, childishness and sentimentality of individuals. Women, who are the traditional loaf givers of the home and now the leaders in social welfare outside the home, should lend their aid in taking the feudalism out of Christmas giving, in making it more intelligent, more unselfish, and more American.

Available Jobs Survey Results Are Announced

By Hope Ridings Miller.

FOR THE PAST decade the outlook has been dreary for women in need of employment.

In this country vast numbers of unemployed men have clamored against women wage earners. From Europe have come countless reports that women workers are being deprived of employment, are being forced back to the kitchen. Even woman's old standby—the teaching profession—has dropped women from its ranks, replaced them with men. What is to be done? What jobs, if any, are now available to college graduates? Are there any openings for women in the business world?

Answers to these questions were given yesterday afternoon at Hunter College in New York, when Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, director of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, made public for the first time findings of a study which she has been conducting for the government on "New Trends in Women's Work."

As a result of its research on the job situation and women's chances in the business world, the institute has discovered there are numerous opportunities for women, provided they have the proper training, some initiative and much imagination.

Suitable Fields Listed.

Among suitable fields for women workers mentioned by Mrs. Woodhouse yesterday were the following:

1. Journalism. Mrs. Woodhouse advised girls interested in this line to "look to the trade journals, where the field is growing and improving. Each trade has its own magazine. Women are welcome on these publications. An intelligent girl with a good college background, a knowledge of how to get over ideas and the ability to make contacts and get along with people, interview them, and tell their story has a real opportunity."

2. Department Store Work. "Executives are just begining to realize the peculiar need of women in higher positions in department stores," she said. "There is a wide range of positions in this field. Some, in the personnel department, are much like teaching jobs; in the others, selling ability and merchandise sense are needed."

3. New Types of Business Opportunities. "Women in increasing numbers are finding employment in public utilities, in food manufacturing and distributing concerns, and as liaison officers between the production room and the consumer," Mrs. Woodhouse explained.

Small-Town Opportunities.

"Another field which more women should investigate is that of the small business in the small town, where the selling service is important as well as the goods. Two women in one small Southern town are making a fairly good living by telephone. They know what bargains are being sold in the stores each day; they telephone to their list of customers, give them the information and do the shopping when the customers wish it."

Openings for "Package Stylists" were also mentioned by Mrs. Woodhouse in this connection. Such stylists, she explained, design boxes, tins, jars and other suitable containers for merchandise from foods to cosmetics.

4. Hotel Work. Discussing this, Mrs. Woodhouse drew attention to the fact that changes in housing habits are opening up new activities for women. Today they are finding employment as hotel managers, executive housekeepers, linen-room heads, inspectors of sections of floors," she said. "Another hotel job of recent development is that of social director. A woman who obtains this position arranges for banquets and special parties, provides entertainment for guests and manages the library."

5. Motion Pictures. "This industry offers women many jobs besides acting," she said. "The person of artistic appreciation and knowledge has a place in the wardrobe and stage settings departments where numerous employes are needed."

Requirements Discussed.

Discussing the requirements of women seeking jobs, Mrs. Woodhouse emphasized that "A thorough command of English is basic to any occupation. A good speaking voice and a command of words pronounced without any marked geographical eccent; the ability to write a concise, clear report; skill enough to dictate a brief, well-expressed letter and to spell—any occupation which the educated woman will enter requires these qualities and skills."

Summing up the employment situation in regard to women's work, she pointed out that trends in occupations over the last 30 years show very definitely that as our technological aids and skills increase, the number of persons in production decreases. "Today we need fewer persons to make food and clothing than we did 30 years ago, when methods of agriculture and of manufacturing were less efficient," she said. "Thus the tendency is for more and more persons to be employed in 'service' occupations. As times improve, we can expect to see more persons in education—not, perhaps, in the orthodox branches, but in adult education, in community recreation work, in helping groups make wise use of leisure, such as in writing, producing and acting their own plays, in arranging community pageants, debates, open forums.

Since its establishment in 1929, the Institute of Women's Professional Relations, of which Mrs. Catherine Filene Shouse, of Washington, is president, has endeavored to place before the young woman in college and the woman in business or professions changing trends in women's work.

Ban Is Urged On Stimulants For Children

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

FROM THE TIME he could walk, Sammy was allowed to drink both tea and coffee. To be sure, it was only cambric tea, and the coffee was hot milk with a teaspoonful of coffee added. His mother claimed that only in this way could she make him drink milk. The amount of stimulant he got was so small as to be negligible.

It was, however, a stimulant, and no matter how small the quantity, was gradually accustoming the child to the need of stimulants.

Tea and coffee have a place in life, but not for children. The longer a person can keep from using them, the better. Certainly no child not well on in its teens should touch them. Even the child of 15 or 16 should be given them very seldom, if at all, and then preferably in the weakest form possible.

The use of stimulants is a habit quite as much as the use of drugs, and grows upon one imperceptibly, but surely, until one becomes unable to do without the "lift" they seem to give.

Plenty of harmless things can be put into milk to make it palatable for the child who will not drink it straight. If it is taken for granted that a child will drink milk as naturally as he eats his meals, and that no objection to it is valid, he wil be pretty sure to take it as a matter of course, too.

If, however, the mischief is done, and he has formed a rooted dislike for such a childish beverage, a little cocoa is far better than tea or coffee to disguise its taste and color, and cream sauces or soups, cereals served with milk, or milk puddings and custards for dessert, will give him the amount of milk which is essential to his health.

Electric Shock Peril Reduced If Skin Is Dry

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

THE manifold applications of electricity have influenced our standards of living to a marked degree. Labor-saving devices, particularly in the home, have multiplied. Nevertheless, electric current must be controlled—"cabined, cribbed and confined"—if it is to serve without danger. The use of electricity is increasing and should increase, but certainly even greater care must be exercised in surrounding electrical equipment, transmission lines, transformers, etc., with every possible safeguard. In the United States the number of deaths from electrical accidents is estimated as between 700 and 800 each year. These figures should give us pause and the question may be asked, "Are these fatalities necessary" We may further inquire how electricity affects vital functions of the body.

Dry Skin a Poor Conductor.

There are many factors that influence the effects of electricity. For example, a dry skin is a poor conductor—in other words, it interposes a formidable barrier to the penetration of the body. A moist skin lowers the resistance and a thoroughly wet skin acts as a good conductor. The length of time that the current flows is also of importance. A charge that continues for but a fraction of a second may be without danger, whereas the same charge endured for several seconds may cause death.

Those who have experienced a strong electrical shock, and who have survived, recall the agonizing pain. Many describe the immediate but temporary loss of sight preceded by bright flashes before the eyes. Others mention the fact that the time sense disappeared and that five seconds seemed like ten minutes. Some of these persons became unconscious, exhibiting convulsions, twitchings, or tremors during the period.

Current Affects Heart Muscle.

The number of nonfatal electrical injuries is probably large, varying from slight shocks to severe burns. Perhaps some of us have had the experience of grasping a live wire—fortunately, with dry hands—and have had difficulty in releasing the fingers because of the immediate, sharp, vigorous, muscular spasm. While the grasp may not be broken as long as contraction is maintained, the body may be pulled away by a violent effort, thus severing the contact. As soon as the connection is broken the muscles relax.

Whenever a strong current passes through the body the heart muscle may be thrown into a similar state of contraction. It will cease to beat and if the current continues long enough and if it is sufficiently strong the heart will fail to resume its function. If the organ happens to be in the direct pathway of its current in its flow through the body, beating will stop under the effects of a lighter charge. If the current can be broken even a heart that has stopped for a few beats will resume its action either of its own accord or under proper stimulation.

In like manner the effect on the muscles of respiration is so pronounced that breathing becomes impossible as long as a current of sufficient strength is maintained. The chest muscles and the diaphragm are rendered immobile.

The prevention of electrical accidents lies rather largely in the hands of electrical engineers and of manufacturers of electrical equipment. Of course, no type of apparatus can be made absolutely foolproof and we must all use reasonable caution in connecting, disconnecting, and operating electrical devices.

Color Rampant in Christmas Gift Underwear; Piping Appears on Many of Smartest Garments

Monograms Reach New Peak of Popularity of Late.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—A festive box . . . a Christmas ribbon . . . off with the lid—and presto! The box is filled with frothy undies in luscious colors! An eye-filling and useful present to greet her on Christmas day in the morning!

This year, Fashion is putting more color in underwear than in many a long day. Nightgowns, especially, go in for plenty of it. Sometimes white polka dots are splashed against deep jewel backgrounds—sometimes it's the other way round. The dots may be of different sizes—just strewn casually about without any particular geometric pattern.

Piping appears importantly on many of the smartest undies—a fashion device high in favor with the college girl. We've sketched a set of snow-white undies piped with cherry red.

Simulated monograms (not real initials though they look like them) are often worked in the same color as the pipings, while real monograms—costing a little extra—have reached a new peak of popularity lately. It's getting to be the height of fashion to label as many of your possessions as possible. Some damsels even like their whole name written out!

New Printed Satin Ones Are the Last Word in Elegance.

The new printed satin underwear is quite the last word in elegance—and sure to be a welcome gift. Fragile colors are splashed against deeper grounds—and vice versa. Fitting gifts for lovely ladies!

Definitely eye-filling are the all-black undies—and apt to make her feel, as well as look, a little wicked. Black chiffon step-ins and bras and all-in-ones fairly foaming with lace . . . fitting foundations for a "come-hither" evening gown!

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"I'M SET on surprising my wife for Christmas," one man said to us the other day, "because I think that's half the fun of Christmas for everybody. But what shall I get that she'll really like? She loves to fix up around the house and so I'm about decided on a piece of furniture of some sort . . . and incidentally she's such a good sport that she'll never crab or let me know if it isn't right . . . so I'm doubly eager to please her."

First, our hat off to the lady whose husband thinks she's a good sport. That's the top tribute! And now to the present business . . . we've yet to see a house where there were really enough small occasional tables. Why wouldn't that be a good solution here? A coffee table, a pair of end tables, a book table, a tea table, a sewing table—there are any number of small tables that will be welcome in almost any home. And for a present a man can get a nicer one than a lady would probably feel she could afford to buy herself. The main thing to think about in making the selection is to get a style that harmonizes with her other things. For instance, if she has mostly colonial maple, then it's wisest to get small tables of this style . . . if she has eighteenth century English furniture, then almost anything in Chippendale, Sheraton, Hepplewhite, Adam or Queen Anne design would be suitable. If the living room is not in any one style, but very informal in spirit, the chances are that a simple colonial table will fit best. If it is a more formal room, but not in any one period, an eighteenth century English table will probably be the best selection. If the room is in another more decisive style, keep to that period in the choice of a small table.

Business Women Can Now Have Economical Meals at Home If They Buy Wisely

Maid Simplifies the Job, but One Isn't Necessary.

Cooking for 2 Less Costly Than for 1; Butcher, Grocer Can Help.

By Dorothea Duncan.

TO COOK or not to cook, that is the question that confronts the young business woman living in a small kitchenette apartment.

D. DUNCAN.

The woman who has never wielded a skillet will find the prospect of buying and cooking her own meals a real adventure, and an expensive one if she isn't careful. Cooking for one or two persons can be an expensive proposition unless one is constantly mindful of the fact that the foods must be purchased in small quantities. Many of the foods, too, particularly the meats, which are the smaller portion of the meals, are expensive. These factors must be considered before one plunges into an orgy of cooking.

However, if you firmly decide that meals served in your own kitchenette are more attractive to you than restaurant meals every evening in the week, you can, with a little forethought, work out a plan by which you can have well-balanced and interesting meals at a small cost.

Naturally it is less expensive to feed two persons than one in proportion, for while there will be leftovers occasionally, the problem will never reach so great a proportion when there are two as one.

Weekly Budget Advised.

It is well to set aside your allowance for meals at the beginning of every week. A definite sum for food, which may also include incidental expenses such as laundry, soap, scrubbing powder, etc., gives you a guide as to how much of your salary your meals are really absorbing. Some weeks when it is necessary to lay in a supply of staple articles of food, your budget will call for very inexpensive dishes. At other times you will find that you can afford a chicken or a small roast.

It is possible in Washington for two women (and you notice that we specify two women because the experiment did not allow for a man's appetite) to spend as little as $11 or $12 a week for breakfast and dinner. This amount of money will cover the expense of food, laundry and the above mentioned kitchen incidentals, and the wages of a girl to cook five nights a week and come in two entire afternoons a week to do the necessary cleaning and personal laundry. The five nights that the maid cooks dinner she also eats at the apartment.

This expenditure does not include elaborate foods, but it does cover the necessary requirements of attractive and well-balanced meals.

Leftovers Utilized.

All leftovers are utilized, canned foods are used when the fresh article is out of line with the usual seasonal prices, inexpensive cuts of meat are purchased rather than the expensive ones. Meat substitutes or fresh or canned fish are used when the budget is lean.

The inexperienced shopper will find that a wise butcher and grocer can do wonders to help her with a selection of inexpensive foods. A cook, if she knows her business, can also help the woman who finds that she has too little time to give to kitchen activity after working hours.

It is more economical in the long run to decide whether it will be dinner and breakfast in the apartment, or dinner and breakfast in a restaurant. Combining the two features is more expensive than doing one or the other separately. Helter-skelter meals at home mean that food will be wasted.

Maid Solves Problem.

The girl to do the apartment cleaning, personal laundry and cooking is often a success because it gives you a responsible plan by which to manage your apartment duties. After a wearing day at the office, for example, when you might dash into the nearest restaurant for a bite of dinner instead of going home to face the problem of cooking your own dinner, you instead go home to a half hour of relaxation before dinner.

All the little tasks in the apartment that absorb so much of a business woman's time when she could be enjoying leisure hours can be skillfully taken care of by the maid. She can in her cleaning hours take care of the laundering of silk blouses that would otherwise run up the cleaners' bills, or she could do other little tasks that frequently call for the apartment janitor and a tip of 25 or 50 cents. Consequently you will find that one budget will cover many needs very successfully.

Clip the coupon found elsewhere on this page and send it with your name and address and a stamp to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post for her bulletin, which gives food suggestions and inexpensive menus for two.

Smart New Accessories Transform Dining Nook

Redecorated Open-Faced Wall Cupboard Will Have Dashing Effect When Dishes Are Arranged Artistically on the Shelves.

SMART NEW accessories for the dining nook fit in with the modern scheme of things because they are charming as well as practical. Take the sparkling cellulose film curtains in the nook pictured above and the matching plaid lacquered drapes, chair pads and table doilies, for example. They are as cheering as your morning cup of coffee, up-to-the-minute in color and design, and can be kept fresh and clean merely by wiping with a damp cloth.

The modern dinette has become just as up-to-date and charming as the modern kitchenette and it is decorated in a manner very similar, for this nook is often merely a part of the kitchen itself.

The interesting note about these gay fabrics is the manner in which they can be purchased. The chair pads are made up and the doilie and curtain material can be purchased by the yard to match.

The edges of the drapes and doilies are simply pinked (this can be done at some of the stores in which the fabric is purchased or with a regular dressmaker's pinking shears). The curtain edges are hemmed back like those of any skrim or net curtains. Bright rick-rack in a contrasting color covers the stitching and adds an effective trimming to the glass curtains.

The business woman who wants her dining nook to be attractive as well as easy to keep clean, will find that these accessories are perfect for her needs as well as inexpensive to make.

If you have an ugly open-faced wall cupboard in you dining nook, take some evening off and redecorate it. It will cost you no more than your time, a little paint and a bit of scalloped fluting made of cellulose film.

Wash the inner cupboard thoroughly and paint the shelves and surrounding walls to match the predominating color in the table accessories. If the woodwork is dark a light color will be effective for the inner cupboard or if the woodwork is light, reverse the color scheme. Outline the width of the cupboard and the shelves with the fluting which is made of cellulose film laminated to gauze, scalloped at the bottom and bound at the top with a contrasting color.

This cupboard will make a dashing wall decoration when the dishes are artistically arranged on the shelves.

Yule Dinner Tip: Try Spiced Apples With Meat Course

Spiced apples should certainly find a place on every holiday menu, for there is no better accompaniment for the usual Christmas week meats—duck, turkey, chicken, goose, baked ham or fresh pork. They may be colored red with vegetable coloring, which will also add to their Yuletide appearance. Prepare the apples in the following manner:

The ingredients are 8 apples, 2 cups of water, red coloring, 1½ cups sugar, one-third cup vinegar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, and 1 teaspoon cloves.

Peel and core apples. Add water and boil ten minutes. Add sufficient coloring to give desired tint, add rest of ingredients. Simmer ten minutes. Serve apples filled with mint jelly as ham garnish.

Store Shelves Provide Beans In All Styles

Simple Process of Canning Brings Abundance of Winter Food.

WINTER days make us hungry for the heat giving foods which furnish plenty of energy to keep us warm and help us work. No longer do we need to keep the pot of beans cooking for hours and hours to develop the rich flavor characteristic of our favorite bean dishes. Thanks to expert chefs who have tried out many methods of preparing foods and from their experience have selected the ones best suited to delicious finished products and these are offered in tin cans.

By scientific control of each process, as well as selection of ingredients, the beans are never under done or over done, but always at the choice degree of perfection. From the grocer's shelf it is possible to select many different styles of beans.

The popular white navy bean prepared with tomato sauce or with pork; some known as oven baked beans, some as deep brown or Boston baked beans, but always beans with a rich flavor due to careful seasoning and cooking.

Lima beans, and they are delicious! If you have not tried making them into a dish of Spanish beans, do so before long, for they are a grand change from spaghetti and make a hit every time.

Red beans—plain red kidney beans, or red kidney beans with pork and tomato sauce—are more treats for the family. Red kidney beans fixed with canned tomatoes and plenty of cheese and served on toast, make an excellent, hearty luncheon dish. This dish, supplemented with a salad of crisp celery and apples and milk, will find favor with the grown-ups as well as the youngsters.

Bean soup made from white navy beans and black bean soup made from black beans offer the family something extra fine to enjoy. Black bean is a rare delicacy when served with thin slices of hard-cooked eggs and lemon and makes a tempting luncheon dish.

Then there are bean sprouts. The sprouts are what you usually add to the chop suey mixture, but they are excellent when served plain with just plenty of melted butter, salt and pepper.

The bean family would not be complete without mention of the popular green and wax beans. They are quite different from other types, but, of course, they are beans and offer variety to our winter meals.

Suggestions Given For Holiday Candy

Pulled Mints Can Be Made in Many Colors.

HERE is a candy suggestion for your Christmas boxes submitted by Mrs. A. L. Aylesworth, 5 West Lincoln street, Buckhannon, W. Va., Use the following recipe for pulled mints, but divide the candy into several sections, using a different flavor and color for each part. Red, pink, green and yellow vegetable coloring may be used. Oil of wintergreen peppermint or cinnamon are just a few of the suggested flavorings.

Pulled Mints.

2 cups of granulated sugar
4 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon peppermint flavorlng
Powdered sugar
1 cup boiling water

Combine butter, sugar and water and boil to a hard ball or crack stage (265 degrees to 275 degrees (Fahrenheit).

Pour into well-buttered pans. Cool and pull until brittle. Cut into inch pieces. Dust with powdered sugar and place in jar or covered dish until mints become creamy.

Kale Now Cheaper, Replaces Spinach

Cooking Should Be Rapid to Save Food Value.

At present, kale is less expensive than spinach and may be used as a successful substitute for the latter vegetable.

Some cookbooks will suggest that kale be cooked in the same manner as spinach, using only the water that clings to the leaves for the cooking. Other books suggest that kale be cooked in a large amount of boiling water. This second method may be more attractive to those persons who prefer a mild-flavored vegetable. Kale does have a stronger flavor than spinach, and the cooking in a large amount of water will lessen this pronounced flavor.

Be sure, however, when cooking the kale in a large amount of water to have the water boiling, so the vegetable will cook as rapidly as possible, with the result that no more of the food value is lost in the water than in the ordinary cooking by steaming.

Too Much Dressing.

If you have accidentally prepared too much dressing for a fowl, place the remaining portion, after the bird has been stuffed, in a buttered casserole or loaf-bread pan and bake it during the last hour that the fowl is in the oven.

Peach Appetizer.

Canned peach halves in their own sirup may be too sweet a fruit with which to start breakfast, but if they are drained and then served with orange juice they become a wonderful appetizer. The sirup may be used for a pudding sauce for dinner.

MENUS FOR SUNDAY

BREAKFAST

Anjou pears — Tokay grapes
White toast — Butter — Orange marmalade
Coffee — Milk (for children)

DINNER

Grapefruit cup with sherry
Fricassee of chicken — Gravy
Hot biscuits
Glazed carrots — Creamed brussels sprouts
Jellied cranberry and celery salad
Black walnut ice cream — Brownies
Coffee — Milk (for children)

Soaking No Longer Needed for Prunes

TO prepare an ordinary dish of stewed prunes or dried apricots, housewives, once upon a time, soaked the fruit overnight and simmered it for several hours the next day. Now the overnight soaking and long slow cooking is no longer necessary. In fact, when prepared by the quick method the fruit has a firmer texture and more character. It also has a sweeter flavor as more of the sugar is retained in the fruit instead of going into the juice.

But why this change to a new method of cookery? The answer lies in the fact that dried fruits are processed, just before they are packaged, in such a way as to save the housewife this extra time and thought in their preparation.

Ingredient for Soup.

Part of the water in which vegetables have been cooked should be saved for use in soups. The other portion may be combined with milk in making a white sauce for the vegetables. You will find this sauce well flavored and it will contain some of the food value lost by the vegetables in cooking.

Vinegar Helps Flavor Of Navy Bean Soup

A few drops of vinegar or lemon juice will enhance the flavor of soup made from navy beans.

It is advisable, however, not to season the soup with the acid flavors, for all persons do not like this addition. Rather place a cruet of vinegar on the table, when the soup is served, or serve lemon wedges, the lemon being placed on the plate that accompanies the soup bowl.

Sauce for Salmon.

Broiled fresh salmon is delicious when served with a sauce made of finely chopped hard cooked eggs, which have been seasoned with lemon juice, salt, pepper and a dash of paprika.

Two Ministers Withhold Fire On A.B.C. Store

Will Not Object Pending Trial of Arlington County Proposal.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

After conferring with two members of the State alcoholic beverage control board yesterday, two Clarendon pastors, the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell and the Rev. John Pearson, agreed not to object to the establishment of a State liquor store in Arlington County.

This was in the nature of a temporary agreement. The two ministers said they would watch the situation with the establishment of the store and take their objections to the board again if they deem conditions warrant complaints against it.

Pearson and Mitchell went to Richmond yesterday morning when they learned that establishment of a liquor store on December 30 in the county was contemplated, because, they said, they had been assured by the former chairman of the board that there was no need for the store.

Their objections to the store were temporarily withdrawn, the ministers indicated, because of certain conditions in the county described to them by Board Members T. McCall Frazier and Hunter Miller. These conditions, revealed by State investigators, included the following:

That liquor of an "inferior" grade was being delivered in the county, and that advertisements for this telephone delivery service were appearing in a county newspaper.

The ministers were told by the board members that recently two county officials appeared before the board at Richmond and expressed the opinion that residents of Arlington County should have the same privilege of buying a safe quality of liquor as do other residents of the State.

Accepting the opinion of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas on a claim of $34,607 from the American LaFrance & Foamite Industries, Inc., the county board denied the claim.

Attorneys Frank L. Ball and William C. Gloth, representing the company, told the board that they will take the matter to the Circuit Court for settlement. The apparatus for which the claim is presented for payment was purchased by the old board of supervisors in 1929 and 1931.

A. Lane Cricher, representing the citizens of Oakcrest, Arlington Ridge and vicinity, appeared before the board and filed a protest against the erection of the proposed $4,000,000 Government apartment project. No action was staken by the board.

The board authorized the payment of $8,734 to the Clarendon Community Sewerage Corporation for its lines, which are to become a part of the county sewerage system. The board also approved the purchase of the Lyon Village sewerage system at a cost of $2,550.

Acting upon the request of Sheriff Howard B. Field, the board authorized the purchase of two police cars, both to be equipped with radio and siren.

Chance Buchanan, president of the Arlington County Civic Federation, announced the appointment of the following members as delegates to the Interfederation Conference: William C. Hull, Arthur Orr, Robert E. Plymale, Mrs. L. C. McNemar, Dr. Victor E. Meyers, C. Lester Bennett, Monroe H. Stockett and Chance Buchanan.

Announcement has been made of the appointment of Chance Buchanan as chairman of the Arlington County committee in charge of arrangements for the President's Ball. The appointment was made by Henry Doherty, national chairman.

The Young Democratic Club of Arlington County will sponsor a dance tonight at Lee Tavern on Glebe road. Dancing will begin at 10 o'clock with music by Northrup Church and his orchestra.

Virginia Dentists Name Smoot Head

Northern State Body Picks Warrenton for Parley.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Manassas, Va., Dec. 13.—Dr. F. P. Smoot, of Leesburg, was elected president of the Northern Virginia Dental Association at their annual meeting here yesterday. He will succeed Dr. W. G. Palmer, of Culpeper, who presided at the meeting.

Other officers elected for the coming year were Dr. C. P. Kennedy, of Fredericksburg, president-elect, and Dr. B. M. Haley, of Warrenton, secretary-treasurer. Warrenton was named for the 1936 meeting.

Turkey Day Warrants Are Applied for in Vain

Princess Anne, Md., Dec. 13 (AP). Princess Anne was quiet again today after momentary repercussions over the "turkey day" held here last Saturday.

A Baltimore man, who said he was a representative of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, came here yesterday to investigate reports a live turkey had been torn apart in the crowd which struggled for the birds. The turkeys were tossed from the second story of the courthouse to the crowd in the square below.

The Baltimorean interviewed businessmen regarding the celebration and asked warrants charging some of the promoters of the affair with cruelty to animals, but was told by Magistrate P. Mark White that his office had closed for the day.

Heads Fairfax Bar

JUDGE PAUL E. BROWN, new Commonwealth's attorney of Fairfax County, Va., has been elected president of the county bar association.

Veteran Official To Be Honored By Fairfax Bar

Group Named to Select Gift to F. W. Richardson Upon Retirement.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O Box 245. Fairfax, Va.
Phone Alexandria 43-F-31.

The Bar Association of Fairfax County, Va., will honor F. W. Richardson, who will retire as county clerk December 31 following 55 years of service in that office.

Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore, John S. Barbour and Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr were named as a committee of the bar to decide upon a suitable remembrance and to set a date for the presentation. It is planned to hold the exercises as near the date of Richardson's retirement as possible and to invite members of the bar from northern Virginia to participate.

Judge Paul E. Brown, newly elected Commonwealth's attorney of the county, was elected president of the association, succeeding Richardson. Other officers elected at the meeting Thursday night were Charles Pickett, vice president; C. Pembroke Pettit, secretary, and John M. Whalen, treasurer.

A resolution was adopted opposing the election of any of the members of the judiciary in Virginia and further recommending that the State constitution be changed so that judges should be appointed "during good behavior" with retirement mandatory after the age of 80 years. This was meant to include the judges of the circuit, hustings and corporation courts and the State Supreme Court of Appeals. At present these judges are appointed by the Governor and Assembly for terms of years.

Charles Pickett introduced the resolution, which was strongly supported by Commonwealth's Attorney Farr. A sentiment that election of judges would tend to inject politics into court proceedings was voiced by several members.

Herndon Council, No. 25, Daughters of America, elected Mrs. Cora Hurst as junior past councilor at its last meeting. Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald was elected associate junior past councilor; Mrs. Mae Maddox, councilor; Mrs. Glenna Sibold, associate councilor; Mrs. Iva Harrison, vice councilor; Mrs. Tracy Hawley, associate vice councilor; Mrs. Stella Dailey, conductor; Miss Virginia McFarland, recording secretary; Mrs. Clara Duke, warden; Mrs. Emma Cockerille, inside sentinel; Mrs. Ruth Downs, outside sentinel.

Representatives to the State council are Miss Lulu Cooper and Mrs. Mae Maddox; alternates, Mrs. Stella Dailey and Mrs. Tracy Hawley.

The Henry Masonic Lodge, of Fairfax, Va., has elected the following officers: Clarence L. Collier, of Fairfax Station, master; John M. Whalen, senior warden; Walter I. Fox, junior warden; Irving L. Kenyon, secretary; Alexander L. Haight, treasurer; Paul C. Kincheloe, senior deacon, and Henry D. Ludwig, junior deacon.

The new officers will be installed St. John's night, December 27.

'Mother' Teachum Honored by O.E.S.

Herndon Chapter Observes Grand Lecture Night.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Herndon, Va., Dec. 13.—Herndon Chapter, No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, celebrated "Mother Teachum Night" when they entertained in honor of Mrs. Mary E. Teachum, grand lecturer of the District of Columbia. Mrs. Teachum is an honorary member of Herndon Chapter and has installed the officers of this chapter for the last 21 years.

Many tributes were paid to Mrs. Teachum by members and visitors. The chapter presented her with a gold piece and a large bouquet of red roses. She also received a present from the Past Matrons and Patrons of Herndon Chapter.

The chapter made plans for a Christmas dance in the auditorium of Herndon High School Friday night, December 27 at 10 p. m. Mrs. A. E. Wynkoop, Mrs. William Meyer, Mrs. J. D. Thompson, Mrs. E. M. Armfield and Mrs. J. L. Nachman are in charge of arrangements. The worthy matron, Mrs. Anna Nachman, appointed Mrs. Mildred C. Kidwell, chairman; Mrs. Lottie Meyer and Mrs. Esther Thompson, to have charge of the Christmas baskets to be distributed to the poor, and also to send one to the O. E. S. Home in Richmond.

Keyser to Decorate..

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Keyser, W. Va., Dec. 13.—Keyser's business section will be decorated for the Christmas season on a large scale, city officials and business men decided last night. The work will be completed December 17. It was planned to electrify the majority of the decorations. Four arches will be placed in each block with double arches at the intersections. A large tree will be erected on the Baltimore & Ohio property on Armstrong street.

Steventon Victim Is Out of Hospital

Mrs. Pickard Was Shot by Suicide in Jail.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 13.—Mrs. Sally Picard, 26, who was wounded by Franklin B. Steventon in the jail here Sunday because she turned State's evidence on him in a larceny case, was discharged from Emergency Hospital today.

Steventon, who had been found guilty, seized a pistol from a guard, shot Mrs. Picard in the arm, then shot himself. He died Monday.

Meantime Veterans of Foreign Wars made plans to bury Steventon with military honors. He had served with the Marines during the World War. The Naval Academy will supply a firing squad and bugler.

Slash Ordered In Phone Rates

Chesapeake & Potomac Cut Affects 2 Exchanges in Maryland.

Rate reduction on two nearby Maryland telephone exchanges were ordered yesterday by Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore City, through officials at Hyattsville. They will be effective January 1.

Exchanges affected are Greenwood, which serves Hyattsville, Mount Rainier and nearby areas, and Hillside, serving Capitol Heights, Seat Pleasant and adjacent territory. Approximately 2,500 persons will be benefited by the decrease in rates, termed "adjustments" by the telephone company.

Residential rates, now $5.50, will be cut to $4.75, while business rates will be reduced from $4.50 to $4. On two-party residential phones the number of calls permitted without extra charge will be raised from 35 to 40, and all calls over that amount will be charged at the rate of 4½ cents, as compared to the present rate of 5 cents.

Rental charges for the French-type of phone, put into effect December 2, will be continued: This rate is 15 cents monthly until the sum of $2.70 is paid. The rate prior to December 2 was 25 cents until the sum of $4.50 was paid.

Party Is Given To Donald Crisp In Alexandria

Insurance Manager Celebrates Completion of First Year.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Donald Crisp, head of Alexandria district of a life insurance company, was given a testimonial party last night in the local offices, 406 Doniphan Building, to celebrate the completion of his first year as manager.

Among those present were the following: W. E. Crisp, vice president of the company, and Mrs. Crisp; T. A. Long, assistant secretary; W. J. Bryan, district manager of Washington No. 2; S. H. Hoddinott, manager of Washington District No. 1; Mr. Clark, his associate manager; G. S. Griggs, auditor, and Mrs. Griggs; W. W. Crisp, jr., Miss Elizabeth Bartholomew, daughter of the president of the company; the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Alexandria, and Mrs. Ellis; Dr. and Mrs. Cameron McCluer, Dr. and Mrs. James A. Gooch, Dr. H. D. Wolff, jr., Miss Isadora Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Miller, Chester G. Pierce, A. S. Doniphan, Dr. M. D. Reese, C. S. H. Cobb, Frederick L. Flynn, Clyde B. Lanham, Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Reid and M. McGee.

George W. Johnson, 65-year-old nightwatchman at the coal yard on North Henry street extended, was beaten and robbed on Thursday night, for the second time in less than a month.

Two colored men called at the yard and asked for some bags of coal. When Johnson started to get it for them, one man hit him on the head and the other held him. Johnson was struck several times, once with his own lantern. While one man held him, the other robbed the office of the firm of $5.63.

Johnson called police headquarters as soon as he recovered. Sergt. Kaus and Policeman Shaw took the man to the Alexandria Hospital, where eight stitches were taken in his head. Johnson had just returned to work last Saturday, after recovering from injuries when attacked and severely beaten last November 16 at the same place. At this time, Johnson was robbed of $19 of his own money.

The annual "toy matinee" at the Ingomar Theater will be staged this morning between the hours of 9:30 and 12:30 o'clock. The performance will be donated by the Alexandria Amusement Co. for the benefit of the Elks' Christmas party for underprivileged children. Admission will be a toy for the holiday party.

Santa Claus Lane was formally opened on Thursday evening, when the Christmas lights were turned on in King street, between Royal and Alfred. Stores will remain open evenings until Christmas Eve. The lights will be turned on each night until New Year's.

A colored man walked into the drug store of J. T. Bowman, King and Alfred streets, on Thursday night and snatched three boxes of cigars from the counter. He was chased from the store and dropped his loot just within the doorway.

Voiture Locale, Forty and Eight, will stage a 'possum hunt tonight at the farm of Clyde B. Lanham, near Springfield, Fairfax County. The party will start from Gadsby's Tavern at 8 o'clock.

Thomas Speaks At Phi Deltas' Parley Banquet

Other Prominent Members of Fraternity Talk at Maryland U.

Senator Elbert Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, was the principal speaker last night at a banquet held as part of the annual tri-province convention of the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity at the University of Maryland's College Park chapter house.

Other prominent speakers were Robert Gantt, Nebraska, '09, operating vice president of the Postal Telegraph Co., of New York City; Dean Hoffman, member of the Pennsylvania Legislature and publisher of the Harrisburg Patriot, a member of the Phi Delta Theta general council; Arthur Priest, executive secretary of the fraternity, and Frank J. R. Mitchell, alumni commissioner of Phi Delta Theta.

H. Byrd, acting president of the University of Maryland, extended a welcome to the visiting delegates and alumni. Sidney McFerrin, president of the Maryland chapter, was toastmaster. Harry McCarthy, president of the university interfraternity council, also welcomed the visitors.

Reports were given by the presidents of the three provinces, O. J. Tallman, of Rho Province; Harbaugh Miller, of Upsilon Province, and George Eichelberger, of Gamma Province. Provinces include all chapters in the States of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Schools represented at the convention, which will continue today and tomorrow, besides Maryland, are Lafayette, Penn State, Allegany, Dickinson, Gettysburg, University of Pittsburgh, University of Pennsylvania, Lehigh, University of West Virginia, Swarthmore and Washington and Jefferson. Alumni clubs from Washington and Baltimore also are represented.

Income Tax Deadline Is Extended to Dec. 15

Baltimore, Dec. 13 (AP).—Although December 15 is the last day on which the final installment of the 1934 income tax payments may be made, the deadline has been extended to Monday because the 15th falls on Sunday.

M. Hampton Magruder, collector of internal revenue for this district, said taxpayers who pay by Monday will not be penalized, if the letters inclosing their checks are postmarked December 16. Approximately 158,000 persons are expected to make final payments by that date. They include residents of the District of Columbia, Maryland and American citizens living abroad.

Methods of Teaching The Blind Are Studied

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., Dec. 13.—Representing the American Foundation for the Blind, Dr. Eber L. Palmer, of New York, and Miss Josephine Lippa, of Cleveland, Ohio, are making a survey of teaching methods and facilities in the blind department at the Virginia School for the Deaf and the Blind here.

"There is no definite reason," said State Senator William H. East, chairman of the institution's board, when asked what prompted the investigation. "We wanted a general check-up in the blind department, with emphasis on the methods of instruction and the facilities."

Soviet Study 'Microscopic,' Says Teacher

All Reading Supervised, Board of Education Hearing Reveals.

Instructor's LoyaltyOath in Force in Schools for 52 Years.

School officials got their chance to rally to defense of the school system on the grounds of educational practice and patriotism yesterday, and they made the most of it.

The special Board of Education committee scrutinizing textbooks held its first and only public hearing, announced only 12 hours previously, and these points developed:

That, for 52 years, each teacher has had to swear to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic," and that no teacher in recollection has been accused of forswearing that oath.

That, in the prescribed course of study, teaching about communism is "microscopic," according to George J. Jones, head of the white school history department.

Approved by Committee.

That textbooks and courses of study are approved before use by a committee of officers, the superintendent, and the full board.

That the only supplementary readings which can be used must be taken from a prescribed reading list—and The Post discovered last night that this threw out of investigation the eight supplementary books on Russia that had been attacked by the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Further, today, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, school superintendent, will make public a report on the "intensive" teaching of patriotism in the schools.

The textbook report, Committee Chairman Robert A. Maurer announced, will be filled with the board on Wednesday.

In the bare Franklin Building room, there was only 25 persons present for the hearing, at 10:10 a. m. Seven of the nine members of the board were there. Only three were spectators.

Ballou Reads Reports.

Maurer said the committee had requested certain reports. Dr. Ballou, arose, put on black-rimmed glasses, and read them. They covered book selection, teacher selection, and formulation of courses.

Only one unexpected development occurred. A trim matron arose from among the spectators—Mrs. Minnie Frost Rands, of 1430 Floral street northwest, a member of Shepherd Parent-Teacher Association, wife of an Agriculture pathologist.

"Couldn't we have a report, Dr. Ballou," she ventured, "on what is done in the schools about teaching love for other nations? It's instinctive to love ourselves, I think, but it is necessary to teach us to love others."

Bearded Dr. Ballou smiled. He told about a high-school course on international relations. That course, he said, taught children understanding, for——

"We develop hate only against people we don't know. In this course an attempt is made to acquaint the boys and girls with a knowledge of other countries."

Books Limited.

Ballou's report on supplementary readings, as committee members definitely brought out, bars from the schools any supplementary readings that a textbook may suggest unless those books are on the approved board list.

Checks on the 28-page high school reading list and the 9-page junior high list revealed that this rule eliminated 8 books suggested in the questioned "Modern History," by Carl Becker, all of which had been assailed by the citizens. None of the 8 was on an approved list.

The 8 were descriptions of Soviet Russia by William Henry Chamberlin, Bertrand Russell, N. H. Brailsford, A. Wicksteed, Scott Nearing, M. Farbman, V. Marcu and Leon Trotzky.

Dr. Ballou reported also that the 205 magazines used in the schools never underwent board approval. He said officials were studying ways of reducing the number.

Young Democrats Set Campaign Ball

Five Clubs to Join in Dance Tuesday Night.

The five Young Democratic clubs of the District of Columbia will bury the hatchet long enough to hold a 1936 campaign dance in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel next Tuesday night.

Stage and radio stars will join with the George Washington Glee Club and the Ravzar Tango Team. The entertainment is being arranged by Ruth Evelyn Madden and a sub-committee of 125.

Proceeds of the evening will go into the Roosevelt campaign chest, and a box at the door will collect toys for needy children. Bert Granoff will be master of ceremonies. Each of the 48 boxes around the room will represent a State and contain the State president and members of his staff.

Halo Encircles Head of Huey Long In Mural of McKinley High School

U. S. Workers To Get Half Day Extra Time Off

Government workers will get a half day off December 24, the day before Christmas, and December 31, the day before New Year's Day.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed an executive order making the holidays effective. The order applies to all Federal agencies here and in the field.

The Government Printing Office and the Navy Yard were included by name.

Bureau heads were authorized to exclude those who should remain on duty "for special public reasons."

All departments, the order specified, will close at 1 p. m., the days mentioned. In agencies where the employes work in shifts, they will be excused after four hours.

Christmas and New Year's Day will be holidays for Federal employes without the formality of a special order.

Founder Honored By Esperantists

That is what the Esperantists say in their language about the founder of their international language, Laaro Ludovico Zamenhof, the eightieth anniversary of whose birth is being celebrated all over the world today.

In English it means, "Through the mist and darkness of the years, he saw the light's clear shining, and it gave him courage."

The founder of Esperanto was born in the little town of Bielostok, Poland, and visited Washington at the time of the International Congress of Esperantists in 1910. He died in 1917.

'Caricature of an Idea or, Perhaps, Comment,' Says D. C. Artist.

There was a hubbub yesterday at McKinley Technical High School when someone discovered an artist had circled the head of the assassinated Huey Long with a halo in finishing a 125-foot mural.

Philip Bell, the artist, of 1623 H street northwest, explained the halo "just came to me as a sort of afterthought," to show that he was dead.

"It just seemed to go with the character," he said. "It's not obvious, just a suggestion. It's caricature of a sort—caricature of an idea. And yet I'd call it 'comment' more than caricature.

Bell, a Yale School of Fine Arts graduate, has been working a year on the mural in the school library for the Public Works of Art project.

"No, I didn't ever see Huey Long," Bell confided, "but I have seen a lot of pictures of him."

Frank C. Daniel, school principal, said he hadn't examined the mural in several days.

"I didn't see any halo," he said. "If it's there it has been put there recently."

He smiled broadly as he added:

"Having seen some of the murals in some of the other buildings, I think we're very fortunate."

City Heads Refuse To Take Hospital

Proposal of the Board of Public Welfare to take over Columbia Hospital and operate it as the maternity ward of Gallinger Hospital was disapproved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The hospital is on Federal property. Sponsors of the transfer urged that transfer of all maternity cases to Columbia from Gallinger would give more room at the latter institution for the care of other patients. Officers of Columbia Hospital called on the Commissioners to protest against the suggestion.

The Commissioners said they doubted other private hospitals were equipped to care for the maternity cases now handled at Columbia. Most of the maternity cases at Gallinger Hospital are colored.

Wayne Kniffen Elected to Head Student Group

200 Delegates Open Annual High School Conference at G. W. U.

Two hundrede delegates from high schools in the District, Maryland and Virginia yesterday elected Wayne Kniffen, Eastern High School student, chairman of the George Washington University High School Conference, holding its opening session here.

The conference is held annually to give high school students of this section an opportunity for parliamentary discussion of leading public questions.

Esther Shulte, of Western High School, Baltimore, was elected conference secretary and the delegates were welcomed by Dr. W. C. Johnstone, dean of the George Washington Junior College, before listening to a debate on "Resolved: That the several States should establish medical service to be available to their children at public expense."

Arguing the affirmative, Dr. Isadore Lubin, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, pointed to the heavy burden borne by low-income groups through loss of wages in time of illness and the cost of medical care. Many of these, he said, go without care when they need it, or visit a physician and then are unable to pay him.

Lower standards for the medical profession through the domination by politics was advanced on the negative side of the argument by Ross Garrett, co-ordinator of the Medical Economics Security Administration.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer; Herbert L. Willett, director of the Community Chest, and Dr. H. S. Hoffman, Washington physician, acted as advisers of discussion groups in the afternoon.

Resolutions will be adopted at a general conference session this morning.

Gift to Firemen's Fund.

A gift of $50 from the Hugh Reilly Co., to the Firemen's Relief Fund was accepted by the Commissioners yesterday. The gift was made "in appreciation of the efficient service" of the firefighters at the recent blaze in the Reilly store on New York avenue.

P.U.C. Adopts Sliding Scale For Gas Rates

Consumers Will Benefit by $305,000 Decrease From Old Costs.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday adopted a sliding scale plan for future adjustment of District gas rates and approved a new rate schedule which is to become effective on meter readings on and after Monday.

Both the sliding scale and the new rates were substantially those which were proposed to the commission last month by the gas companies, by commission counsel and by the people's counsel.

The new rates will mean a reduction of $851,000 in the old file rates, although of this amount $545,000 represents the 8.5 per cent discount which the commission has enforced during the last two years. The new rates will mean a further decrease of $305,000 below the discounted rates.

The sliding scale provides for a 6.5 per cent basic return, with provisions for reducing or increasing rates in the future as the rate of return rises or falls. It also provides a valuation of $21,000,000 plus $750,000 for working capital. Additions to the properties of the companies are to be added to the valuation as they are made from time to time. Property retired from use is to be deducted. One aspect of the commission decision, which may have an important legal bearing in the future, was that the commission made these findings a fact rather than a part of an order.

All Schedules Reduced.

Reductions in the rates were spread through all schedules. The amount applied to schedule A, covering domestic users, was $174,597; reductions in the household heating schedule, largely due to reduction and removal of demand charges, was $32,908; reductions in the commercial and industrial schedules were estimated to total $92,494; in schedule E, covering seasonal off-peak consumption, $551; wholesale to apartment houses, $1,094, and in reductions in forfeits of discounts, $3,829.

The minimum charge of 75 cents a month was continued. The new schedules carry net and gross rates. The latter are to apply where bills are not paid within 20 days.

The domestic consumer is allowed 800 cubic feet of gas a month for his minimum 75 cents. The gross is 83 cents. The rest of the domestic schedule follows: Next 3,200 feet, above first 800, 80 cents net, 88 cents gross; next 4,000 feet 70 and 73 cents; excess over 8,000 feet, 66 and 69 cents per 1,000 feet.

The net household heating rate will be 60 and the gross 63 cents per 1,000 feet, with minimum bills from October to April, inclusive, of 75 cents net and 83 cents gross. The former "demand charge" made during summer months is entirely wiped out.

Commercial Rates.

The rates in schedule C, available for commercial and industrial uses in bakeries, restaurants, hotels, churches, manufacturing establishments and the like, were fixed as follows: First 900 feet or less, 75 cents net, 83 gross; next, 9,100 feet 80 net and 86 cents gross; next 90,000 feet, 67 and 70; next 900,000 feet, 59 and 62; excess over 1,000,000 feet, 45 and 46 cents.

Schedule E, covering gas used for water heating, air cooling, air conditioning and generation of power by use of gas, limited to customers normally not using gas during periods of maximum demands on the companies, follows: First 25,000 feet 59, net, and 63 cents, gross, per 1,000 feet; excess over 25,000 feet 37 and 39; maximum use charge, payable in December, January and February only if consumption exceeds 25 per cent of average monthly summer use, $30.65 per 1,000 feet net and $38.50, gross; maximum use charges, payable in November and March only if consumption exceeds 50 per cent of average monthly summer use, $27.50 net and $28.50 gross per 1,000 feet. No minimum bill from October to April. Minimum bill from May to September at the 25,000-foot rate.

The wholesale apartment house rate is as follows: First 5,000 feet, 80 and 88 cents per 1,000; next 5,000 feet, 75 and 80 cents; next 15,000 feet 70 and 73 cents; excess over 25,000 65 and 68 cents per 1,000.

Washburn Tells of Hardships In Exploring Alaskan Area

Movies Show Forbidding Country of the Yukon Mapped by Party.

The forbidding setting of the Klondike gold rush—4,000 square mlies of glacier and snow-covered mountains in the Yukon—was shown in motion pictures and lantern slides to an audience in Constitution Hall last night by Bradford Washburn, leader of the National Georgraphic Society's expedition into the previously unexplored area last summer.

Washburn told how, with the mercury 25 degrees below zero, he and his men flew over the area from Carcross, Yukon gold rush town, making aerial photographs which, when placed together, made a composite picture of the entire expanse.

On the slopes of Mount Hubbard, 12,000 feet above sea level, Washburn set up one of the highest surveying stations ever established in North America. From here the expedition operated with dog sleds, fighting blinding snow, deep crevasses and terrible cold. One blizzard lasted 120 hours and buried the expedition's camp beneath five feet of snow.

Washburn listed as among the expedition's achievements the mapping, from observations made by surveying instruments, of about one-third of the area covered; discovery that the famous Hubbard Glacier, believed for decades to be no more than 40 miles long, actually extends about 70 miles into the interior, and the charting and naming of 19 peaks over 10,000 feet high which had never before been seen at close range.

Hoeppel Asks Public's Faith In Innocence

Sentence in Cadetship Plot to Be Passed Next Week.

Representative John H. Hoeppel, of California, convicted Thursday in District Supreme Court with his son, Charles, of conspiring to sell a West Point appointment, yesterday asked the public to "withhold judgment against me" until upper courts rule on his appeal.

At the same time Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, chief of defense counsel, declared the verdict "crucified him" and announced he would "take this case to the United States Supreme Court if necessary."

Gen. Ansell said he would file a motion for a new trial shortly and if it should be denied he would carry the case to the Court of Appeals at once.

The Hoeppels, who has been at liberty since their arrest several months ago under bond of $500 each, yesterday appeared before William S. Adkins, chief criminal clerk of District Supreme Court, and posted new bail of $1,000 each through Milton Kronheim, professional bondsman.

Sentence Next Week.

Sentence probably will be passed next week by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue. The maximum penalty is four months' to two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine each.

Hoeppel's formal statement read:

"A jury in the District of Columbia has returned a verdict against me on the charge that I conspired with my son that he should solicit money for himself as a consideration for my nominating a young man as a West Point cadet.

"I am absolutely innocent.

"I had not the slightest knowledge of any solicitation and I made the nomination with the purest of motives. The evidence which resulted in the action of the jury was entirely circumstantial and, in the opinion of my attorneys, the proof consisted only of circumstances that, while they might be calculated to excite suspicion, constituted no evidence whatever of wrongdoing by me.

Confidence in Appeal.

"I ask my friends and all fair-minded citizens to withhold judgment against me until the Court of Appeals shall have passed upon and determined whether or not the action of the jury can be upheld.

"Knowing my innocence, I am convinced that an appellate court can never sustain the verdict against me."

Meanwhile, there was speculation on Capitol Hill over whether the House would vote to expel Hoeppel before his term expires December 31, 1936. A two-thirds majority would be required.

Several members predicted the House would disregard the case entirely or merely censure Hoeppel without depriving him of his office.

Pat O'Brien Is Earle's Ace in Twin Capacity

By Nelson B. Bell.

"STARS OVER BROADWAY." Warner Brothers picturization of story by Mildred Cram, adapted to the screen by Jerry Wald and Julius Epstein, featuring Pat O'Brien, Jane Froman and James Melton, with Jean Muir, Frank McHugh, Phil Regan, William Ricciardi, Frank Fay, Paul Porcasi and Maurice Black. Directed by William Keighley. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

This is Pat O'Brien week at the Earle Theater.

Not only does the genial Irishman assume the role of chief importance in "Stars Over Broadway," screen feature for the new week, but he dominates the stage portion of the bill also with the glib urbanity of his ad libbing.

If there be one in the audience who does not immediately grasp the full implication of "ad libbing," it should be said at once for his or her benefit that that is an inclusive term of the theater meaning to make it up as you go along, in a manner of speaking.

That is what Pat does and he clicks with the customers after the fashion of the proverbial million dollars. That is as it should be, for here is a fine-feathered fellow who knows his away around the living theater as well as he does about the celluloid lots of Hollywood. He was "brung up," as the saying goes, on the legitimate stage, where he scored consistently until he embraced the gelatines five years ago.

Has No Fixed Routine.

Pat pursues no definitely charted and specific course once he gets out on that stage. He tells some Walter C. "Virginia Judge" Kelly stories, a few of his own and clowns in an articulate and agreeable manner with those out front. He is just about as you have seen him on the screen. To prove it, his personal appearance is preceded by a brief film record of his performance in "The Irish in Us," "Oil for the Lamps of China" and "Page Miss Glory."

You will like this fellow. It is impossible not to. There is about him that gracious quality of forthrightness and simple honesty that puts to shame the false pretense of so many of the others who have come before him from Hollywood to the local rostrums. No makeup, no swank, no bunk—Pat is regular.

If that is what you have been awaiting from the film colony, here it is.

The O'Brien also is the mainspring of the screen feature for the week, "Stars Over Broadway." He plays the role of the "big stem" promoter with a deliberate and highly effective savior faire that is in striking contrast with the ebullience thrown into their work by James Melton and Jane Froman, the two popular singers cast in roles of prime interest and importance.

Mr. Melton, who has appeared frequently on the stage which Mr. O'Brien now occupies, sings perhaps a little better than he ever has before—or it may be his numbers. The "Celeste Aida" aria, I should say, should have been included in his repertoire long before this.

And Miss Froman, who will be at the Earle next week in person, just as Pat O'Brien is this week, acquits herself with fine vocal and histrionic credit in a role that requires both singing and acting in a story of how stars are made and unmade on Broadway.

Frank McHugh Scores.

Much of the comedy in "Stars Over Broadway" is the work of that eminent clown, Frank McHugh; and Jean Muir, while not so very funny—and she was not intended to be—lends an effective touch to the role of the ambitious young singer who supplies the romantic interest for the entire proceeding.

In addition to Headliner O'Brien, the vaudeville portion of the entertainment includes a rousing acrobatic turn by the Hazel Mangean Four, which opens the bill, and that exquisite Dresden China adagio act contrived by Sylvia Manon, two excellent vocalists and three stalwart gentlemen who do their utmost to tear their star apart in the intricate business of converting an agile young dancer into a basketball.

Helen Charleston, making her first local solo appearance as an individual star, garners ample honors in her impersonations. I thought ZaSu Pitts, Janet Gaynor and Jackie Cooper her best. In her "straight" songs Miss Charleston scores rather more emphatically than she does when imitating somebody else.

Newsreel and Freddie Clark's orchestral contributions complete a bill that capitalizes to the fullest extent the attractive personality of one of the West Coast's most engaging and most competent actors.

Loew's Fox

"WHIPSAW." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, co-featuring Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy, with Robert Gleckner, Harvey Stephens, William Harrigan, Robert Warwick, Halliwell Hobbes, Charles Wilson and Irene Franklin. Reviewed Friday night.

It was a very happy thought, this teaming of Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy.

I can think of no two players in the entire Hollywood roster whose styles are so admirably adapted to each other as the competent Miss Loy's and the grim and grisly Mr. Tracy's.

They dovetail perfectly. So perfectly, in fact, that the romance of "Whipsaw" completely overshadows its more ominious implications.

The story has to do with a fabulous gem theft and the part played in it by an attractive young woman, her accomplices and a G-man, whose identity does not become known until the narrative has traveled sufficiently far to coast in on its own momentum.

There is a little shooting in the plot's postlude and the final scene is played from a hospital bed, occupied by the Federal agent, but, in the main, the film adheres to a rigid legitimacy.

Fine Cast in Support.

The two featured players are surrounded by a cast of unusual excellence for this sort of charade. Robert Gleckner, Harvey Stephens, Robert Warwick and the others whose names are recited in the small-type paragraph preceding these remarks all are actors of proved efficiency and finesse. Ever since Mr. Gleckner's splendid appearance in "Broadway," he has been the ace "bad man" of both stage and screen. He is a pretty tough hombre, although nicely dressed up, in the instant tense subject.

Miss Loy has seldom played with such complete naturalness as in this picture. Her impersonation of the lady bandit who captures the heart of the Government man is a model of restrained and naturalistic acting. And she is not so hard on the eyes, either. I doubt if she ever has been photographed more attractively.

Tracy, of course, is in his element in this sort of thing. The actor who came to national prominence, and the films, as a result of his realistic work in "The Last Mile" plays the role of "the law" with a slow but sure deliberateness that adds many cubits to the value of the part.

Ellington on Stage.

The stage bill at the Fox this week is contributed in its entirety by Duke Ellington, native Washingtonian, who returns to the scene of many earlier triumphs with his celebrated orchestra and able group of specialists.

Ellington, perhaps beyond the measure of any other contemporary conductor of "modern American music," brings to his tricky rhythms and fantastic dissonances a quality of worth that is irreproachable.

At times a bit abstruse to the layman—as in his grotesque arrangement of Handy's "St. Louis Blues," for example—the Duke still manages to imbue his work, and that of his men, with a distinctive quality of musicianship that no one else quite can match.

Presenting a program that he has seldom, if ever, excelled in the Capital, Ellington this week offers the individualized performances of Ivy Johnson, Jigsaw Jackson and the Four Step Brothers, the last-named, needless to say, a dance quartet that picks 'em up and lays 'em down with a trifle more eclat than anyone we have recently seen, with the possible exception of Sam, Ted and Ray in George White's "Scandals" closing a week at the National tonight.

News and Lampkin Added.

The Fox Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's spirited overture lend effective finishing touches to a bill that is well calculated to enlist popular interest, even if it does not take rank as one of the most significant enterprises of the current season in the Loew houses.

"Significance" is nothing to pay an extra tariff for at the box office, at that. If it is merely entertainment of a high order of which you are in quest, Loew's Fox this week has what it takes. N. B. B.

"SO RED THE ROSE." Paramount picturization of the novel by Stark Young, adapted to the screen by Lawrence Stallings, Maxwell Anderson and Edwin Justus Mayer, starring Margaret Sullavan, with Randolph Scott, Janet Beecher, Walter Connolly, Elizabeth Young, Clarence Muse, Dickie Moore, Daniel Haynes and Robert Cummings. Directed by King Vidor. Reviewed Friday morning by Sally Stroud.

Well, suh, I am all ready to fight the War Between the States again and I dare any Yankee to whistle "Dixie" within my hearing.

King Vidor's "So Red the Rose" brought me so many vicarious thrills and sympathetic pangs that it is almost a case of "so red your nose" with me. For I did sniff when beautiful Portobello, the proudest plantation in the South, went up in crackling flames, ignited by Yankee torches. (Sotto voice: "the vandals . . . gr-r-r-r-r")

Walter Connolly is wholly adequate as the julep-sipping owner of the big plantation 'round which action takes place. Margaret Sullivan is Vallette Bradford to the last inch of her huge crinoline skirts and the final flirtatious flip of her curled coiffure.

Randolph Scott is very fine as the boy who loved to see things grow and not be torn down; he epitomizes those few Southerners who wanted to wait awhile to see if the war would not die of its own lack of volition; who thought it hideously sacrilegious for Americans to fight Americans for the sake of principles which might be adjusted.

The Flat of a Saber!

But when Connolly, roused from sleep by the flat part of a Yankee saber being applied to his anatomy, rides away to battle the foe and his son is killed and Sullavan derides him for cowardice of Scott marches into battle with set jaw and all the Southerners shouted "hurray, hurray" as he was pictured leading his men against the Yanks.

Soberer minds may say that though the war is the focal point of the story, another plot thread shows how the lives of both young and old can be affected by conflict during difficult, trying times. Mebbe so. But for me, suh, and for all the other good people who cheered the sentiments delivered in honey-smeared Southern tones, the main thing was that the Yanks were revealed as brigands who routed a leisurely, calm, refined atmosphere of crinolines, mint juleps, white-colonnaded homes, obsequious servitors, mint juleps and mint juleps.

Interesting accompanying short subjects: Shots of new radium-lighted stirring sticks for cocktail consumers; shots of cunning trained dogs, none weighing over 5 pounds; shots of Roosevelt defending his farm program; shots of Jack Denney's orchestra.

"THANKS A MILLION." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by Nunnally Johnson, starring Dick Powell, supported by Ann Dvorak, Patsy Kelly, Fred Allen, the Yacht Club Boys, Paul Whiteman and Ramona. Directed by Roy del Ruth. Reviewed (second week) by Dorothea Lewis.

"Thanks a Million" is that rare thing, a musical in which the music has something to do with the plot. (For that matter, any musical with a plot deserves practically a million thanks.) What's more, it has one nice chuckling laugh after another (some come on top of each other) and catchy, tintillating tunes.

Eric Land becomes candidate for Governor because he can sing better than politicians can speak, and campaigns as hard as he can to lose the election.

Is Neatly Silly.

Sounds silly, and it is, very nicely and neatly so.

Except for a few moments of his usual coyness, which we detest, Powell goes after the role of Eric with finesse, variety, comedy sense and timing. He's surprising.

Fred Allen is his dry, bitter, bitten self and Patsy Kelly is herself, which makes it grand for us. Their selves are elegant.

The Yacht Club Boys would stop the show with their delirious songs if it were only possible to stop a movie. Rubinoff helps, Paul Whiteman appears (as does Washington's Bob Lawrence for a second), and Ann Dvorak, Raymond Walburn and Alan Dinehardt do their bits.

With that line-up all having fun, you're bound to, too, and these extra days on F street are easily understood.

A really superior subsidiary is "A Perfect Tribute," Charles (Chic) Sale's short about Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Also interesting are a game fish reel, "Gangsters of the Deep," the newsreel, and the nicest and briefest trailer on record, that for "Tale of Two Cities."

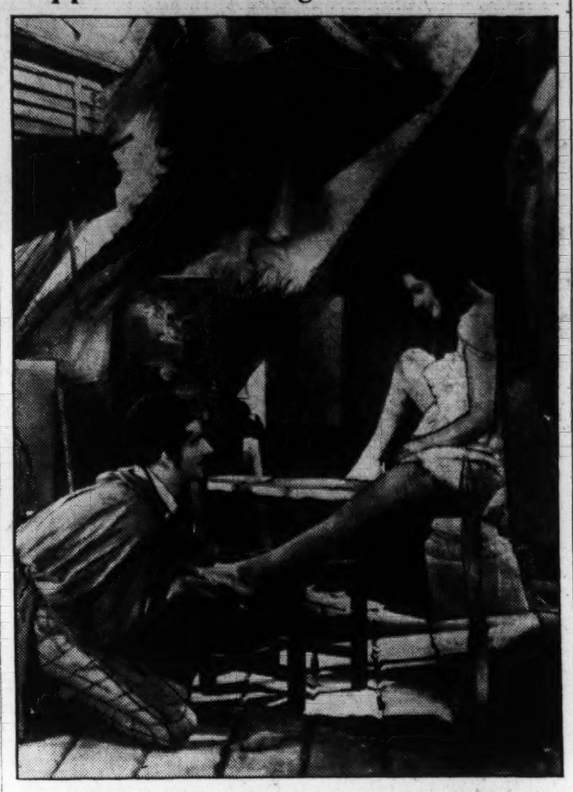
"MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, adapted to the screen by Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman and Charles Wilson, starring Charles Laughton and Clark Gable, with Franchot Tone, Herbert Mundin, Eddie Quillen, Donald Crisp, Dudley Digges, Henry Stephenson, Spring Byington, DeWitt Jennings, Stanley Fields and Vernon Downing. Directed by Frank Lloyd. Review (return engagement, second week) by W. A. Whitney.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" . . .

Appears With Doug Fairbanks, Jr.



This would be a portrait of Gertrude Lawrence and some of her legs as they appear in "Mimi," the principal screen attraction at the Belasco Theater, opening today. Miss Lawrence's costar in the production, of course, is Douglas Fairbanks, jr., who unfortunately does not appear in this camera study. The young man in the picture, although lucky, is unnamed. That's the way such things go in this crazy business.

Nordhoff-Hall historical novel . . . Charles Laughton . . . Clark Gable . . . four weeks. So stated, the continuing picture at Loew's Columbia Theater becomes, for all practical purposes, quite completely reviewed.

Surely at this time there is lottle, if any, need to expostulate at any length upon the superior merits of this production. The record of "Mutiny on the Bounty" is a more eloquent recommendation than any which might be put in words.

Accordingly, we stop at this point, adding only that devotees of the higher reaches of the thespic art owe it to themselves to see this picture.

"College Capers," a musical short with the Cabin Kids, and a release of the Metrotone News are the supplementary attractions.

Cue and Curtain.

"SHE LOVES ME NOT." The Cue and Curtain presents the comedy in three acts and 16 scenes by Howard Lindsay, adapted from the story by Edward Hope, under the direction of Marvin Beers, with stage settings by Les Marzolf, Sylvia Bahar and Jerry Rosey. At Roosevelt High School, December 13 and 14. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

THE CAST.

Paul Lawton ..... Charles Hoyt
Buzz Jones ..... Austin Cunningham
O'Mara ..... William A. Evans
Henry Broughton .. Joseph Rubenstein
Philip Laval ..... Frank Shirne
Gus McNeal ..... Hamilton Coit
J. Thorvel Jones ..... John Kendrick
Abram Liebowitz .....Norman Stein
Midge Mercer ..... Sue Slater
Dean Marshall Mercer ..Thomas Dobson

For bringing to Washington Howard Lindsay's laugh-packed "She Loves Me Not," a debt of gratitude is due George Washington University's Cue and Curtain Club. Not so much for a flawless production are the thanks in order, but for the opportunity to see "in the flesh" a play which was notably staged and from which a musicalized drama version has been made.

Played entirely on one level—not two, as in the original production—the play loses some of its speed of presentation, but none of its sparkling wit. From Bing Crosby's picture will be recalled the story of Curley Flagg, a night club queen, who, following a murder in the club, seeks and obtains succor—and later cinema fame—in a Princeton dormitory.

Miss Crawford Excels.

Opening with celerity, lapsing almost into desuetude in the second act, "She Loves Me Not" regains its momentum in the third act and goes to a rousing finish.

Throughout the playing, the limning of Curley Flagg, by Betty Crawford, is the central attraction. In voice and action, Miss Crawford gives a great impersonation of the miss who knows what she wants and, when she gets a chance to get it, goes after it in a big way.

As the befriending students, Charles Hoyt (the Crosby role) and Austin Cunningham bear the brunt of the work. The imaginative press agent of Supersound is played by Hamilton Coit. For the real love interest, who would, of course, be the dean's daughter, is Sue Slater. Others in the long cast include William A. Evans, Joseph Rubenstein, Frank Shirne, John Kendrick, Norman Stein, Thomas Dodbson, Milton Freedman, Joseph Klein, Thadene Noel, Margaret Long, Allen Thompson, Edward Stevlingson, Richard Boulger, Norma Michelson, Ben Candland and Sam Walker.

'Three Wise Fools'

"THREE WISE FOOLS." The Little Theater of Takoma Park presents the comedy in three acts by Austin Strong, under the direction of Dr. E. Clyde Shade, with stage setting by Ronald Davis and Jack Vogel. At the Presbyterian Church Hall, Takoma Park, December 13 and 14.

Dogged by the slings of outrageous fortune, the Little Theatre of Takoma Park last night finally presented Austin Strong's three-act comedy-drama, "Three Wise Fools," in the Presbyterian Church Hall at Tulip and Maple streets. A repeat performance will be given tonight.

The sophomoric trio of the title was played by H. M. Smythe, Will Carleton and Dr. E. Clyde Shade, with the ebullient Janet Coon the somewhat disrupting influence in the staid household. Fred Linton, as Benny, the Duck, further upset the placid domesticity of the family over which Agnes Carleton and H. J. Stevens presided as housekeeper and head butler.

Others adding their talents to the company were Fred Linton, jr., William Green, Charles Knott, Jack Vogel and Beecher Warner.

Dr. Shade directed the play, for which the single setting was devised by Ronald Davis with the assistance of Mr. Vogel.

Manning, Aid to Dewey In Manila Battle, Dies

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Friday Morning Music Club presents Dorothy Tyler, soprano (Kathryn Hill Rawls, accompanist), and Wilhelm Kurasch, violinist (H. Weinberg, accompanist), in Barker Hall. Program: Micaela's aria from "Carmen" (Bizet), "Porgi, amor" from "Le Nozze di Figaro" (Mozart), "Chi vuol la zingarella" (Paisiello), "Omnipotence" (Schubert), "A Song" (Charles Bennett), "Midsummer" (Amy Worth), Concerto in E minor (Mendelssohn) and violin pieces by Wagner, Juon and Vieniavski.

Bizet was not interested in the role of Micaela, invented by the librettist of "Carmen" for purposes of dramatic contrast, and the music assigned her reveals his indifference. He did not even take the trouble to compose an aria for her solo scene in the third act, but merely adapted one already written for Sardou's "Griselidis." Yet it is on this second-hand song that many a soprano has since fixed her hopes in operatic debuts.

Dorothy Tyler sang it yesterday for her fellow club members and guests, with the ingenuousness which the mood of the music demands. A similar candor was appreciable in her reading of the Mozart aria and the songs that followed. Her voice has an agreeable freshness of timber, save at those times when she forces the tone to hardness, and she is at her best in lyric simplicity.

Wilhelm Kurasch, a young musician from Philadelphia, is at the difficult stage when talent is shaking off its immaturity, and when technical facility has outdistanced iterpretative ability. He draws a good tone from his instrument and his fingers are accurately agile on the strings, but he has not yet attained a poise adjustment between skill and musical feeling. He was occasionally embarrassed by uncertainties, and his readings lacked positive conviction. His playing holds promise, however, and more experience on the platform should bring him needed confidence.

My remarks on the F-minor symphony of Shostakovich in this column yesterday were interrupted by the necessity of cutting typographical cloth to fit the pattern of the page. As I was about to say—this music, for all its brashness, has bite and sting, and challenges attention as the utterance of a very determined personality. The craftsmanship is remarkable in so youthful a writer, and the cleverness of the instrumentation glitteringly disguises the logical flaws in construction.

The Shostakovich of ten years ago had not yet adopted unreservedly the theory that music can be utilized as propaganda for political and economic ideas. One hears no argument for communism in this early symphony, which is revolutionary only in an abstract way. It flaunts a rebellious spirit, but the revolt is one that youth is always making against convention, and one cannot but admire the sincerity and earnestness of the vigorous and mordant writing.

Predominant in this music is an intense vitality with an irresistible rhythmic pulse. It rushes on with impetuosity, as though the composer has been in a great hurry to put his thoughts in order. This speed militates against profundity, and there is more parade than depth in the composition. Consistently interesting for its originality and honesty, the symphony has no dull passages, and the scherzo movement is compact of wit and ingenious mischief.

McAdoo Daughter Married in Mexico

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 13.—The Daily News says word has been received here of the marriage in Mexico City Thursday of Nona McAdoo Cowles, daughter of United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California, to Francis Taylor.

The paper says news of the marriage gave the first intimation that a Mexican divorce had been obtained by the bride from Dr. Edward S. Cowles, New York psychiatrist.

Taylor is a son of Mrs. Moses Taylor, widow of the New York banker and financier who died in 1928. He is the third husband of the former Miss McAdoo, who was first married to the late Ferdinand de Mohrenschildt.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

Valedictory.

J. EDGAR HOOVER and his G-Men have created a situation that really is a situation in this happy little touring band of actors . . . The result is that there is no living with them . . . It all started when the Department of Justice sleuth dropped in at the Fox Theater to catch our act . . . Whether or not he came to machine gun the acts that displeased him, I do not know . . . They say that he had a violin case under his arm, and an usher swears that it gave off a metallic, rather than a Stradivarius rattle, when Mr. Hoover walked down the aisle . . . At any event, no actors were shot down, and he enjoyed them to the extent of inviting them to the headquarters of his G-Men. Acting as personal guide, Hoover revealed all of the scientific details of the famous organization, and some of his G grenades shattered targets with bullets in an amazing demonstration of markmanship. One full-length figure was so badly riddled by staccato fire that when it was pulled back for inspection, all that was left of it was the outline of the anonymous gentleman's buttonholes.

* * * *

Ella Logan, Dave Vine and Jerry Goff, under the spell of this crescendo of lead, were persuaded to draw a bead with heavy caliber revolvers. Miss Logan's first shot just missed the east portico of the White House. Her second shot flew out through a wall, and just missed a traffic cop, who was minding his business on E street. "You are a great singer," said Mr. Hoover, as he grappled with her to retrieve the revolver before she did herself bodily harm. Vine, greatest teller of dialect stories on the Broadway stage, was next to toe the mark. "Shall I shoot in dialect?" he asked the G-Men, who were still gazing apprehensively at Miss Logan. Mr. Vine scored one direct hit on a picture of President Adams, but he placed the shot so accurately that it now appears the former President is wearing a stickpin in his cravat. Goff did better. He got two shots in the charmed circle, and now he is proudly sporting the target sheet, autographed by Hoover. The Lathrop Brothers, shooting as a team, did magnificently. The girl partner was hit, but she'll recover.

* * * *

The result has been thoroughly unhappy. The actors now sit backstage and lie about their machine-gunnery exploits. Instead of telling what they did to an audience in Kokomo, and telling how the theater patrons were so overwhelmed with appreciation that they rolled in the aisles, my chickadees now start each conversation this way: "With a G at my left and another G guy at m'right, I picked up my machine gun . . ." This goes on far into the night. By the time this act gets to Kansas City, they will be claiming they ambushed Dillinger, shot the buttons off Pretty Boy Floyd's vest, brought down Babyface Nelson and engaged in a running gun fight with the Roger Touhy mob. But a few minutes ago some college girls came to the stage door to ask for an autographed picture of Bill Brady and Jay Seilers. Messrs. Brady and Seilers, instead, brought down their autographed target sheets, signed by J. Edgar Hoover. The girls looked hard and long at the perforated sheets. "I think the picture flatters you," they told Brady.

* * * *

On top of the party given for us by Attorney General Homer Cummings and Mrs. Cummings, George Marshall staged another at the Shoreham. Everybody in town was there, most of them coming directly from the affair at the White House. It was the first time I'd seen Postmaster General Jim Farley and Mrs. Farley in weeks. "The President will be reelected before the Republicans get around to nominating an opponent," said Farley. This shrewd, practiced observer of things political is not given to ridiculous claims. He says that it will be no contest, and I'll take his word for it . . . There was only one untoward incident, and this happened while the 30 guests were eating the turkey. It was discovered that Host George Marshall and Bert Lahr had disappeared from the room. "There wasn't enough turkey," said Gracie Barrie. "Marshall is probably eating Lahr." Cliff Edwards added: ". . . he will need bicarbonate."

* * * *

The atmosphere has been very Broadwayish since we arrived in town. Bill Gaxton and Victor Moore, Jimmy Sinnot, Postmaster General Farley, Doris Fleeson, Rudy Vallee, Cliff Edwards, the Stanley Twins, Bert Lahr, Vivian Porter, Peggy Moseley, Flo Ward and a whole bevy of beauties from G. White's "Scandals" have headquartered here. Senator Wild Bill Lyons has parked his canes in this dressing room, and Al Lichtman dropped in. So, while we are some distance from Times Square, it seems that the Stem has followed us here. Buck O'Neill is another New Yorker in town. The result is that all of us are reluctant about pulling up stakes and heading for home. The actors are now so accustomed to donning their white ties, tails and passing chit-chat with Ambassadors, Senators, Representatives and Cabinet members, that they do not want to go back to Dave's Blue Room, Reuben's and Lindy's. "What can I possibly find to talk about to music publishers now?" moaned tiny Ella Logan a few moments ago. The whole company has gone political on me. It's been a swell week with swell people in America's grandest city. So farethee-well, Washington. We are Broadway-bound.

Suit Forecasts Major Decision On Power Loan

Buzzard Roost Case Due for the Supreme Court; Ickes Testifies.

By the United Press.

Spartanburg, S. C., Dec. 13.—A major test of the broad principle of government right to finance public utilities in territory serviced by private utilities firms appeared developing tonight in the fight to block the $2,852,000 Buzzard Roost, S. C. power development.

It appeared likely the case might ultimately go to the Nation's highest court as opposing attorneys concluded arguments in the attempt of the Duke Power Co., a private firm, to maintain a Federal injunction against development of the project.

Ickes Questioned.

Attorneys for both sides indicated in their arguments they would appeal the case should the decision go adverse to their interests. Harold L. Ickes, administrator of the public works millions, appeared personally to subject himself to 2½ hours of examination in Federal court.

Federal Judge H. H. Watkins, presiding over the case, tonight adjourned the December term of United States District Court in the Western Carolina District and announced he had canceled all engagements to devote his time to a decision in the litigation.

Obtained Injunction.

The issue revolves around an injunction won originally by the private utilities company, restraining development of the project. Sponsors of the development displaying a revised contract with PWA, are asking the injunction be dissolved.

The case was remanded to Watkins' court for rehearing on the new contract between Greenwood County and PWA after the county had appealed the injunction to the circuit court of appeals at Baltimore. Watkins granted the original restraining order.

Louis Knocks Out Paulino in 4th Round as Referee Calls Halt

Basque Is Battered To Floor by Negro In Sudden Offensive

Paulino Has Slight Edge Until Right Hand to Jaw Sends Him Down; Groggy When Referee Signals First Knockout of Career.

By Bill McCormick,
A Staff Correspondent.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 13.—Joe Louis, the midnight express, chugged past another flag stop on the road to the heavyweight championship by knocking out venerable Paulino Uzcudun in the fourth round of a contest optimistically billed for 15 rounds here tonight.

The 21-year-old Detroit Negro applied the finish to the opponent 15 years his senior by finding an opening in the bouncing Basque's shell-like defense through which he rammed a right hand that crashed Paulino to the canvas for a seven count. The bouncing Basque bounced up only to run into a left and right as he stood helpless and goggle-eyed.

Referee Arthur Donovan, galloping across the ring on an errand of mercy, raised Louis' arm in token of victory exactly 2 minutes and 32 seconds after the fourth round had commenced.

Paulino, who started his ring career while Joe still was a 9-year-old pickaninny, was doing well by the Basques until he inadvertently exposed the chink in his armor through which Louis shot the telling blow that preceded the first knockout of Paulino's career.

Had Early-Round Edge.

Paulino had held Louis even in the first two rounds and won the third, on this writer's score sheet. Louis worked from the opening bell as though his sole thought was to protect the precious hands with which he hopes to bang his way to the heavyweight championship, allowing Uzcudun to look better than he might have otherwise.

As the fight opened, Paulino went into his customary shell, wrapping both arms around his head in the almost impenetrable defense which has proven so puzzling to so many good fighters. The Spaniard snapped out of his shell long enough to pump both hands to Joe's stomach, as he had promised in pre-fight predictions, then covered again.

Stays Within Armor.

Paulino stayed in his armor throughout most of the second round, opening up only to land a left hook to the face, right to the body and left to the stomach. Joe fiddled about, prying and pulling at Paulino's crab-like defense, but evidently determined not to wreck his hands on the top of Paulino's head and his elbows.

Louis finally managed to wiggle through Uzcudun's defense to land his only clean punch of the round—a right uppercut, which staggered the Spaniard, but did not come close to putting him on the floor. That round also was even and the bout

Fight by Rounds

ROUND ONE.

ROUND TWO.

Louis had a slight reddening over his right eye, but otherwise was unmarked, while Paulino's face was already flushed from the effects of the Negro's sharp punching. From his protective shield of arms and elbows, Paulino moved in slowly, but made few attempts to punch. Louis, meanwhile, was boxing carefully and apparently in no hurry to explode any fireworks. The Negro punched both hands to the jaw after taking a light left hook to the chin. Paulino dug his left to the body, but took a sharp right hand to the head in return. The Basque shifted and tried for an opening to Joe's body, but failed to connect and took a short left to the nose as the bell sounded. It was Louis' round.

ROUND THREE.

Paulino seemed tired as he came out. Joe sent Paulino back with a couple of light lefts to the face and snapped over another pair of lefts to the ancient warrior's mouth. Paulino missed a wild right to the head. Louis, seemingly angered, cracked over a telling right to the jaw. He followed with another right to the face. Paulino was catch-

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

NOW, it seems, we are beginning to get somewhere in the business of ridding college football of its eligibility sham. Down in Dixie, the Southeastern Conference took the lead yesterday in deciding by the highly conclusive vote of 13 to 1, to turn honest and publicly approve the subsidization of athletes by the award of scholarships and direct financial aid.

POVICH.

By admitting its new policy, the Southeastern is only doing in public what the majority of the Nation's colleges have been doing in private and still continue to do surreptitiously. The fine distinction, it seems to me, is that the Southeastern, somehow, somewhere, found the courage to turn pure.

I don't know what the sin of subsidization is, exactly, but from the manner in which other colleges guard their own subsidization tactics, subsidization must be very sinful indeed. Hitherto, however, the chief sin, apparently, has been that of getting caught. Thus the Southeastern, by its open countenance of paying athletes, at least rids itself of the sham which other colleges insist on keeping up.

It is axiomatic in college football that: "Show me a good football team, and I'll show you subsidization." Except in isolated cases where a university has natural appeal for the prep school stars of its particular section, every great football team reflects the activity and persuasiveness of the athletic department's scouts. The Rockne system, the Warner system, and any other system of football on which the coaches place great store, depend directly upon the human system—personified by those big, strong, fleet lads whose presence is a necessary preliminary.

NOTRE DAME, target of an attack the other day by Prof. George Owen, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who referred to Notre Dame's football players as "paid hirelings," found an able defender yesterday in Dr. Maurice S. Sheehy, assistant to the rector of Catholic University.

A letter from Dr. Sheehy, who, among other titles, holds those of vice president to the Eastern Association of Deans and Advisers of Men, and chairman of the committee on financing of the Catholic College of the National Catholic Education Association, declares:

"I have it on excellent authority from a friend of a friend of a very good friend of a janitor at Notre Dame University that a number of the professors at Notre Dame University have not been paid for years. In fact, some of the priests there have been laboring without salary for from 30 to 40 years.

"This, of course, is a matter of grave concern to educators throughout the country. If Notre Dame can get a hundred men who will work 12 months a year without salary on its faculty, there is a strong probability that it can get a hundred athletes who, without salary, will play a few hours a day for three months a year. Inasmuch as such a practice would discredit one of the favorite hypotheses of after-dinner speakers who seek to reform college education, I think the situation presented by unsalaried professors at Notre Dame should be thoroughly investigated.

"It appears to me that Notre Dame University might raise some money by suing the professor who placed Notre Dame athletically in the same class as Harvard at the present time.

"Perhaps after Dick Harlow, who is one of the finest gentlemen and best sportsmen the educational process has produced, has had several years at Harvard, such classification may not be libelous. In fact, if Mr. Harlow doesn't produce in the next two years, I shall write to the president of Harvard demanding that he be dismissed—not that I am remotely interested in such eventuality, but I wish to fall in line with the current educational practice of everybody minding everybody else's business."

Marberry Quits as Umpire To Sign as Giants' Pitcher

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP).—Fred Marberry, for many years the best relief pitcher in the American League, is going to get a trial with the Giants next season. Bill Terry signed him today.

Released by Detroit last season, Marberry tried umpiring in the American League. He got along all right, but didn't like calling 'em and resigned.

Terry thinks the big fellow may be able to come through and save quite a few games for the Giants.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP).—Fred "Firpo" Marberry today resigned as umpire in the American League.

Released by the Detroit Tigers last June after long pitching service, Marberry was named on the umpiring staff. He served until the end of the season. With acquisition of Cal Hubbard from the International League and Charles Johnston from the American Association, it is doubtful if any successor will be named to Marberry.

Paulino Spared Massacre—Gallico

Louis Prepared His Rival Quick, Merciful Kill, Scribe Asserts.

By Paul Gallico.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 13.—No executioner ever performed a distasteful job more efficiently or more mercifully than Joe Louis did here tonight. He disposed of Paulino Uzcudun with two punches in the fourth round, and Paulino had every victim's wish. He never knew what hit him.

It was skill, science, speed and timing of the brilliant young colored boxer from Detroit that spared a crowd of 19,945 from witnessing a bloody massacre. For all he knew, Joe Louis saved boxing from a nasty scandal. A public butchery just before the Yuletide would have been disgusting. There was no butchery. There was just a quick, clean, merciful job that left the crowd completely stunned, and, I hope, cheated. If they paid to see a pig sticking, they didn't get their money's worth. If they paid to see a pig sticking they didn't deserve to get it.

Prepares His Rival.

For three rounds, Louis prepared Paulino for what was to come as quietly, as smoothly, as deftly and as graciously as any public swordsman ever settled a victim's head upon the block in just the right position so that one stroke would part head from body. Outside of a slight scrape on the left eyebrow which Paulino suffered in the third round, he was not hurt and he was not frightened. Louis struck one or two hard punches in the first two rounds, to test out his arm, perhaps, and make sure that the blade was sharp. But they were nothing to the execution blow that came in the fourth round after about 2 minutes and 20 seconds more of gentle preparation.

Soothed and steadied, his nerves quieted by the pleasant demeanor of his executioner, Paulino switched his stance for a moment. He let fly a left and then dropped it. What he really did was to lay his head upon the block. Louis' brown arm flashed and under the white lights it gleamed truly like a blade, and it was all over.

The effect of this single punch was simply fantastic. It landed on the left side of Paulino's face at the mouth and drove one of his canine teeth clear through his cheek. The cut later required four stitches. For a moment it looked as if the whole side of his face had

Neyland Accepts Five-Year Term

By the Associated Press.

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 13.—Maj. Robert Reese Neyland today accepted a five-year contract as head coach at the University of Tennessee, two authoritative sources said tonight.

It generally was conceded that Neyland will receive $10,000 yearly, plus $2,000 each season for traveling expenses.

Louis Regards His Victory Calmly

'Looked for Opening and Let Him Have It,' Says Negro Simply.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP).—Joe Louis took his four-round knockout of tough old Paulino Uzcudun tonight as laconically as if he had done nothing more spectacular than polish off a sparring mate in a routine training camp session.

"I looked for an opening an' let him have it," said the hard-hitting Brown Bomber as the crowd milled about his dressing room.

Solved Crouching tSayle.

Louis said he had a little trouble getting through the Spaniard's brawny elbows in the early heats, but once he solved the peculiar crouching style, it was just another easy fight.

Told that one of his punches drove one of the Basque's teeth through his upper lip, Louis said:

"He asked for that one. Didn't he poke me a real good one in the third round?"

Paulino played to virtually an empty house in his dressing room. There were no camp followers on hand to greet him when he limped in. He flung himself down on a dressing table and for five minutes didn't move as his handlers busied themselves with his cut lip and damaged left eye.

"Nobody Can Lick Him."

Then Paulino sat up and grunted. "Can he hit?" somebody asked.

"Bah," grinned Paulino. "You ask me? First time there," and he pointed to the floor.

"Nobody can hit like Louis," he said, "and nobody can lick him. That goes for Max Schmeling too. I know. I fought them both."

Louis Nets $32,000 For 4-Round Toil

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 13.—Here is how the gross "gate" of $128,394.75 for the Louis-Uzcudun fight tonight was divided:

Joe Louis received 40 per cent, or $38,800. (Louis contributed $6,800 to the Christmas fund, thus netting $32,000.)

Paulino's share was 20 per cent or about $19,000.

Promoter Mike Jacobs wound up with $3,500—almost enough to pay his expenses.

Southeastern Votes Open Aid to Athletes

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Dec. 13.—The Southeastern Conference voted overwhelmingly today to recognize athletic ability in the assignment of financial aid to students.

The move was generally interpreted as removing a "sub rosa" practice and was heralded as a progressive step in behalf of deserving athletes.

Eleven of the 13 conference members voted in favor of the amendment to the by-laws placing athletes in the same category with other students regarding scholarships and financial assistance.

Limit to Aid.

"Athletic ability," the amendment said, "should receive consideration in determining student values and in the assignment of scholarships, loans and opportunities for remunerative work, with the understanding that such assistance shall never be granted primarily as a reward for athletic services."

The amendment provided further that such aid was not to exceed in amount the "legitimate expense" of attending the institution as represented by tuition, fees, books, board and lodging.

"A regular faculty committee," the amendment stated, "must grant the assistance and the records of such aid must be open to the inspection of the administrative officers of the institution and officers of the Southeastern Conference.

One Dissenting Vote.

"Athletes must be held to the same scholastic requirements that have been established by the member institutions for other scholarships."

Dr. L. C. Glenn, faculty chairman of athletics at Vanderblit University, made the only dissenting vote and later said he had no comment. Vice Chancellor B. F. Finney, of the University of the South (Sewanee) did not vote.

Dr. John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and head of the conference, said adoption of the proposal regarding athletes was "a constructive step," adding:

'It is a great improvement over conditions that existed in the past.

Patient Saint, Favorite, Seventh

By Walter Haight,

A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 13.—Willie Obert, a jockey who admits he is 43 years of age, but whom friends say is past the half-century mark, had the laugh on the bettors at this track today. Obert, who seldom gives a bad saddle exhibition, was assigned to ride Viva Pete. The gelding, a son of the mud-running Pete Wrack, should have been one of the choices.

When betting time came the customers took a look at the jockey-board, saw that name "Obert" beside Viva Pete and decided to pass up the "old man" and look for something else on the program. The majority put their faith and their money on the back of Patient Saint.

At the finish of the mile and a furlong feature race, dubbed the Lafayette, Obert not only was riding Viva Pete into first money, but he was pulling on his mount at the wire. A length behind came Tiempo, with Dearzin third and three more lengths away.

Pays $13.60 Mutuel.

Obert was smiling with mud in his eyes as he came back to the winners' circle and his backers were laughing as they collected a $13.60 mutuel.

Incidentally, Patient Saint was never a factor and ran an even seventh from start to finish.

The daily double brought a return of $29.40 to those who invested in the combination of Move Faster and Prince Pettie.

Friday, the thirteenth, found racing conditions at their worst hereabouts. The events were run over a sloppy track and through sagging clouds that wept intermittently throughout the afternoon.

Cantersine, a $4.80 favorite, made a show of her field in the first race. Ridden by Ray Booker, she took command with a rush on the back stretch and gave her backers no anxious moment for the remainder of the route. Scotch Age, a $31 place proposition, closed a gap to finish second ahead of Red Riot.

Move Faster won his second purse in a row in the second race. The ancient Whiskalong gelding had a mild early battle with Dolente before going to the front on the back stretch and from that point to the finish he drew out. Dolente hung on for the place by three parts of a length with Auburndale third in the field of eight. Move Faster paid $6.

Prince Pettie Wins.

Booker rode his second winner of the day in the third race, piloting Prince Pettie home by six lengths over the favored Hot Griddle. Third money went to Miss Belize after she was shuffled back to last soon after the break. Prince Pettie paid $12.60.

Fashion Queen surprised by defeating a field of juveniles in the fourth race. The little Canter filly jumped to the front at the start and was never headed. Paul Junior was second and Genie Palatine third. The latter, with Borsa, drew the bulk of the wagering. The winner paid a $28.40 mutuel.

Bav, a $51.80 shot, won the sixth race, and the day's final went to the favored Gifted Lady.

Race Track Is Planned Near Wilmington, Del.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 13 (AP).—First steps have been taken to establish a race track in New Castle County, under the racing laws passed at the last Legislature. Options have been taken on two farms six miles southwest of Wilmington.

Application has been made by horsemen to Secretary of State Walter Dent Smith for a charter for the Delaware Steeplechase and Race Association, Inc.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANTERSINE, $4.80, $3.60, $2.20; SCOTCH AGE, $31.00, $7.40; RED RIOT, $2.80.

CANTERSINE, well up from the start, moved into command on the outside on the far turn, saved ground when clear and easily held the others safe. SCOTCH AGE, always in the first flight, closed stoutly, but was no match for the winner. RED RIOT, in close quarters for the entire trip, closed with good courage when clear. BUY STRAIGHT had early speed, saved ground throughout, but weakened. PEGGY CAN had a burst of speed through the stretch, but faltered badly. The others were never prominent.

SECOND RACE—About seven furlongs. Purse, $350. Claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:10. Off at 2:11½. Winner, Mrs. S. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOVE FASTER, $6.00, $3.60, $2.20; DOLENTE, $9.80, $4.60; AUBURNDALE, $3.40.

MOVE FASTER had good speed from the start, was taken back from the early pace of DOLENTE, drew into command when straightened on the back stretch and increased his lead at will thereafter. DOLENTE had early speed to assume a brief lead entering the back stretch, raced closest to the winner throughout, but was no match for the winner, while holding on well. AUBURNDALE raced evenly throughout and closed well. HELEN BAB was unable to threaten at any time. OUR NURSE broke from the outside, but hung after showing brief speed. The others were never factors.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $350. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:39. Off at 2:42½. Winner, Mrs. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRINCE PETTIE, $12.60, $4.00, $2.80; HOT GRIDDLE, $2.80, $2.20; MISS BELIZE, $2.60.

PRINCE PETTIE went to the front on the back stretch, was there throughout, saved ground and drew out easily in the final stages. HOT GRIDDLE gradually bettered his position early, made a determined bid for leadership in the stretch, but was not good enough. MISS BELIZE, shuffled back at the start, gradually bettered her position and closed a good sap while finishing fast. THUNDERLEE made up some ground, but could not threaten. COUNSELLOR BILLY had early speed, but stopped. GEE SHARP and QUICK WIT could never threaten.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $350. Allowances. The Antietam. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:08. Off at 3:12½. Winner, Mrs. B. A. McDonnell's ch. f. (2), by Canter—Lucie Ann. Trained by H. Clark. Value to winner, $230; second, $65; third, $35; fourth, $20. Time, 0:25, 0:51, 1:20 1-5, 1:26 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FASHION QUEEN, $28.40, $11.80, $4.40; PAUL JUNIOR, $13.00, $4.40; GENIE PALATINE, $2.80.

FASHION QUEEN had good speed to take command early, saved ground while being rated in front and held PAUL JUNIOR safe under punishment. PAUL JUNIOR, well up from the start, hung on well. GENIE PALATINE was carried very wide by MARY E. at the first turn, closed a good sap when recovering and finished stoutly. BORSA, well placed in the early racing, could not better his position under punishment. POVEL could never threaten. MARY E. went wide and was pulled up.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400. The Lafayette. Claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:39. Off at 3:41½. ON TRIAL	110	4	5	8	8	8	8	8	Johnson	163.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VIVA PETE, $13.60, $7.80, $4.40; TIEMPO, $9.00, $5.60; DEARZIN, $5.40.

VIVA PETE, well up from the start, drew out into a safe lead on the back stretch, was not hurried when TIEMPO came on again, shook off the latter's challenge in the stretch and was being eased up at the finish. TIEMPO took command from the start, gave way to the winner after a half mile, came again, but was not good enough. DEARZIN, forced to race wide in the early stages, made two separate moves to better his position, but could not threaten the first two. SUN WAY made up some ground. BRAW SCOT and PATIENT SAINT could never menace.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $350. Claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:07. Off at 4:07½. Winner, G. W. Viner's b. f. (2), by Blue Larkspur—Santa Clara. Trained by W. Robinson. Value to winner, $230; second, $65; third, $35; fourth, $20. Time, 0:25 1-5, 0:52, 1:20 3-5, 1:50 4-5, 1:59 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAV, $51.80, $19.20, $7.80; SPEAR, $16.40, $4.80; STACK ARMS, $2.80.

BAV forced the pace from the start, gradually wore down SPEAR in the drive, but was attempting to bear in through the stretch. SPEAR had speed to go to the front from the start, saved ground on all turns, but could not withstand the challenge of the winner. STACK ARMS, slow to find her best speed, closed a good sap and was going strongest of all at the finish. FAIRIO ran well in spots, but could not threaten. MARBLE STAR raced evenly. LUKE PHANTOM stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $350. Claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:34. Off at 4:35. Winner, R. L. Hanna's ch. f. (3), by Bright Knight—Markiluna. Trained by R. L. Hanna. Value to winner, $230; second, $65; third, $35; fourth, $20. Time, 0:25 3-5, 0:52, 1:20 1-5, 1:50 2-5, 1:57 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GIFTED LADY, $4.40, $3.00, $3.00; PUKKA HEAVEN, $5.20, $4.00; BONNIE CAIN, $10.20.

GIFTED LADY, reserved behind the pace of PUKKA HEAVEN, moved into command midway of the back stretch was given a respite when clear, but was kept under pressure to the finish. PUKKA HEAVEN established an early lead, saved ground at all turns, but could not match the winner. BONNIE CAIN raced evenly, but could not improve her position. SIMPLE SINGER could not improve his position. BUNGALOW had no excuses. The others were outrun.

Football Fete At G. W. High Tonight

C. U., Georgetown, V. M. I. Coaches Expected to Attend Banquet.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Dec. 13.—Football coaches of Catholic University, Georgetown and V. M. I. are expected to be among the guests attending tomorrow the banquet to be held by the Pep Club and Alumni Association of George Washington High School for the school football squad. The festivities begin at 6:30 p. m. at the George Mason Hotel.

The high school boy and girl basketball teams will open their seasons following the banquet, the male contingent facing Washington-Lee High in a Virginia State League contest and the girls meeting the lassies of Lee-Jackson High School.

Bringing to a close one of the most successful grid seasons in the history of the school, the banquet promises to attract the Mayor of Alexandria, members of the city council, representatives of the various civic clubs, Washington newspapermen and other guests. Arthur (Dutch) Bergman, C. U.'s coach; Jack Hagerty, coach at Georgetown, and Francis Summers, coach at V. M. I., are the grid mentors expected to be present.

Monogrammed sweaters will be presented to 22 members of the high school football squad. Henry T. Moncure, school principal, will be master of ceremonies; Gertrude Smith, president of the Pep Club, is in charge of the program.

Capt. Paul Shu, of the football team, will be presented with "The Old Oaken Bucket," newly offered token to go annually to the team winning the traditional George Washington-Washington-Lee game.

Three independent basketball games are scheduled here tomorrow night at Armory Hall. The first game will pit the Columbia Flashes against the McLean A. C. The second will see the Palace Laundry girl's team in action for the first time against an opponent—as yet unnamed. In the final attraction the Columbia Fire Department will play host to the Northern A. C. of Washington.

American, Gallaudet in Debuts Tonight; Wilson vs. Shepherd

All Contests Are Slated For D.C.

Untried Eagles Oppose Hampden-Sydney in First Encounter.

COLLEGE basketball reaches a new preholiday high tonight with American and Gallaudet scheduled to make their 1935-36 debut, and Wilson entertaining a visiting aggregation in its third game of the season.

American plays host to a veteran Hampden-Sydney quintet, while Gallaudet's first public appearance of the season will be against a new Southeastern University quintet, the first in the history of the aspiring little Y. M. C. A. school. Wilson faces Shepherd at Wilson.

All games will get under way at 8 o'clock.

Routed Shenandoah.

Wilson, with Fox, Mitchell and Wirksman cast in star roles, swamped Shenandoah, 47-30, in its first home appearance of the year earlier in the week and the Teachers expect little difficulty tonight against Shepherd. Shepherd usually places a fast quintet on the floor, but on past performances Wilson appears to be several shades better.

American and Gallaudet are in the same predicament as both will send untried quintets to the battle-front. American's squad is one of the smallest in the Eagles' history, physically speaking, and Coach Walter Young believes it at least a month away from [illegible] form. Benscotter, a giant center, probably will bear the brunt of the attack.

Gallaudet's hopes will be invested in "Racy" Drake and Alf Hoffmeister, veteran forwards, who have displayed excellent form in practice. Coach Wally Krug will not name his starting line-up until game time.

Coached by Howard Mann, Southeastern will be represented by an inexperienced but willing team. The starting line-up will see Swan, at center; Jacobson and Monger, forwards; Miller and Nufeldt, guards.

George and Chewaki To Head Mat Program

Ed (Don) George, former world wrestling champion, will clash with Chief Chewaki, who once knocked out Max Schmeling, in the feature match of next Thursday's weekly mat show at Promoter Joe Turner's Arena, it was announced last night.

Neither man has ever been defeated locally.

Dempsey Signs Quarles and Overlin

By a Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Jack Dempsey, the Old Man Mauler, has added Norment Quarles and Ken Overlin to his rapidly growing stable of fighters, it was learned today. Formal announcement has been made of Dempsey's acquisition of Overlin, but a similar declaration regarding Quarles will not be made until later.

Quarles, a North Carolinan, held the Southern Conference lightweight boxing championship while a member of the squad at North Carolina. He recently scored a surprising win over N. B. A. featherweight champion Freddy Miller in a nontitle bout. Max Waxman, business associate of Dempsey, heard of Quarles through this bout and immediately brought the lad to Dempsey's attention.

Ranked Sixth.

Overlin, ranked sixth among the world's middleweights, has long been regarded a good prospect, but his career has been hampered by brittle hands. These are declared healed now and the Dempsey-Waxman group believe Overlin is of championship caliber.

In announcing he had signed Overlin, Dempsey said he would file an immediate claim with the New York boxing commission to have Overlin recognized as the leading contender for the title now held by Risko.

Fight by Rounds.

ing a lot of blows on the top of his gloves. Louis was waiting for Paulino to lead. Joe scored a right to the head, but Paulino ducked under a follow-up left to the face. Louis cuffed Paulino's face with lefts and rights. Louis scored a right to the eye. Paulino's left eye began bleeding as the bell ended the round. It was Louis' round.

ROUND FOUR.

Suddenly emerging from his cautious and nonchalant method of handling the situation, Louis sent the Spaniard flat on his back with the first hard right-hand blow he delivered. Paulino, as the timekeeper counted eight, climbed groggily to his feet, blood streaming from his mouth and a cut on the side of his face.

Louis landed another crushing right-hand blow to the head before Referee Arthur Donovan stepped in and halted the bout, with the Basque tottering and defenseless. The end came after two minutes 30 seconds of the round.

Two Pin Events Are Carded For Today

Davis Stakes to Resume; Doubles Teams Will Vie at Rosslyn.

TWO major duckpin events are scheduled this afternoon and tonight, the renewal of the eighth annual Meyer Davis Sweepstakes for Women at the Lucky Strike Alleys and the fifth annual Atlantic Coast Doubles Sweepstakes.

Catherine Quigley, No. 1 honorary duckpinist of the country, exhibited a brilliant brand of maple shooting to earn a considerable lead in the Meyer Davis Stakes last week, and will start the second block of 30 pins in front of Lorraine Gulli, the defending champion. Mrs. Quigley's huge lead resulted when she concluded her first five games with a total of 616. Lucy Rose and Mary Esten, whose ability to shoot the maples is much respected by local duckpinists, are third and fourth, respectively.

The Atlantic Coast doubles stakes, sponsored by the Washington Times and sanctioned by the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, opens at Rosslyn, Va., at 2 p. m. The event, which is listed as the major doubles classic in the United States, is an open affair, all bowlers in the country being eligible to compete. Wayne ("Hokie") Smith and Howard Parsons are the defending champions, capturing the title last year with a spurt in the final three games. Ten games will be rolled in all, with the final block scheduled at the new Recreation alleys next Saturday.

A triple-header strike and five spares gave David Groth, of the General Accountnig Office League, a 190 game last night at the Recreation alleys. Shooting 125 in his first effort and 142 in the last, Groth finished his set with a huge total of 457. Both the game and set are league records. Spurred on by Groth's sensational pin spilling, the Claims Division advanced from fifth to a tie for second place, establishing two more league records with a 657 game and 1,757 set.

Celtics and Flashes To Clash Tomorrow

A change in the preliminary pairing to the Heurich-Paterson pro-court feature tomorrow has been made in an effort to tighten competition in the first game.

St. Mary's Celtics, one of the best amateur quints in Alexandria, has been substituted for Bovell Plumbers against the Heurich Flashes.

Central's Series Hopes Hurt As Two Are Ruled Ineligible

By John R. Vosburgh.

BAD NEWS dimmed the 41-to-19 victory over the Gallaudet College "B" team with which Central High yesterday opened its basketball season at the Central gym. Two members of the first team, Sam Fox and Sid Gerstenfeld, it was learned, are lost for service until February because of ineligibility.

Fox was one of the foremost members of last season's combination and had been expected to become one of the inter-high standouts during the coming series. A good marksman, tall and lanky, he established himself as a better-than-average forward last season.

Gerstenfeld had come up fast throughout the fall and was a certainty to grab a guard assignment. Coach Jack Ray had high regard for the speedy youngster whom he expected to pair up with Billy Vermillion, veteran guard.

Coming after the unexpected loss of Charlie Nau, who did not return to school, the unavailability of Fox and Gerstenfeld strikes a serious blow to Coach Ray's hopes. Only Capt. Bill Thompson and Vermillion now remain from last year's promising combination.

Don Fones, a fast-shooting forward, however, has clearly demonstrated himself as of first-string caliber, and Dewey Poole appears slated as his running mate. Bill Heygster, highly regarded reserve last season, Phelix Silverstein and Hymie Goldblatt are battling for the other guard post.

Fones was as conspicuous in yesterday's game as his 13 points appear in the box-score below. Capt. Thompson pressed him for the scoring honors, knocking off 11 points, though not playing the entire game. The collegians never threatened the lead which Central took in the early going.

High School Highlights . . .

By John R. Vosburgh.

CLOSE to $800 was turned over to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club treasury as the result of the game between Central High and Mexico City's All-High team at Griffith Stadium. The total gate receipts were $4,092. (Figures supplied by Lawrence E. Brown, of Tech, president and treasurer of the interhigh athletic association and financal manager for the Central-Mexican game.)

Three-fifths of the gate receipts went to the Mexicans, which would be $2,455.20. Of the remaining $1,646.80 about $845 were necessary for expenses. The rest went to the boys' clubs.

The recorded attendance was 9,200. Of this number, 6,000 watched the spectacle from the 25-cent seats. The tidy sum bestowed upon the Mexicans was used principally to take care of their traveling and hotel expenses. It is something to think about when a bunch of Mexican boys indirectly play Santa Claus for thousands of American boys of the poorer classes who will benefit by this $800 the boy clubs are getting.

Tech High announces a change in its recently published basketball schedule. Southern High has been listed for December 17, the game to be played in Baltimore. Tech beat the Marylanders twice last season—before it hit the skids in the interhigh series.

Gay Edelin, Eastern's ace forward last season, will be playing against his former teammates, Lavelle Dean, Buddy Shaner, Chick Hollidge and Red Scheible, Wednesday of next week. Edelin is now wearing the uniform of the Georgetown Freshmen.

Lloyd Rice, Georgetown Prep's flashy center, and Tommy Durkin, Gonzaga's All-Prep choice, also are members of the Cubs on the Hilltop.

Lack of reserves played a large part in Devitt's defeat by Fork Union. Richmond press-box observers predicted Devitt would win when the first half ended at 7-7. Len Askin was then quickly injured. So were Bill Patterson and Jim Dixon, but there wasn't anybody to take their places. Jim Hardy's partially healed broken finger caused him to drop three passes which conceivably could have turned the score the other way around.

Notice: Tech Students.

Tech's basketball game with the George Washington freshmen today will start at 7 p. m. at the G. W. gymnasium. School officials asked that this correction be published to correct an announcement made to 2,000 students yesterday at the Tech assembly that the game would start at 2:30 p. m.

The 12 members of the boys' team who will comprise most of the team's strength in the forthcoming inter-high competition are Courtney Overstreet, Bill Linton, Bob Brown, Bob Rands, Guy Goodman, John Fleming, James Long, James Luptau, Paul Raimondi, Jack Rosenberg, Irwin Jaffe and Bob Lowe.

Takoma Fire Grid Team To Play Silver Spring

The bitter suburban football rivalry of the Takoma Firemen and the Silver Spring Merchants will be renewed at 2 p. m. tomorrow on Rhodes Field, Takoma Park, with the hosts favored for the first time in the series.

Last year the Merchants were 8-0 victors. The Takomans this year are undefeated, untied and unscored on, while the Merchants have won two games, lost two and played four ties.

Post Mortems . . .

Nate Ritzenberg, District and Middle Atlantic junior tennis champion, has been braving the wintry blasts with his brother Allie on the Reservoir cement courts every afternoon for the last two weeks . . . they are tuning up their strokes for the national junior indoor championships, to be played during the Christmas holidays in the Seventh Regiment Armory, New York . . . Ed Bieber, seven-time holder of the District bicycle championship, spent most of last week in New York watching the six-day bike race . . . Ed Karpowich, captain of the Catholic University football team, which will play the University of Mississippi in the Orange Bowl game in Miami on New Year's Day, sold more advertising space in the official C. U. football program than any predecessor in ten years . . . rumor has it that Coach Orrel Mitchell, of Gonzaga High, will help Coach Wally Krug install a new deceptive system at Gallaudet's spring football practice . . . Mitchell, however, will remain at Gonzaga next fall . . . Warren Van Sciver, who carved quite a reputation in the local fight scene under the name of Young Van about three years ago, will go into training soon in preparation for a comeback campaign.

Bomber Stops Uzcudun in 4th Round gave even more promise of providing a startling upset.

The third round was even more disconcerting to those who had wagered 10 to 1 that Paulino would not be declared the winner. Paulino bounced out of his shell to land a hard left hook to the jaw, then a hard straight to the chin. Louis changed expression not a bit, but he obviously was puzzled by Upsidedown's upsidedown style of fisticuffing.

And Then—the Fourth.

The fourth round ended all thoughts of any but the preconceived ending, however. Paulino answered the bell in his crab-like shell and seemed destined to annoy the Negro some more until he thoughtlessly dropped his hands for a second as he leaned on the ropes.

Louis' right shot straight to the Basque's exposed jaw with the swiftness and venom of a King Cobra. Uzcudum dropped flat on his back, amazement, pain and bewilderment written on his homely features. He writhed. He quivered—and at the count of eight he dragged himself from the floor.

On his feet, the valiant Basque, who had consistently refused to believe any man could harm him with his fists, was a pitiful figure. His eyes were glassy. His knees were wobbly. His muscles were too weak to raise his arms in self-defense. But his heart remained firm. He was on his feet, ready to carry on.

Referee Arthur Donovan glanced anxiously at the stricken gladiator and decided he was able to continue. Louis soon remedied that. He shuffled relentlessly in on his hapless foe, ramming both a left and a right to the Basque's noggin. Paulino weaved drunkenly back and forth, but refused to go down again.

A near capacity crowd of 19,945 witnessed tonight's proceedings. They paid a total of $128,394.75 for the privilege.

'12th Man' Turns Kibitzer; Ousted

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 13. — Mike Mesko, the Rahway, N. J., lunch-wagoneer who claimed to be the famous "twelfth man" for the Dartmouth football team in the Princeton game, is now kibitzing the bridge experts.

Mesko had better luck at kibitzing today than he did against Princeton, though both ended the same for him.

"Don't play that card," shouted Mesko to Michael T. Gottlieb, captain of the American "Four Aces" team during a session today with the French bridge team.

Mesko was escorted to safety by the referee.

When quiet returned, it was discovered, however, Gottlieb had been playing from his own hand when the lead was from dummy.

Pitt's Eleven Choice Over Trojans

Seeks to Gain Revenge in Coast Battle Today; Foe to Use Passes.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—Pittsburgh will attempt to square an old football debt tomorrow when its grid eleven meets Southern California at Memorial Coliseum.

Twice beaten by the Trojans in Rose Bowl contests but victorious over Coach Howard Jones' team in the East last fall, the invaders propose to balance their record books.

Even the most optimistic Southern California fans admitted tonight that the home guard held little hope against Coach Jock Sutherland's vengeful band. Troy, in the second year of its football slump, has won only one major contest this season as compared with Pitt's lone defeat by Notre Dame.

Top-Heavy Scores.

Southern California walloped Pittsburgh, 47 to 14, in 1930 and 35 to 0 in 1933. The Panthers retaliated with a 20-to-6 triumph last fall.

Coach Jones made a final adjustment in his line-up today with the idea of throwing full strength on the field from the start in the hope of turning back the invaders. He promised to start Glenn Thompson, a hard-charging, pass-throwing fullback in combination with elusive Davie Davis at quarterback.

Pittsburgh.	Positions.	So. California.
Souchak	L.E.	Thurlow
Matisi	L.T.	Belko
Glassford	L.G.	Preininger
Kliskey	Center	Kuhn
Dalle Tezze	R.G.	Wilensky

Paulino Is Spared Of Bloody Battle

caved in. The punch was so fast that Paulino did not fall at once. But he seemed to die on his feet, because as he started to sway backward, all life faded from his face. His expression changed, his eyes dimmed, and he fell right flat on his back, his head partly under the ropes on the east side of the ring.

Up at Count of Eight.

The same instinct that sometimes convulses the body of an executed man and gruesomely shakes the dead limbs brought Paulino to his feet at the count of eight. Referee Arthur Donovan might have stopped the fight then and there, but he didn't, and Louis quickly and smoothly struck Uzcudun twice more, a left, and then a right that smashed the skin over his right eye and brought blood to join the stream from his shattered mouth, and this time the referee pronounced him finished.

The Basque was still out when led from the ring. He went to the showers, and when he came out he was unattended for a moment and began to reel dizzily around the ring like a person who has been spun violently. He was still completely out of his head.

He had never been knocked down by a punch before, but when it finally came to him it nearly destroyed him. It was one of the most devastating love punches I have ever seen delivered in the ring. I doubt whether anybody saw it start or finish, because it was too fast for the human eye. The flash was all I caught, and I know it was a right.

Phil Furr Asserts He'll K. O. Wilson

Says He Will Stop Foe in Seventh, Monday.

Phil Furr, District welterweight boxing champion, enthused yesterday over his chances of remaining champion after his 15-round title bout with Bob Wilson Monday night night at the Turner Arena. As a matter of fact, he enthused to the point of predicting: "I'll knock him out within seven rounds."

"I might as well be honest about it," Furr continued. "Bob Wilson is the one man I can lick any time and any place. He's scared to death of me. I can beat him any way he chooses to fight."

Western Five Routs W. & L., 34 to 12

WESTERN HIGH'S newly molded basketball team yesterday rang up its second victory in three starts this week, submerging Washington-Lee High 34 to 12, at Ballston, Va. The Red team took the lead in the first minute of play, gaining momentum to the finish.

Gerald Burns, one of Coach Cliff Moore's two returning veterans, sank four baskets for the individual scoring honors. Western took a 13-6 lead in the first half and then proceeded to hit a faster pace in the last two periods, although Coach Moore inserted reserves liberally, using 11 men in all.

Coming on the heels of a win over St. Alban's and a creditable showing against the George Washington Freshmen, the victory added considerable stock to the Georgetown forces, composed for the most part of green material.

Blair Cagemen Victors Over G. U. Prep

PACED by Burger and Dietle, who accounted for the deciding baskets in an extra-period thriller at Garrett Park yesterday, Montgomery Blair High gained its first victory in three starts by nosing out Georgetown Prep, 23 to 20, handing the losers their fourth straight defeat.

Dietle and Finaham tied the score at 13-all starting the last quarter, and Byrd swished one in for Georgetown at the final whistle, to tie the score at 19-all, forcing an extra period in which the visitors quickly put the game on ice as Burger and Dietle scored in rapid succession. Franklin's foul shot was the lone point scored by the hosts in the extra quarter.

$10,000 Miami Golf Starts Today

Ony Jimmy Thomson Is Able to Break Par in Practice Rounds.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 13.—One ace golfer after another, polishing strokes for tomorrow's start of the sixth annual $10,000 Miami-Biltmore Open here, strove unsuccessfully to beat par today.

Only Jimmy Thomson, the steady professional from Ridgewood, N. J., managed to better standard figures in the day's practice rounds over the tough wind-swept course. He had 70, 1 under par.

Back of him came Ralph Hutchinson, Bethlehem, Pa.; Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, and Craig Wood, New York, with 71s. While three top-flight pros—Gene Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Conn.; Norton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., and Denny Shute, Chicago, were bunched at 72. Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., had 73.

With 216 professionals and amateurs already enrolled for the sport's richest tournament, observers looking over the field missed only the familiar faces of Olin Dutra, last year's winner, and Walter Hagan in the ranks of pros.

Soccer Teams Clash Today For Lead

SOCCER players are looking forward to one of the most strenuous week-ends of the season today and tomorrow. Subject to weather and ground conditions, Sherwood "B" will kick it out with Virginia avenue on the latter's field at 11 a. m. today with first place in the Sport Center League at stake.

In the Recreation League three games are scheduled for tomorrow on as many fields. Sun Radio will line up against Littoria at 2:30 p. m., on Rosedale field, Mitchell Brothers meet Sabaudia at Bennings at 1 p. m. and Silver Spring will entertain Occoquan at 2;30 p. m.

Also slated for tomorrow, Heurich Brewers will resume action in the Southeastern League, having as their guests on the Benning field at 3 p. m. the Bethlehem Steel booters, of Baltimore. The visitors, third in the league standings, will be playing in Washington for the first time this year.

Wheat Jumps Five-Cent Limit In Pit Turmoil

Argentine Decree Lifts Prices There 20 Cents a Bushel.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Biggest export sales of North American wheat to Europe since the World War took place today following an Argentine government domestic price-fixing decree. The sudden action of Argentine hoisted quotations in that country 20 cents a bushel and put Canada to the forefront as the remaining chief immediate world source of bread material.

As a result, the huge amount of 25,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, the entire quantity that Canadian exporters had offered abroad for prompt sale, was estimated to have been eagerely bought today to be shipped to Europe.

Wildly excited speculative buying rushes were witnessed in the Chicago Board of Trade wheat futures pit and on all leading exchanges both sides of the Atlantic, with upturns of prices halted only through trade rules limiting fluctuations to an average of 5 cents a bushel for any single day.

Jam Stops Business.

In Chicago at the last, no traders were willing to risk wheat offerings lower than the day's maximum, and business temporarily came to a complete halt. Nominally, Chicago closing prices for wheat were strong at the day's topmost figures, 4⅞@5⅛ cents above yesterday's finis; May, 1.00½, with corn 1⅞@2⅛ up; May 61@61¼; oats, 1⅜@1¾ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

A sheer upward bound of 5 cents a bushel for wheat was scored instantly in Chicago the moment trading began. Rapid fluctuations followed because of profit taking on an immense scale. At no time, however, did reactions go to more than about 2½ cents under the maximum, and then only for brief intervals.

Capital Stores Lead Sales Gain In 5th District

November Rise Is 19.5% Against 11% Average for the Area.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 13.—Sales in 54 Fifth Federal Reserve District department stores in November totaled 11 per cent more than sales in November, 1934, and cumulative sales in the first 11 months of this year increased 7 per cent, the Reserve Bank here reported today.

The Fifth District comprises Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia and North and South Carolina.

The largest increase was reported by Washington stores, which had 19.5 per cent better business in the comparison by months and 15.7 per cent for the cumulative period.

Sales for the Nation jumped 10 per cent in November over the same month last year, and cumulative sales increased 5 per cent for the 11 months.

Comparative figures by States in the Fifth District for November as against November, 1934, and for the cumulative period, respectively, were: Virginia, 12 stores, plus 6.4 and plus 3.5; West Virginia, 10 stores, plus 5.6 and plus 2.8; North Carolina, 8 stores, plus 9 and plus 6.5; South Carolina, 8 stores, minus 1 and plus 2.9. Baltimore, with 8 stores reporting, showed plus 6.6 and plus 1.2.

Stocks Work Lower as Trading Pace Abates; Wheat Prices Jump.

New York, Dec. 13.—Argentine's suprise move in lifting the official price for wheat in that country by 19 cents a bushel brought a jump to the limit of 5 cents in the Chicago market, and similar gains in other world markets, but that was the only dash of color to a drab day. Bonds were nearly motionless, silver fell again, and stocks in less active trading continued their slow retreat. Turnover in stocks was approximately 2,000,000 shares, the smallest of the week.

Solely on the news of the day the bulls seemed to have the better of the argument, but year-end selling to take profits or to establish tax losses, and the feeling among many professional speculators that the market is topheavy enough to warrant a try for a break, plus the general world-wide uncertainty on many scores, combined to give the share market a rather sad appearance at times.

Week-end business statistics were mostly favorable. Last week railroad freight car loadings increased 11.5 per cent, compared with the preceding week, and 15.4 per cent against the same week a year ago. The week also brought a tremendous addition—$130,000,000 (to a new high record level)—to excess reserves of the banks, largely the result of imports of $59,000,000 in gold. Moreover, the sixth consecutive weekly gain in brokers' loans indicated that some of the cheap money medicine is beginning to take.

Wheat Spurts.

Among other items looking toward expansion of trade or of markets were the advance in November of the Federal Reserve board's index of department store sales, of more than the seasonal amount, and, according to the Fairchild index, of a further rise of nearly half of 1 per cent in retail prices last month. The day added its bit with a swift rise in wheat on news of a higher official price set in Argentina, but it also took something away with another cent an ounce fall in the price of silver.

Money markets are as yet showing not the slightest indication of firmness that in former years came with the increased use of cash for Christmas shopping and the year-end demands of all sorts. Money in circulation this week declined a little although it will rise the rest of the month. However, the excess reserves of the banks are so stupendous that no increase in interest rates would be warranted. That is not true with London, where the short-term market is feeling a bit of the pinch, and three-months' bills today moved up an eighth.

Foreign exchanges were erratic. Sterling was firm, but the gold currencies weakened. Italian money dropped and the silvers were unsettled. Canadian exchange went up with the jump in wheat prices, coming at a fortunate time for Canada, which now is releasing more grain for the world markets. Wall Street had a rumor or to this morning of a peace settlement in Europe, but the news dispatches were on the opposite side of the fence, and markets generally failed to support the optimistic side.

Rails Retreat.

In spite of their contribution to cheerfulness in the shape of increased car loadings, the poor railroad stocks had to take an undue share of the selling which swept over the midday market. Losses of 1 to 2 points were frequent. Public utilities weakened, but to a lesser extent. Telephone, selling ex-dividend, lost more than 3 points besides its regular payment. Food stocks were down fractionally, but their relatives, the can issues, tumbled. American Can dropped 5 points and Continental lost nearly as much, both having been poor performers recently, in contrast to their market leadership in late summer and early autumn.

Tobacco stocks again were lower — the third consecutive daily decline. The retreat was from 1 to 2 points, including Philip Morris. Moderate weakness was seen among the motors, steels, oils, amusements and rubbers. Mail orders and farm implements moved higher in response to the climb in wheat. Metals were firmer. Copper held to a narrow range.

A handful of stocks moved against the push. Among them were Vick Chemical, Reis common and preferred, American Writing Paper common and preferred, Paraffine, Pittsburgh Screw, Budd preferred, Clark Equipment, International Agricultural preferred and Food Machinery. Steel was down a fraction.

Hard Luck.

The Washington fire today was checked before it could do much good. Fortunately, the prinicpal loss was in records of the irrigation and reclamation projects. If the bureaucrats would forget where to find the fantastic structures that have been started in the name of work relief, the fire could be forgiven for its damage to Mr. Farley's offices. Other records that never would be missed are the I. C. C. railroad valuations, the Federal Trade Commission's public utility inquiry testimony, the war debt notes, the sound currency promises, the NRA and the ruling party's campaign platform for 1932.

Brokers' Loans.

Brokers' loans are straws in the wind. The total as reported by the Federal Reserve Board is still under a billion, but it is direction that counts. Probably most people don't realize that the loans have risen for six consecutive weeks. The ratio of loans to stock values still is low, but that is only of secondary importance — it never has seemed particularly high. What counts is the movement of borrowed money into speculation, and that is now taking place at a rising rate. Those who own stocks outright are selling them to those who are tapping bank credit to carry them, naturally with the hope of selling them later at a good profit. All that is legitimate enough, but it indicates a certain deterioration in the character of the market.

Freight Volume Expands Over Entire Country

Week's Loadings, 637,133 Cars, Are 15.5% More Than a Year Ago.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended December 7 totaled 637,133 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 85,648 cars, or 15.5 per cent above the corresponding week in 1934 and an increase of 95,141 cars, or 17.6 per cent above the same week in 1933.

Loading of revenue freight for the week of December 7 was an increase of 66,706 cars, or 11.7 per cent above the preceding week this year, which included a holiday.

Loading of merchandise less than carload freight totaled 158,803 cars, an increase of 20,957 cars above the preceding week, and 2,288 cars above the corresponding week in 1934. It was, however, a decrease of 3,738 cars below the same week in 1933.

Coal loadings amounted to 137,991 cars, an increase of 17,715 cars above the preceding week, 18,917 cars above the corresponding week in 1934, and 29,785 cars above the same week in 1933.

Grain Shipments Heavier.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 30,996 cars, an increase of 834 cars above the preceding week, 2,466 cars above the corresponding week in 1934, and 2,357 cars above the same week in 1933. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended December 7 totaled 18,368 cars, an increase of 878 cars above the same week in 1934.

Livestock loading amounted to 15,154 cars, an increase of 2,128 cars above the preceding week, but 5,047 cars below the same week in 1934 and 1,741 cars below the same week in 1933. In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week ended December 7 totaled 11,338 cars, a decrease of 3,917 cars below the same week in 1934.

Forest products loading totaled 29,564 cars, an increase of 3,610 cars above the preceding week, 8,995 cars above the same week in 1934 and 8,933 cars above the same week in 1933.

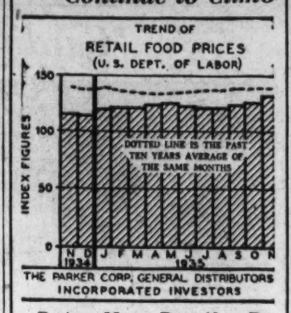
Coke loading amounted to 8,611 cars, an increase of 834 cars above the preceding week, 3,364 cars above the same week in 1934, and 2,315 cars above the same week in 1933.

All districts reported increases for the week of December 7 in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight compared with the corresponding week last year. All districts also reported increases compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

Retail Food Prices Continue to Climb



Boston, Mass., Dec. 13.— Retail food prices are continuing their climb. The average housewife today must spend $1.14 for food which would have cost just $1 a year ago, and only 86 cents three years ago. A large part of this increase is in meats.

Farm Output Value Up 13% Over Last Year

Areas Hit by Drought in 1934 Report the Largest Gains.

New York, Dec. 13.— Although the estimated value of 1935 agricultural production is approximately 13 per cent larger than that of 1934, the gains in individual States vary greatly. Increases are most pronounced in those States where crop failure was conspicuous last year, and least pronounced where relatively normal yields were realized in 1934.

The West-North-Central area shows the most important increases, for the reason that these States suffered most from the drought last year. The gain for each State is above the average for the Nation. Obviously, the farming regions of that section offer best prospects for larger trade volumes.

The South-Central region (Texas Oklahoma and Arkansas) ranks next in percentage gains, and increases there also are sufficiently impressive to justify the conclusion that rural trade will be favorable.

Croghan Death Brings Commerce Press Shift

While the place made vacant by the death of Paul J. Croghan, veteran publicity man in the Commerce Department, will not be filled, there has been a shift of personnel in the department's information section.

The department yesterday announced that Alfred J. O'Leary had been named assistant to Harry R. Daniel, chief of the Information section. Present members of the staff will take over duties formerly discharged by Croghan and all information will clear through Daniel.

Railroads May Increase Peach-Weight Estimated

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 13.—Information has been received here from railroda officials that consideration is being given the proposal to increase the estimated weight on peaches from 50 to 54 pounds per bushel basket.

The proposal will be discussed in January at a meeting of the general freight committee of the Trunk Line Association, according to V. C. Kline, division freight agent, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Plenty Peeved!

By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

How's that two fellows.. took you away in a car....said I sent them?
Well I just happened to see you folks leaving, and... well..
Hartford Oakdale, you know very well you realized it was a dangerous situation.
Absolutely. You knew they were red-hots. Had cannons and...
Oh dash it, I'll confess I felt I'd have my hands full with four or five rough chaps, but..
Ah, that car of mine you were driving goes pretty fast, Hartford. I'm surprised you couldn't catch up with those..
But Monty, you can't imagine how fast we were going.
100 miles an hour. Easy. Hartford saved our life.
Oh it was nothing. I merely saw that something had to be done quickly, and so..
You did it!
Ah..anyhow, suppose we go to the yacht. You ladies must be quite unnerved after your wild ride with those scamps.
